

Va. Beach postmaster urges observance of earlier Christmas mailing deadlines

Suggested Christmas mailing deadlines for domestic parcels and letter mail have been advanced because of an exceptionally high mail volume, according to Virginia Beach Postmaster J. T. Crosswhite. The suggested Christmas mailing deadline is now Dec. 3 for domestic parcels and Dec. 10 for letter mail and greeting cards intended for delivery by Christmas.

"The impact of greatly increased mail volumes generated by the 15-state United Parcel Service strike in the east and south, and its residual effect on other parts of the country compels us to ask the public to mail even earlier than normal," Crosswhite said. Parcel volume has already more than doubled in the strike area and is up significantly nationwide, and letter mail is also on the increase, according to Postmaster Crosswhite. He said that while letter mail will continue to receive priority treatment, the increase in mail from the general public, on top of the unprecedented business mail volume generated by the strike, could result in the use of many postal facilities normally dedicated to letter mail to prevent an unmanageable backlog of parcels.

"I strongly urge the public to deposit parcels by Dec. 3 and letters and greeting cards by Dec. 10 to assure they are delivered by Christmas," Crosswhite said.

Suggested mailing dates for international mail are unchanged, but customers are also urged to deposit overseas packages and greetings immediately, and to send them by airmail if they want to assure delivery by Christmas.

For Council

Little choice on how to vote

By LEE CAHILL
SUN Public Affairs Writer

Councilmen, whose jobs are to make choices, didn't seem to think they had any to make at the special meeting of Virginia Beach City Council.

It was a case of voting for the $16 million bond issue or voting for a grinding halt financing for 42 city projects, some of which have been completed, some started and others planned.

Councilman Robert R. Cromwell asked what alternatives the city had to the bond sale. That is, what would happen if Council failed to authorize City Manager George L. Hanbury to receive bids on the bonds on Dec. 9.

Projects under way would be stopped, Hanbury said, and the schools and the street work, and in cases where work had been done but bills not paid, the city could expect law suits for breach of contract. Or the city would have to turn to taxes, most likely the real estate tax as the quickest way to raise money.

So, just five hours before the deadline set for authorization to sell the bonds this year, the eight members of Council present Monday night granted the authorization, in some cases with reservations.

Councilman R.L. "Buddy" Riggs remarked, "I'm going to vote for it, but it puts us in a position where we have no choice. We shouldn't wait until five hours before the deadline." Riggs had earlier noted that all the projects and been approved before he joined the Council.

Hanbury, who called the meeting, said that a procedural resolution authorizing the bond sale had to be adopted on Dec. 9. He said that the city anticipated bond delivery on Dec. 30, Nov. 29 was the last possible date. Otherwise the city would lose its bond capacity for this year.

In answer to questions from Council, he said that the city's charter restricts Council from making a fragmented bond offer which would have given Council an opportunity to cut out projects for which they are less than enthusiastic. Even if this were possible, he said, interest rates on a fragmented

Beach fire officials say

Seconds can mean lives in mobile home fires

By STEVE STONE
SUN News Editor

A fire in the home is something that most of us hope we never have to experience, but every year hundreds of Beach residents experience the disaster of a home fire.

For those who live in mobile homes, the dangers are just as real and often of great proportion.

Over the years, construction of mobile homes has improved. Fewer models have two or more exits thus decreasing the danger of being trapped in a trailer fire. But by their very nature of being light and mobile, they carry many inherent dangers.

Construction usually includes much more wood and combustible insulation material than a buyer sees and there can be other dangers, some avoidable, some not.

For instance, city fire officials suggest that when buying a mobile home you check it thoroughly to insure that its heating system appears in order, that there is an adequate number of electrical outlets so you don't overload any particular outlet.

Buyers should ask questions about the safety of various heating and electrical systems and insure that flammables built into the trailer allow adequate space or insulation from sources of fire.

Once purchased, the owner should install one or more all-purpose fire extinguishers in the trailer. These are the type marked for A, B, and C type fires which cover all possibilities. They are small but effective and the cost is minimal considering the possible costs of a major fire. The plastic, squeeze type are usable for small fires, such as grease fires, but it is advisable to have a larger, pressurized extinguisher.

One of the best protections a mobile home, or any other home or business owner can take, is the installation of smoke alarms in the structure.

These ceiling mounted devices will sound a loud alarm when smoke in the area is detected. They are better than heat detectors as a fire produces smoke before flame and thus allows more time to call the fire department and reduce damage.

The alarms will sometimes go off due to heavy smoking or something burned on the stove, but a false alarm is better than no alarm.

All residents should know how to shut off the gas or oil supplies on the outside of the trailer. In the event of

For young adults

Booster shots needed

If you're between the ages of 13 and 24 and obtained your swine flu vaccination then you don't have anything to worry about. Right? Wrong!

Roll up your sleeves again because young adults must obtain a second or booster immunization in order to realize complete immunity against A/New Jersey "swine" influenza, according to local health officials.

Dr. William Crawford of the Virginia Beach Health Department told the SUN Monday morning that clinics will be open three days of each week for the booster shots. The clinics will also be able to give those who have not previously been vaccinated a chance to receive their shots.

Two of the three Beach clinics are already in operation. At the Municipal Center Health Department office the first "mini-clinic" was open Monday from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. and the Bayside office at 930 Independence Blvd. was open yesterday, Tuesday, from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

The third office/clinic will be open at 1928 and Arctic Avenue starting on Friday Dec. 10 from noon to 4 p.m.

All three clinics will be open the same days and hours each week for an unspecified period of time.

At least 33,674 young adults in the 13-24 age group obtained influenza immunizations during the mass clinics held between Oct. 31 and Nov. 7.

All but approximately 3,900 of that total received the monovalent A/New Jersey/76 "swine" vaccine. All need the booster. Many young people who missed the earlier clinics have obtained immunizations in make-up clinics in the localities, but their numbers have not yet been tallied. Neither have those provided by immunization in private practice, since the mass clinic period.

When the influenza immunizations were first given this year, the Public Health Service indicated that further field trials would be held to determine whether or not one immunization would provide full protection against "swine" influenza in young adults over 18. These recently completed studies have now been reviewed by the national advisory committee which has issued the announcement that a booster injection must be given to confer full immunity on those from age 18 through 24.

Dr. Crawford urged all young people in this age group to obtain booster immunizations as soon as possible by seeing their physicians or visiting a local health department. An individual who has a card indicating the type of vaccine received at the first injection should present the card. But the health department will immunize any young person who requests it, with or without a card.

With SUN classifieds Help's on the way!

"You know, it's really impossible to find good help these days!"

Ruth Ballinger of Great Bridge might disagree with that often-repeated claim. She was looking for a very special type of person, and she found a number of excellent candidates, thanks to an advertisement in the Virginia Beach SUN.

Mrs. Ballinger needed a live-in companion who could care for an elderly family member. That's a sensitive job that requires just the right blend of skills and personality, and wanting to be selective, Mrs. Ballinger advertised in the SUN.

"The telephone rang off the hook the whole day and night," she reported. "We had many nice people come for interviews."

Why such an excellent response? Well, says Mrs. Ballinger, "Chesapeake is a nice area, and it's obvious the SUN reaches the people in that area."

Building bids to be opened

The bid opening will be open to the public.

Rev. Joseph Clark finds 31-year goal at hand

It may seem like a long time, 31 years, to realize a goal, but for Joe Clark, it's been worth it.

The road to Catholic priesthood began when he was 15-years old and entering a minor seminary in Baltimore. It will end next Saturday (Dec. 4) at 6 p.m. when he is ordained to the priesthood at Star of the Sea Catholic Church in Virginia Beach by the Most Rev. Walter F. Sullivan, bishop of the Diocese.

Joe, formally known as the Rev. Mr. Joseph Lawrence Clark, is unique. He will celebrate his 45th birthday just 23 days after his ordination. Most candidates for the priesthood are in their mid to late 20's.

He's also unique in another way. He taught many of the priests in the Diocese of Richmond while they were attending St. Charles Seminary, and then he taught, then went to school with some of the young men being ordained to the priesthood this year.

The new priest became a candidate for the Diocese of Richmond in 1974, and entered the Theological College of Catholic University in Washington at that time. The following summer he was assigned to Star of the Sea Parish where he was served almost continuously since he reported there in May of 1975.

Born in Baltimore, Md., he entered St. Charles Minor Seminary High School there at the age of 15. He graduated in 1911, then went on to the minor college there completing that course of study in 1951.

He left the seminary that year to support his mother, and says he also had some doubts about his vocation at this time. He went to work in the public relations department of a Baltimore utility company where he remained for the next seven years.

He earned a master's degree in English by attending Loyola College at nights and on weekends, then joined the faculty of St. Charles Seminary in 1958 where he taught for the next 15 years.

In 1970, his mother died and he began thinking seriously about priesthood. As a result, he entered Catholic University in 1974 as a candidate for the priesthood for the Catholic Diocese of Richmond.

As a summer pastoral experience, he was assigned to Star of the Sea 16 months ago, then returned as often as possible while completing his studies at the Theological College during the 1975-76 school year.

Clark was ordained a deacon in May of 1976 and was reassigned to Star of the Sea.

He has one brother, James E. of Baltimore, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Margaret Murphy of Westminster, Md.

The new Father Clark will celebrate his first mass the following day at an as-yet-unspecified regular Sunday Liturgy at Star of the Sea.

Painter of Tidewater scenes featured in documentary

Dec. 6 at 8 p.m. WTAR-TV News will present a special, "Kenneth Harris--Artist/Citizen," a video portrait of a most unusual man.

The Program will consist of interviews filmed on location with the famous water colorist and self-defined nonconformist as he paints scenes of the Tidewater he loves.

Harris, now 72, walked away from the presidency of a successful Atlanta advertising agency in the 40's to become a painter. He has proven the exception to the rule that says a painter can't make a living painting. Not only has he been successful as an artist, but his deep involvement in his community has made him a leader in community thought and action.

There are times when that involvement makes him a minority of one; nevertheless, he is highly respected by his fellow man as both artist and citizen. This special will include a rare look at some of the artist's favorite paintings, assembled especially for this show.

"Kenneth Harris--Artist/Citizen."

was written and produced by Bob West, filmed and edited by Frank Blanchard, and will be telecast Monday, Dec. 6 from 8 to 8:30 p.m. on Channel 3.

Pack 64 holds busy meeting

Cub Scout Pack 64 met recently at Lynhaven Elementary School. The webelos started the evening off with a comical skit on a "Window Viper" as their pre-opening. Den 2 followed with a skit on hunters stalking a turkey.

It was announced that Bill Miller, cubmaster, was resigning as he is leaving the area. Rick Tommacelli was introduced as new cubmaster and Frank Reed will be assistant cubmaster.

Tim Rich was presented a Scout-ing cup for selling 100 tickets to the recent Scout show at Scope and Den 1 was presented a cup for selling the most tickets in the pack.

Other awards presented: Recruiting patches, James Barone and Sean Downs; one-year pins, Sean Downs and James Barone; six-year pin to committee chairperson Erastine Deso; Bobcat, Roger Walker, Matt Scull, Eric Burns and Kenny Yanover, Wolf, Eric Burns and Peter Carolino and artist to Billy Miller.

The activity presented by Den 1 was a skit on the life of a farmer. Preceding the skit Pat Bowman presented "This is Your Cub Scout Life with Pack 64 Bill Miller." The presentation was a big surprise to Miller and was written by Ian McCollum.

Summertime pack award ribbons were presented to each den for den flags. The pack was presented the Presidential Unit Award.

Closing was presented by Den 3 which consisted of the reading for each letter of the word "Cubscout."

No money, no paving

Leary of starting a precedent, Virginia Beach City Council last week turned down a request to pave Twin Poplar Road without financial contribution of residents.

Cost of improving the road, which is presently dirt, would be $12,000 and five property owners along the 3 mile strip would be required to pay $2700 as their share in the project.

A Martian?

You may not like the idea of seeing this strange sight in the middle of the night, but the fact of the matter is, he might save your life. He is a Virginia Beach Fireman wearing a protective helmet and air mask or "Scot Air Pack" used to protect firemen against the often heavy smoke of a blaze.

V.A. Elbridge Jr., attorney for Pungo Church of God, one of the property owners, said owners had dedicated land for the project in 1965, that it had at one time been paved, and that city vehicles use the road.

The city requires residents to pay 50 per cent of cost of materials but labor cost is borne completely by the city.

City Manager George L. Hanbury said that he has been unable to find any agreements covering the road, and that there were "hundreds of roads like this in the city in old subdivisions."

Councilman John L. Baum said that once the road is paved property will be more valuable and suggested charges to the citizens be worked out on a time basis.

The vote was 7-3 with Councilmen Floyd E. Waterfield Jr., J. Henry McCoy and R. L. Riggs voting to have the city pay the entire cost. Councilman J. Curtis Payne was absent.

In other actions, Council: Amended sections of the City Code pertaining to motor vehicles to conform to the State Code. The changes exempt from speeding limitations public safety vehicles in response to emergency calls and make it mandatory for vehicles to pull over to the edge of the road and stop upon approach of any public safety vehicle displaying a flashing, blinking or alternating red light.

Granted tax refunds amounting to $581.50.

Approved hospitalization contracts with Lake Taylor showing increases in charges in 1976-77 over 1975-76 with Lake Taylor City Hospital in Norfolk from $35.43 to $48.32; Norfolk General Hospital from $98.10 to $110.61; Leigh Memorial Hospital from $69.11 to $107.06; Virginia Beach Department of Public Health $12 a visit; clinic rates, $8 to $12 a visit.

Solar panels donated to TCC

Sir Galahad Co., a Virginia Beach residential building concern, has donated three solar collector panels to the Virginia Beach Public Schools.

Two have already been donated to schools in Tidewater, one to Old Dominion University and one to Norfolk Academy.

The solar collector panels have been used as demonstration units on Sir Galahad model homes over the last year. Sir Galahad is now using collector panels fabricated by Solar One Ltd., here in Virginia Beach.

The three, 20-sq. ft. panels that Sir Galahad donated were manufactured by companies in other states.

"This education is vital to the students' welfare as well as the communities," said Lee Cohen, a principal at Sir Galahad Co., said.

"Skilled labor familiar with the operation of solar units will be in great demand over the next few years to install and service the thousands of solar hot water heaters that will be purchased by homeowners interested in a significant reduction of their utility bills."

Common sense saves bucks

By LEE DAVID COHEN, E.E.

The easiest and the best way to conserve energy in Virginia Beach is to use some common sense. That involves thinking about how you heat your home. Not what system you use, but how you use whatever system you have. Electricity plays a big part in home heating, regardless of what system you have. It takes electricity to run the blowers, fans and pumps that are common to most heating plants. So anything you do to save on your electric bill will help keep your fuel bill down, too.

Insulation. There's no need to heat all the great outdoors along with your house. Insulation can be installed in most existing frame houses very reasonably. As a rule of thumb, you should have six inches of insulation in the attic (R-19), three inches of insulation in unheated crawls spaces (R-11), and three inches in side walls (R-11).

Storm Windows. Here is where your greatest heat loss can occur. Either double-glazed windows or storm windows keep cold air out, and heat costs down. (Clear plastic laced across your windows can help to serve the same purpose.)

Cracks-Seal them up. Weather stripping and caulking windows and doors helps keep the cold out, and the heat in. Chimneys-Keep dampers closed or block off fireplaces when they're not in use. Otherwise, a lot of heat goes right up the flue.

Sunshine-Let it in. Keeping shades up and draperies open during the day helps heat your home. At night, close them for added insulation effect. Draperies should fit tight around window and across window sill or floor when closed to prevent cool air from spilling out of the bottom. Radiators. Don't let furniture or drapes block off radiators or supply registers. Be sure they are clean and free of dust or obstructions so that the warm air can circulate freely.

Unheated space. If you have unused rooms and areas, keep them closed off. Also make sure all doors leading to unheated areas are kept closed. But if you have ducted warm air, make sure that closing off unused rooms won't interfere with the air circulation patterns in your home and cause your heating plant to operate irregularly.

Says Riggs Snakes, 'real'

The water moccasins at the proposed park site at Munden Point are very real and not an figment of his imagination, Councilman R. L. Riggs told Virginia Beach City Council last week.

Last week he inspected the site, by helicopter, and generally liked what he saw. Riggs had previously expressed some concern about the proximity of water moccasins in the area, and reported that two members of the city's planning staff came within "breathing distance" of two snakes along the creek banks recently.

Councilman John A. Baum quipped there was an advantage to water moccasins. "They don't make political speeches."

Riggs also suggested that an appraiser familiar with the area should be hired to make an appraisal of the property. Baum said he thought it would be "a mistake" to hire local appraisers.

Mayor Patrick L. Standing pointed out that Creeks Airfield property was originally purchased by the city to provide a recreation area for the southern end of the city and that the use of this land should be determined "before we spend another $400,000 on developing a new park at Munden Point."

Alumnists select officers

At their recent fall meeting, the Virginia Wesleyan College Alumni Association named new officers to head their 30-member alumni council, among them several Virginia Beach residents.

James J. Ragan, Class of '71 and a branch manager for Bank of Virginia, was elected to his second term as council president.

Serving as vice president will be Philip Reed Brooks Jr., Class of '74 and a commercial officer with Bank of Virginia. Jean Davis, Class of '73 and a resident of Virginia Beach, was elected secretary.

Following their business meeting, the Wesleyan Alumni Association held a series of career discussion sessions for current college students.

I Can't Help It Club seeking new members

A meeting of the Virginia Beach IC-III Club will be held 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Dec. 9, at the Virginia Beach Jaycees Building (Pembroke Major Community Center), Hissdale Street and Bennett Lane.

The purpose of the meeting is to plan recreational activities for the coming year, sign up new members, and fill vacant committee positions.

for the Virginia Beach Chapter of the I Can't Help It Club.

The club is attempting to organize meaningful recreational activities for handicapped persons. December's activity will be a Christmas Dance to be held on Dec. 11, at the Jaycees Building. This is one kind of recreation the club hopes to organize. The success of future activities depends upon community interest, support and participation.

All parents and families of mentally and physically handicapped persons in the Virginia Beach area are urged to attend this meeting. Other persons interested in helping handicapped people and wanting to volunteer their time or services are also invited.

Paris to become open-air classroom for VWC students

Paris, France, will become the open-air classroom for eight Virginia Wesleyan College students during the college's two-week short term in January.

Directing the traveling study group, one of several leaving this country during January, will be Dr. Patricia Sullivan, assistant professor of modern languages.

"The emphasis during our stay in Paris will be on her art, history and people," says Dr. Sullivan. "Among the historical and literary locations which will serve as open-air classrooms are Notre Dame, the Left Bank, Versailles, the Louvre, Cafe Procope and many others. The students will have ample time to explore the city's life style, by night and day, and will be encouraged to do so." While in Paris, the students will stay in student housing at the Sorbonne.

Participating in the course, "Paris-A Movable Feast," will be Joan Ferrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Ferrell of Portsmouth; Joy Ashenfelter, daughter of the Reverend and Mrs. John N. Ashenfelter of Portsmouth; Terri Luginbyhl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. Luginbyhl of Alexandria; Dave Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Reynolds of Alexandria; Janet Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Lineberry of Virginia Beach.

Anchorman Tony Sylvester brings wealth of experience to viewers

By STEVE STONE
SUN News Editor

The impression forms quickly, "This guy is a pro." It's not just his wide range of previous experience, but simply the relaxed, friendly, yet obviously professional attitude that Tony Sylvester puts forward convincing you in moments.

Sylvester came to Tidewater in 1974 when he assumed the news anchor position at WAVY-TV 10 in Portsmouth. He, set up his home with his wife, Eda, and their daughter in Virginia Beach where they reside today and by all indications plan to reside for many more years.

Sunspot

"I like it, I enjoy it," says Sylvester of living in the Beach and bringing Tidewater residents news every evening. And while he does plan to stay here a while he admits candidly, "I don't think any fellow can say that he would turn down a better position."

In his off-hours Sylvester likes to golf, read (mostly American History and current events), play the piano when he can and work in the home garden. "I am half of the green thumb, my wife is the better half."

He also travels to the family retreat on the outer banks at Kitty Hawk, N.C. where he enjoys the beach.

Sylvester, considered by many viewers to be the best Tidewater anchorman, is quickly recognized by many residents. Yet, like the Chancellors and Cronicles of the networks, local anchormen and on-camera reporters, most people know little about the man.

They don't know, for instance, that Tony Sylvester once sat in President Lyndon Johnson's lap. Well, he did. Not that may not sound like the most impressive scrapbook piece, but the spin, how many people do you know that have done something similar?

Actually, Sylvester's professional relationship with the former president began several years before, when working the White House beat for WTOP in Washington, D.C.

At the time President Johnson was filling out President Kennedy's unexpired term of office.

Johnson held informal news conferences on occasions which gave reporters more access to the president. But the conferences were sometimes announced with only a few hours notice.

When Sylvester stood up and asked about this practice at one last minute Saturday meeting, the president, "became furious and said he wouldn't answer that question." Sylvester remembers some hard times after that incident but was encouraged when his director, John Hays, rebuffed White House complaints and urged Sylvester, "To keep asking tough questions."

Later, Johnson would appoint Hays as American ambassador to Switzerland.

Bad feelings didn't last forever though. Following Johnson's Democratic nomination the president came up to Sylvester, put his arm on the man's shoulder and asked how he was doing. Months later while following and covering the newly elected president around, Sylvester had occasion to ride with him in a station wagon at the LBJ Ranch. "But the car was filled quickly with secret service and reporters and it didn't look like there would be room for me when Johnson said 'here, sit here,' indicating his lap, so I hid. It was a short ride, only a hundred yards, but I sat in his lap all the way!"

Mail goes through

Some other memorable moments in his broadcasting career include the evening a set started to collapse on the air in Washington and the time the mailman walked into his Jacksonville studios. "He walked over to the desk, plunked the mail down and said hello. Later he found out he was on TV!" Born in Glen Ridge, N.J., "many years ago," Sylvester was raised in Upper Mont Clair and Washington. He graduated from the D.C. public schools and attended Princeton where he graduated with the class of 1950.

It was in the capital that Sylvester began his news career, working for his father who was Washington Bureau Chief of the Newark (N.J.) News. He helped his dad in the summer and covered some stories learning the ropes early.

For a short time he worked with the St. Petersburg Times in Florida but that job was interrupted by a letter from Uncle Sam and Korea. The war was already in full-swing and Sylvester never saw action. But before ending his Army tour of duty the infantry rifleman became editor of the Ft. Knox Army newspaper.

Traveling Europe

After the Army, Sylvester decided to see the world and took an Italian ship to Europe. He supported himself with free-lance writing which appeared in the Washington Post, Louisville Courier-Journal, Chicago Tribune, New York Times, Army Times and numerous other publications.

He interviewed several noteworthy people during that year on the continent including a NATO chief who had once served with Rommel and Douglas Dillon, the American ambassador to Paris. It was during that Paris interview that Sylvester met another young man working his way up the ladder of success; the ambassador's press attache, a man by the name of Benjamin C. Bradlee who would later be executive editor of the Washington Post during the rise and fall of the Nixon White House.

The years that followed saw numerous jobs and new experiences for Sylvester. Spending most of his time in the south he gained more knowledge and experience including his first network job with CBS. In 1960 he began the longest segment of his career, nine years with WTOP. While covering the Kennedy and Johnson administrations he won three Emmys, the television equivalent of the Oscar, for his anchoring of the 6 and 11 p.m. newscasts for WTOP.

He served on the board of governors of the National Press Club and held office within the club.

Missed broadcasting

Later Sylvester took on a public relations job with RCA's corporate staff, but broadcasting was in his blood. "I missed the immediacy of the news," he says. So when word of an opening at WAVY reached him, he won himself the job.

Today, Sylvester anchors the 6 and 11 news as well as doing a headline program at 5:30 and 10 p.m. and a ten minute pre-recorded news summary for airing prior to station sign-off in the early morning hours.

He comes to work at about 4 p.m. each day to begin sitting through the program which others have begun organizing for him. He'll follow the news director's program at 6 p.m. and then have his own program for 11 p.m. which will incorporate items from the 6:30 NBC Nightly News.

The newscroom is small and the desks are old, but desks don't make news. The entire staff works well together and the atmosphere is relaxed. In the studio where Sylvester joins weatherman Mark Young and sportscaster Joe Rubin there is not the "don't flinch a muscle" attitude that one might find and expect in other similar situations.

While jokes and comment on news items are exchanged during breaks in the show, the floor director always keeps everyone's mind on the job at hand.

Sometimes there are pranks in the WAVY studios. Most recently, a toy rubber chicken was presented to Sylvester during the 6 p.m. show on Thanksgiving. At 11 p.m. he thought he was the victim of another prank when Mark Young showed up with a roast duck, but it turned out to be real. "When we started taping the 2 a.m. news program my mouth was filled with duck and, needless to say, we had to start over."

His delivery is smooth but not fast allowing listeners to "get the story". He works to make his audience comfortable.

After his show at six, Sylvester trots down the three flights of stairs to the newscroom where he grabs a sandwich prior to reviewing at 7 p.m. "feed" (broadcast) of the Nightly News from NBC. (The network sends the show out twice, live at 6:30 and a tape at 7 p.m. for stations not using the earlier feed.)

Newsmen on the news

Sylvester feels that the most important part of his job is to "understand the responsibility of reporting accurately and honestly, and as impartially as humanely possible, the significant events of each day."

Sylvester says that a newsmen must know the "measure of impact an event has or will have on other's lives. That's where news judgment comes in. As a news director he feels his job is making decisions, usually quick decisions, on the meaning or impact of an event or its significance."

Can television news provide everything the public needs to know, or should they continue to read newspapers? "By all means read newspapers," says the anchorman. "The various news elements of the media are complementary. We are essentially a headline service with a third dimension. We are able to put the viewer in the scene to let him see the event himself without a middle-man."

"To be well informed one wants to read the newspapers and weekly news magazines which give the news perspective," says Sylvester. He sees the average story being best related to the audience by the public through a combination of news sources. People read of an upcoming event in newspapers, hear about it on radio, see it on TV and read about it in the next day's newspaper.

(With photos by Steve Stone)

Anchorman Tony Sylvester of Virginia Beach

Not enough done

As for efforts to expand national TV news, Sylvester feels that networks are not doing enough with the time they already have; that they spend too much time on too few stories.

Sylvester feels that programs such as "60 Minutes" on CBS are where the magazine and in depth stories belong. He also desires a stronger local news effort. "People in Tidewater don't care much about the price of corn in Iowa."

He sees the networks becoming more of a news service like the AP and UPJ wire services are now. He would like them to feed a larger selection of news items to local stations leaving them the decision of what goes and what doesn't. This is what Sylvester does when incoporating portions of the NBC news into his 11 p.m. show.

CATV Important

He also sees cable television as giving the American public many new opportunities in viewing news. He expects that some channels will simply be all-news or all-sport market reports at all-sports and all-weather. But he stresses that those in charge of CATV have enormous power in establishing and running such a system and he advises subscribers to choose their service carefully.

"No one thought the telephone would be important at first... now they feel the same about cable TV."

He has a great deal of experience, he knows his job, but some may still wonder if he doesn't get just a little nervous sometimes under the spots, when the red light on the camera blinks on. "Not nervous, but I do get 'keyed up', someone once said that 'good' broadcaster goes on the air without perspiration on his hands." Sylvester presumably goes on with his hands a little damp, because he is good.

Handicapped concern Canada

State Senator A. Joe Canada, Jr., (R-Virginia Beach), said last week that the recent presidential election presented several problems for handicapped people. There were long lines and no parking places for handicapped people to get to polls.

Canada said, "We should encourage people to vote and, therefore, I am having a bill drafted which calls for a study of this problem so we can ensure that handicapped people will have a place to park close to polling places, and, further, to ensure they will not be forced to wait in long lines in order to vote."

We want to encourage all people to vote and we should do everything we can to ensure they will be able to exercise their privilege and right.

Also, the study would look into ways to ensure that the tremendous long lines we experienced this time will not be present in the future and that measures can be taken to ensure a more swift way to vote.

Long lines are very discouraging to people, and I saw many people wait in line for several hours to vote and I quite a few people would find they could no longer endure the weather and went home without voting.

Football certainly proved to be exceptionally competitive in the first year of the Beach District, and there is no reason to believe that basketball should be otherwise.

2 teams to Regionals

While in the Eastern District, Beach teams were generally dominated by their Norfolk-based foes, but now don't have to worry about them, as the Beach will now send two teams to the post-season tournament.

When pressured to pick the Beach's top team this year, no one would select his own team, but some were just being smug. There are some good teams, and their coaches know it. But as in football last season, being a pre-season favorite means virtually nothing. And so, on to basketball season!

Girl scores 3,475 points

By BLAIR THURMAN
SUN Sports Editor

"I can't say she's not a one-man-show," said Larry Riggs, "because she is. What she isn't, is a ball boy."

Riggs, coach of the Plaza Patriots, a girls basketball team in the Virginia Beach Recreation League, was talking about Kathy Lokie, a phenomenal front-court ace who has scored over 3,000 points as a Patriot.

"That's more points than any girl ever scored in Tidewater," said Riggs, "even though she gives up a lot of good shots to let someone else score. I haven't traveled around the country, but from what I've seen, she's by far the best around here."

The statistics bear him out. 14-year-old, red-haired, and full of giggles when she's not wearing out nets, Kathy (she's 5-10 and wishes she was 6-2 so she'd be better) scored more points by herself than all the other teams in the league (except the Plaza Wipeouts) scored all year.

Kathy averaged 32.3 points per game, five times scoring over 40 points. But she's more than just a great scoring machine. Her overall play is consistently outstanding. She has pulled down as many as 30 rebounds in a single game, has had 15 steals in one contest, and blocks anywhere from two to seven shots a game.

In fact, she claims to enjoy playing defense more than offense, although, "I get my kicks from tipping in the ball. She gets her share of tip-ins, but to assume that Kathy just takes advantage of her height inside to score easy points, would be wrong. Most of her baskets come from the 20-foot range.

"She has the prettiest jump shot I've ever seen," enthused Riggs. "It's unusual to see a girl shoot like she does."

Where did she learn her jump shot? "Mr. Riggs taught it to me," explained Kathy.

Besides basketball, which is far-and-away her favorite sport, Kathy excels in softball, having played every position but catcher and being last year's runner-up in the MVP voting for the Patriots, volleyball, in which she possesses a devastating spike, and track and field. "Kathy would be a great gymnast too," said Riggs, "but gymnastics come at the same time basketball does."

Kathy also plans on playing soccer this year in school.

Obviously, high school basketball figures in Kathy's future. Beyond that? Kathy has her mind made up. "I'm going to play for Old Dominion."

That should be good news for ODU coach Pam Parsons, who coached Kathy in camp last summer.

Kathy's three-year career as a Patriot is over, but she has three city championships under her belt. Now she is playing for the Plaza Jr. High team, and is looking for a big year.

Kathy's three-year point total was 3,475, and she hauled down 3,046 rebounds. Riggs, who says her attitude is as good as her playing, sees her a future Olympian. Look out Moscow!

Pats tough

When Beach coaches are asked who will win the district this year, they invariably begin by saying, "Well, First Colonial has Guy Morgan..."

Morgan, the Patriots' 6-7 center, shot 58 percent from the floor last year at a sophomore, scored 16 points per game and hauled in 12 rebounds per contest. And he is growing. "Guy will be 6-9 or 6-10," said his coach, Alton Hill, who is glad to have him.

Besides Morgan, the Patriots have Ron Zollicoffer, back for his third year as a starter. Zollicoffer stands 6-2, and is doing well after playing football last season, according to Hill. "He is our swing man," said Hill. "He jumps so well we don't mind using him in the front court. He's also our best defensive player, so we put him on the other team's best player."

6-4 John Magruder, "a real good outside shooter," will also play up front.

At guard, Hill is as rich as the Rockefeller. Back from last year are Danny Mason and Keith Ford, both of whom could do the job this year. But out of the sky fell two transfer students, Mike Kerley and David Moore, who started for their teams last year, to give Hill tremendous depth.

Also expected to get in some game time is Rusty Onalder, a 6-1 sophomore up from the jayves last year.

The Patriots went 9-1 against Beach teams last year, and hope to continue to dominate, now that the Beach has its own district. But Hill is quick to point out that competition will remain stiff, and that there are other good teams to watch. And watch First Colonial's coach, Alton Hill, who is

Cox to work on inside game

Cox coach George Onko says that inexperience and lack of depth are the main problems with his basketball team this year, but feels that if he can just work out the "rough spots" they will be competitive.

The Falcons' second game of the season takes them to First Colonial, which figures to be a Beach powerhouse. "It sure would give us confidence to beat them," said Onko.

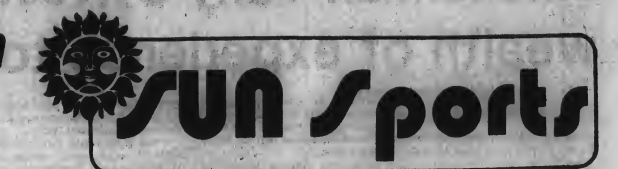

His team has only two starters back from last year's squad, and both will start again. James Goss, a 6-0 senior at forward and Reginald Garrett, a 6-4 junior center, are the boys with experience.

Starting with him will be Kenny Cornick, a 5-10 senior point guard, William Gibbs, a 6-2 forward, and Steve Gordon, who at 6-4 gives Onko a third starting forward.

Onko plans on pressing as much as possible, and to do that, a second team is necessary to give the starters a breather. The second group of scrappers looks like this: John Swings, 5-10, William Tyler, 5-11 and 5-10 James McClenahan at guards, 6-1 Leslie William at forward and 6-0 Robert Hill, also at forward.

Onko's main concern is his team's inside game, which with three forwards, is crucial. "We have got to start playing stronger inside," he said. Onko also believes that starting off on the right foot would do wonders for the boys, but they can't afford to lose any confidence.

From star to coach

Anthony has done it all

By BOBBY RECKLING
SUN Contributor

This story started somewhere in New York City. On Manhattan Island to be exact. The story is about the man behind Princess Anne basketball, Leo Anthony.

The well-traveled Anthony is now entering his sixth year at Princess Anne and has recorded over a hundred wins, just at P.A. After graduating from Grassy High School, I had no idea that I wanted to go into coaching. It all happened so fast," said Anthony.

"My parents came over from Cyprus and moved to Manhattan. I was just like a normal kid there, playing basketball and stickball on the playgrounds. I went to P.S. #136. In those days, it was even in a gang. But so was everyone else. The name of the game was SURVIVAL and everybody had to play. My father was in the restaurant business and he thought it would be easier to get started in Virginia, so we had to move. My brother and I didn't want to leave, but I'm glad we did."

Athletic family

The coal-black haired Anthony looks just like he came from New York City. He also comes from a very athletic family. His brother played ball for the New York Yankees. Upon his arrival in Norfolk during the ninth grade, the younger Leo played on the Grassy High Schools varsity basketball and basketball teams for four years.

Anthony was coached by "Lefty" Driscoll, who is presently at the helm of the University of Maryland. In Anthony's senior year at Grassy, his accomplishments included selection as a high school All-American and he led the state in scoring. After his graduation at Grassy, he opted for a scholarship at Old Dominion University. For the four years, Anthony scored 2,181 points and had a career average of 26 points per game. He ended his college career as the third highest scorer in the state's history. His jersey has since been retired and can be viewed at the ODU fieldhouse.

Went pro

After graduating from ODU, a more developed Anthony had his sights on pro ball. He was drafted by the Detroit Pistons of the National Basketball Association (NBA) and the Washington Capitals of the now defunct American Basketball League (ABL). "I thought I would have had a better chance in the ABL so I tried out for the Caps and made the team; but, after a few exhibitions, the league folded, and I was out of a job," commented Anthony.

"I had just gotten married and there turned out to be an opening at Grassy for a coach so I took the job. But it turned out to be more complicated than I thought. I ended up coaching JV at Grassy but teaching at Norview. I once had to coach against my own students. We beat them by the way." His record at Grassy was a very credible 40-10.

Coached many

Anthony doesn't hesitate to discuss some of the players he coached. "I have coached my share of people, no one who made it in pro ball though. Among those are some prominent men now; doctors, lawyers, men high in the business world, and on the other end of the ladder, two of my boys are now in prison."

After brief coaching stints at Maury and Norfolk Academies, Anthony arrived at Princess Anne where he is currently teaching and coaching the basketball and golf teams. His golf team has already won two state titles.

Future?

What's in store for this versatile student of the game for the future? "I could have accepted a college position, but I get more satisfaction out of training and disciplining boys than working with finished products. I am happy where I am."

Just think, it all started on the playgrounds of Manhattan.

Cavaliers to offer new look; snazzy uniforms and ability

Don't be surprised if the Princess Anne band spends all its time playing the "The Stars and Stripes Forever." If nothing else, the Cavaliers will offer a patriotic look.

Cav coach Leo Anthony explained, "We're got new red, white and blue uniforms this year, and our socks have stars on them like in the Olympics, only ours have more stars. I told the boys that every time people come into the gym, they'll have to stand up and cheer."

They should have more than fancy uniforms to cheer about, although the patriotic theme will carry over into Anthony's strategy this year. The Cavaliers will be divided into three separate squads, any of which can be turned loose against unsuspecting opponents, with what Anthony hopes is devastating effectiveness. Each team is designated by a color. If it takes you more than three guesses to pick those colors, never look Uncle Sam in the eye again.

Anthony's first team, or "white" team, will be anchored by junior forward Scott Alley. The 6-4 Alley is the only returning letterman from last year's team that has game experience. According to Anthony, Alley hasn't come around yet this year, and is capable of playing much better ball.

Anthony is hoping that Jimmy DiMarco, quarterback on the football team, will recover from a knee injury in time to lead the roundballers from the guard position. "Knowing Jimmy," said Anthony, "he'll be ready."

Until then, the white team will consist of Alley, Russel Wood, who Anthony says has improved greatly, Charles Mann, trash off the football team, sophomores Brett Williams and center Larry Eare.

The "red" team will consist of Marvin Williams, who Anthony says is the best shooter on the team and Glen Carter, a good defensive player, at guards; Joe Shorter at center and Eddie Meyer and Cookie McCoy at forwards.

The "blue" team will feature Richard Gerloff and Brian Allard at guards. Mike Sharkey at center, who stands 6-8, and a couple of tall forwards in David Shebberse and Craig Jackson, who stand 6-5 and 6-7 respectively.

"I'll have tall lineups, short ones, fast ones and slow ones," said Anthony, who expects all three teams to see plenty of playing time. The only problem is the kids need game experience. I feel we can compete with anyone at the Beach, and that by the District Tournament, we'll be in shape.

Eastern stars win 8th Charity Bowl

The Eastern District alumni all-stars overcame old age and stubborn South-eastern defense on Thanksgiving day to win the 8th Annual Charity Bowl, 4-7.

The stars of days gone by in Tidewater showed that they can still play as hard as ever, using crunching tackling and bruising blocking throughout the contest.

The game's winning score came in the third period, when the Eastern stars scored a safety. Until then, the Southeastern stars had been clinging to a 7-4 lead, built when Jerry Zollars (Western Branch, 1975) hit running back Lee Thorne (Mannor, 1975) with a screen pass.

Thorne galloped 78 yards for the touchdown. Ray Potter (Oscar Smith, 1974) kicked the extra-point.

The game, played at Union-Kempville field in Virginia Beach, was lightened when Lee Fleischer (Manny 1974) scored a two-yard touchdown near the end of the first half. The conversion attempt failed, but Fleischer was voted the game's outstanding offensive player.

John Roberts, a Deep Creek Creek grad in 1962, was voted the game's top defensive player.

The proceeds of the Charity Bowl go to the joy fund.

Beach hunter bags prize 10-point buck

"Very satisfying" was the exclamation by Robert J. McCartney of Virginia Beach after he bagged a 22-pound, ten-point buck at the Navy's Northwest Communications Station in Chesapeake.

The prize buck, which dressed out to 175 pounds, was taken like deer hunters always dream: close, quick and easy. Longtime area hunters say the buck was the largest they've even taken to 40 or 50 years.

McCartney, a senior chief petty officer stationed at the Norfolk Naval Air Station, was on a stand in the station's wilderness area waiting for the dogs to finish out a deer. He had just left the stand on his way to lunch when he heard some rustling in the thick brush nearby. Expecting to see a dog or another hunter, he was surprised to see the large buck spring out of the woods about 30-35 yards away.

Chief McCartney knocked the deer down with his first shot and then approached and fired another round to kill the struggling deer.

"I knew he had a large rack, but I don't think he would be this big," said McCartney when he and fellow hunters weighed it in.

Northwest's Game Warden Ron Travis and Leon Parker, who has hunted the area for over 40 years, said the deer is the biggest they've seen or heard of shot in that area of Chesapeake and North Carolina.

Stationed here in Tidewater only two years, McCartney now has a freer hall of venison at his home at 4944 Whitman Lane.

The Northwest government reservation is open to all hunters, but game warden Travis says each hunter must have an appropriate state license and completed the NRA hunter's safety course.

Travis reports 23 deer have been bagged on the reservation so far this season.

The Eastern Virginia deer season ended Nov. 30, but hunters with North Carolina licenses may hunt on the North Carolina portion of the reservation until Jan. 1. For reservations, call Travis at Northwest, 421-2141.

Paphites wins VISA award

Two Virginia Wesleyan College soccer players have been selected for post-season honors by the Virginia Intercollegiate Soccer Association, according to Blue Marlin coach William W. Davis.

Named to the VISA Tidewater Division III All-Star Team were junior back Bobby Jacobs, Millford, Delaware, and junior forward Tassos Paphites, Virginia Beach. Jacobs is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest V. Jacobs. Paphites is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Paphites.

Paphites led the offensive thrust of the Blue Marlin. He was the squad's leading scorer with 13 goals, 4 assists and 72 shots on goal. In Conference competition, the Blue Marlin scored 30 goals to their opponents' 4. Jacobs was a defensive standout on a Blue Marlin squad that took the Dile Conference Crown with a 7-0 record. The "No-Gol" defense shut out three Conference opponents and allowed only one goal each from the remaining four. This is Jacobs' second appearance on a VISA All-Star squad.

Chiefs feature youth

"We're young." That is how Kempville coach Bill Cochran assesses the Chiefs this year. "We have no returning starters back either. We are a lot of new faces, and I'm trying to teach them how to play ball my way."

An important member of Cochran's youth brigade is sophomore David Hunsbun, who stands 6-4 and weighs 240 pounds. "Dave had both feet operated on last summer though," said Cochran. "and he was laid up for a while. He is not in great physical condition yet, and it is hard to tell when he will be at full strength. He's intelligent and hard working, and can score inside."

Another sophomore starter is Freddie Gilchrist, a 5-10 point guard, who is real quick and penetrates well, according to Cochran.

The Chiefs will start two juniors, Cameron Moore, a 6-4 forward who Cochran says, "is the most improved player I've got," and Mike Brown, a 6-1 guard. Brown led the jayvees in scoring last year.

The lone senior starter on the team is Chris Lowery, who may appear too small at 6-1 to play forward, but was last year's state indoor high jump champion.

Other key players are Harry Bullock, described by Cochran as the best athlete on the team, and who will see plenty of playing time, due to his excellent passing and ball control. He needs to learn more defense, said his forward, Tommy Becalis, a 6-10 guard, Mike Downs, a 6-2 swing man, Shady Risher, a 6-1 front court man and Glen Verda, a 5-11 guard should all see time on the court.

The team is so young, that it needs time to gain experience. "I think we'll be a good team later though," said Cochran. "The attitude on the team is good, and they are working hard. We'll be competitive."

Marlins may be the best; bet your bottom Dollar

Johnny Dollar is Bayside's new basketball coach, coming up from the junior high to lead the varsity. "We're not anticipating any problems, except there is a little more pressure here," said Dollar. Dollar shouldn't have too many problems, having lost only one starter from last year's team. Besides, he coached eight of the boys while in junior high so there was no time wasted in getting acquainted.

According to Dollar, only two boys have clinched starting roles for the Marlins, Norman Billings and a Pat Tyler. Billings stands 6-4 and plays center, while Tyler is a 6-2 forward. Both are seniors.

Wilbur Whiffell probably will win a starting position at forward. He is 6-2.

Competition for the guard spots is tough, with seniors Doug Fournier, Jerry Little and Brian Chase, and junior Larry Jeffries all vying for playing time.

Matt Rance, a 6-4 forward also figures to help the Marlins this year.

One of the keys to the Marlins season lies with Billings, the center. "Norman is only 6-4, but he plays taller," said Dollar. "He has long arms and can really jump."

"We have some football players on the team," said Dollar, "and they should help us out underneath. They're real strong."

"We have a quick team, we'll run if we can, but we'll play ball control if we have to."

They probably won't have to much. Bayside will be strong.

Also seeing action will be Henry Dorsey at point guard and Vernon Tyler and Prince Conely at the other guard position.

"We have lots of quickness and speed," Moore said. "How well we play defense will make what kind of year we have. But as of now, we're not playing good enough defense."

Other players who figure in Kellam's plans are Greg Strunge, a 6-4 junior forward, Ricky Summerville, a 5-9 senior guard, Bobby Dorgyn, a 6-1 senior forward, and Adrian Elliott, a 6-1 junior forward.

One reason is Jimmy Butts, the only returning starter from last year's team. "Jimmy should be one of the better guards in the district," said Moore of his backcourt ace. "He is the team leader, and I'm hoping he'll carry the scoring load this season."

Ricky Lewis, a 6-3 junior center, saw action last year, and will try to help the Knights improve.

Moore was at Princess Anne last year, and will try

Traces of Bogart at Oasis

By DEBORAH L. LOTT

SUN Entertainment Writer

Traces of Bogart's Casablanca together with today's chic scene come together at Norfolk's new "in" place to dine - the Oasis.

Downtown dining has returned to Tidewater in the gracious manner our grandparents enjoyed in days past. The potted palms, low hanging propeller fans and overstuffed furniture in the atrium of 112 College Place set a tropical scene totally unrespected from the traditional architecture found outside.

Lunchtime caters to a crowd of three-piece suits and tattered shopping bags, all enjoying the abundance of atmosphere, unique Arabic design menu and mellow sounds of Billie Holiday in the background.

Quiches and crepes of the day are features on the lunch menu—for more-than-reasonable prices. Seated upon a 15 foot antique print sofa and surrounded by wall-size antique portraits, I was served a cool scoop of sherbet and instructed to eat it so as to cleanse my palate before dining. Eat it I did, and may I say my palate has never been cleaner!

My curiosity was aroused by the listing of "Hummus," as an appetizer. "Hummus," as you may know, is a black substance formed as a result of decayed leaves and other vegetable matter. This didn't sound appetizing, and it wasn't at all what I found on my plate. The pate made from chickpeas, olive oil and spices was deliciously different from anything I've ever tasted. Try it — you'll see what I mean by different!

Ready for an appetizer extraordinaire? Ask for the half peach with ham mousse for $2.75. It's a change of pace that will please the palate. A Waldorf salad, steamed vegetable and rice "Oasis" are served with all dinner entrees. That particular night I had my favorite on the menu, the Ethiopian Artichoke stuffed with Italian sausage, cheese and bread crumbs.

I don't know if the fact that I love artichokes or the tasty blend of spices and that makes that particular dish something I order time and time again when dining at the Oasis. I think it's both.

If you're in the mood for a traditional North African meat and chicken dish, try the "Cous-Cous." It's delicious, and similar to chicken in taste.

How's a breast of chicken stuffed with caviar sound? Nowhere else but the Oasis will you find such entrees.

For those who dare to stay out after the strike of 12:00 midnight the Oasis offers a Midnight menu featuring an assortment of their delicious omelettes, quiches and snack platters guaranteed to satisfy that last attack of the munchies.

If you like jazz like I do, stop by the Oasis after the next concert at the Scope or Opera and enjoy the jazz supplied by Monk Alley.

Good jazz, good food and gracious dining in downtown Norfolk—something not to miss.

To higher water-sewer rates

Beachers voice opposition

By LEE CAHILL
SUN Public Affairs Writer

Virginia Beach citizens are not opposed to the city's proposed water and sewer construction program—but there is some disagreement as to how the goals should be accomplished.

One thing is certain: They are opposed to increased water and sewer rates. For three-and-a-half hours Monday afternoon, a trail of 23 citizens, backed up by a full house in the Council Chambers, approached City Council to present their views.

$ It's your money

Council decided to delay any action until next week's meeting to give members time to digest the hours of discussion. At that time, they may appoint a Council committee or a combination Council-citizens committee to study the matter and/or defer action on the rate increases for 90 days, as suggested by some of the speakers.

It seems highly unlikely that any action on increasing rates will be taken then.

Councilwoman Meyers Oberndorf wants the Council to schedule another public hearing, but at night, so that more citizens can be heard. Mrs. Oberndorf also wants the city to study the possible purchase of private utility companies.

C.G. Harris, a member of the Tide-water Builders Association and a chairman of the TBA Apartment Council, said that the rate increases will mean a real hike of $10 a month, often for people least able to afford it.

He said the Council represents 43 apartment communities in Virginia Beach with 10,000 units. He suggested a delay of 90 days and asked that Council appoint a study committee consisting of Council members, administrators, citizens and the groups which will be most affected by the price increase, such as the TBA.

Harris said he is "not opposed to expansion for the benefit of all citizens if taxed equitably, but opposed to the method this ordinance has been pushed through without concern."

The rate increases now before Council are necessary, City Manager George L. Hasbary said, to give the city "cover," a kind of guaranteed income, to qualify for the sale of $50 million in revenue bonds over the next five years to finance sewer and water expansion in existing neighborhoods.

Hasbary said such a "cover" is not required for the sale of general obligation bonds which carry a lower interest rate. The city is limited by the General Assembly in the amount of general obligation bonds it can sell to $10 million a year.

The city manager pointed out that costs for water and sewer alone are anticipated to be $10 million a year for the next five years and that schools, roads, recreational facilities and municipal buildings that are needed for the city will be greater than $10 million a year.

The only recourse the city has for more flexibility in financing is through revenue bonds, and since revenue bonds can be used only in cases where revenue is received, water and sewer quality, Hasbary said.

Among alternatives suggested by citizens were:

--A referendum which would give the city power to sell general obligation bonds outside of the state's bonding limitations.

--A research in other sources of financing, such as federal funds.

--A realignment of priorities, mainly cutting back capital improvements and concentrating on water and sewer expansion.

Get into folk arts festival

Local craftsmen, here's your chance to put your name in lights and receive the recognition you deserve... plus make a little money.

The folks at the Virginia Beach department of parks and recreation are now making plans for their annual folk arts festival. The festival is scheduled for May 14 and 15 (rain dates May 21 and 22) at Princess Anne Park. The deadline for applying for an exhibit space is Jan. 21.

Elaine Phelps, recreation supervisor said last year about 75 craftsmen demonstrated their skills, and most of them were from outside the Virginia Beach and Tidewater areas. "There must be a lot of local people with hidden talents, and we would love to have them exhibit their trade and skills at the festival," said Ms. Phelps. In addition to displaying their talents at the festival, craftsmen also can sell or take orders for their crafts. Last year 8-10,000 people attended the two-day festival, and more are expected this year.

All applications to participate in the festival must be accompanied by four 35mm slides representative of your work. The application and slides will be reviewed by an acceptance committee. Notification of acceptance or refusal and return of the slides will be accomplished by Mar. 1.

Application forms may be obtained by calling or writing the Parks and Recreation Department, City of Virginia Beach, 4700 Recreation Drive, Rm 2345B. Ph: 497-4854.

Area economy? Optimistic!

By STEVE STONE
Special to the SUN

The November issue of Old Dominion University's Tidewater Economic Review, a publication devoted to the study of the regional economy, is out.

The report cited an improvement in the balance of leading economic indicators, specifically that 13 rose and 10 fell. Last month the 22 indicators were split in half, signaling a pause in recovery.

Tidewater's economy is still influenced by the slowing of the national economy's upturn, according to the report prepared by Joseph Pringle of the Center for Urban and Regional Research at ODU.

Of the 10 falling indicators this month, four dipped because of seasonal fluctuations. Decreases in total traffic at Norfolk International Airport, Hampton Roads Bridge-Tunnel and Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel are seasonal changes and do not reflect slowdowns in general economic activity.

The report also cited a sharp increase of coal dumping at the port where there was an increase in the net tonnage.

Two of the leading indicators, bank deposits and mean value of total building permits, did fall a significant amount, however.

The report also cites two strong increases in national leading economic indicators, new housing starts and capital expenditures, as showing a probable resumption of national recovery in four to six weeks according to Professor Duncan Tye.

In summary, the report says that Tidewater is in a good position to take advantage of any national gains in the months ahead.

'Topo' map of Beach good stocking stuffer

For an unusual Christmas gift, why not give a topographic map of Virginia Beach and surrounding Tidewater cities?

The Virginia Department of Conservation and Economic Development

(mineral resources division) is offering these topographic maps for sale, along with geologic guides. Cost of each topographic map is $1.30. Cost for geologic guides is $5.20.

Each topographic map portrays buildings, streams, lakes, forests, hills, roads, and city and county boundaries by colors and symbols. Most of these features are named. Each map, or "1:7.5 minute series quadrangle map" as it is called, covers about 60 square miles. It takes 206 of these to completely show the Commonwealth.

According to Dr. James L. Calver, commissioner of mineral resources and state geologist, "Topographic maps are an invaluable aid for all interested in the surface of a particular area, whether it be for scientific or recreational purposes."

In fact, over 250 different uses of these topographic maps have been listed by the state, among which are to determine where to vacation, fish, hunt or walk, especially for those who want to get away from the "beaten path."

Another useful gift for nature lovers, hikers, climbers and outdoor enthusiasts would be the new publication "Geology of the Shenandoah National Park." Cost: $5.20.

These and other maps and publications on the rocks, fossils, minerals and topographic features of Virginia are available from the Virginia Division of Mineral Resources, P.O. Box 2203, Charlottesville, Va. 22903.

A complete list of publications is provided free upon request. Orders should be placed soon for Christmas.

Stop the presses!

Printer picks pup

Lots of people have told us how successful our SUN Free Bees and classified ads are. Folks will often call to tell us they sold or gave away their item the same day the paper came out. That's how popular the SUN classified section is!

But last week, Mrs. Larry Hull beat 'em all--her Free Bee ad helped find a home for her pup before the paper even went to press!

Mrs. Hull, who lives in a townhouse apartment in Virginia Beach, found that her six-month old husky-shepherd cross was rapidly outgrowing the family quarters. So, she decided to give the pup away through a Virginia Beach SUN Free Bee.

Meanwhile, a Byerly Publications pressman in Franklin had been scoring the Free Bees every week, looking for a German shepherd ad section of your Byerly Publications community newspaper. Chances are, you'll find what you're looking for!

spotted Mrs. Hull's Free Bee, called her on the spot and made arrangements to pick up the dog the next day.

Needless to say, Mrs. Hull was delighted with the response; the pup, "Shannon," has a new home with kids and room to grow; and we have one more success story to share with you.

Why did Mrs. Hull turn to the SUN and its classified columns? Well, for one thing she knew another satisfied customer--her sister had found a new owner for a collie through the Free Bees not long ago!

The moral of our story is clear: If you want to reach your friends and neighbors down the street--to find a new home for a pet, to sell that unused TV, to rent a house or whatever--just turn to the popular classified ad section of your Byerly Publications community newspaper. Chances are, you'll find what you're looking for!

Medical jail funds okayed

The City of Virginia Beach has received approval for an additional $5,453 to help initiate a medical program at the city jail.

The money approval came from the Virginia Council on Criminal Justice and will be added to the $13,381 already approved for the program.

The money will be used to provide 24-hour, seven-day-a-week medical services to prisoners in the city jail.

The city has contributed $938 as its share of the medical program, making the total amount $17,780. The approval was a part of more than $145,700 in grant requests from local and state criminal justice systems in the Commonwealth.

Water and sewer rates proposed in the ordinance before City Council would increase the water rate from 22 cents per 1,000 gallons for an average annual bill of $59 up to one dollar per 1,000 gallons for an average annual bill of $72. Sewer rates would rise from $6 a quarter, or $24 a year, to $5 a month or $60 a year.

Harris also took issue with the report of the consulting firm of Buck, Seifert and Jost which performed a revenue bond study to help the city determine rates necessary to sell the bonds.

The report calculated the cost of sewer taps at $21.7 million for 5,790 taps, which comes to $3,200 a tap. But since the tap fee is $715 a tap, the remainder will be paid by all sewerage, including the people who are already on sewers. They will be "asked to bear the brunt."

Harris added that anticipated Federal Revenue Sharing Funds were not included in the city's budget as they had been in the past two years, overlooking an outside source of funding for water and sewer expansion. (Differences of opinion were expressed on whether the city could depend on the Congress appropriating the money.)

Harris also said the average cost figures submitted by the city are misleading. Apartment tenants who have paid for water and sewer through their rents, are being asked to pay again.

Harris also objected to the preferential treatment given hotels under the ordinance.

Herbert L. Kramer, a former president of the TBA and an apartment owner in Virginia Beach, pointed out that although it costs less to install water and sewer lines to apartments than to single family homes (higher density areas require fewer square feet of lines), the apartments are being charged the same rates as single family homes, while the hotel units are not.

Punctuating his talk with reams of figures, Kramer said that the apartments will be paying three times what the entire city is going to pay.

"You are robbing the Wickins to pay for water and sewer in the higher priced areas," Kramer said. (He referred to John Wickins, who preceded himself before Council and spoke on the hardships the rate increases will cause elderly people.)

"The management has made some concessions already," Wickins said, "but they won't be able to absorb this."

Hanbury had explained earlier that the debt retirement on water and sewer installation in previous years has been financed by bondholders who have been required to put in the water and sewer lines in their developments and in addition pay $150 a unit.

It was like "a small windfall," he said. For this reason, rates have not had to be increased. However, when building went into a decline during the recession, the city had to rely on existing recurring charges.

Kramer said he cannot see how the city can justify the increases for apartments where sewer and water lines are already installed and where the city's maintenance costs consist of $125 to replace the water meter every 50 years and where sewer lines have to be replaced every 50 years.

He added that he is a "little concerned that $3 million (of the water and sewer money) will be spent in 'Thoroughgood,'" a high income neighborhood where Kramer lives. The sewer problem, he said, doesn't have to be solved today, because it didn't develop in a day.

He also thought Council should expect revenue sharing funds. Also, the city should expect additional real estate taxes from higher appraisals on homes where water and sewer are being installed.

At the close of the hearing, Mrs. Oberdorfer remarked that in the years she's lived at the Beach, "this is the first time the home builders and the people have been on the same side that I noticed."

Arthur Riedel, representing the Homebased Civic League, said the city should not commit the city's youth and the elderly to the revenue bond debt. He said the city's recent purchases of the GEX and Millers department stores should have taken second priority. He also said he had been the city's planning to purchase the Princess Anne Theater, but none of the Council members or Hanbury knew anything about it. That rumor was quickly dismissed.

Arthur Cloninger said that some things like the Arts and Conference center could have waited.

P.W. Malpass of Kempville said that some provision should be made for people who have septic tanks. They should be given more time, he feels. Under the proposed ordinance, both water and sewer hookups would be mandatory within one year.

Conrad H. Reid, a Thoroughgood resident, said he had his own well and "I'm not at all interested in city water." He suggested the city look into federal funding.

F. Reid Ervin, chairman of the utilities and drainage committee of the North Virginia Beach Civic League, said that although he was originally in favor of the revenue bonds, he has changed his mind. The priorities the city has established, he said, are not the proper ones.

Ervin, a former city councilman said that when he supported the Capital Improvements Program in 1967, "I didn't know I was creating a monster." People are saying, he said, that if the city's money were spent wisely, there would be no need for revenue bonds.

He suggested that the city try to have its general obligation bond limits increased by the General Assembly, and if there is anyone in the General Assembly blocking the move, the people should be told about it.

Garland Isdell, president of the Council of Civic Organizations said "the average person doesn't feel they're spending money in the best ways."

Hanbury, who received some abuse during the afternoon as the architect of the plan, won some accolades from R.W. Chaplain, Beach motel and apartment owner, who said Hanbury "does a grand job." Chaplain blamed the Navy for escaping taxes by building its own housing units and operating its own stores.

He objected to criticism of the construction of the Arts and Conference Center, saying that "when we secede from the rest of the city, we will build it." He was referring to an announcement this week that a group of Virginia Beach Borough citizens want to secede from the city.

Calvin Spain, representing Princess Anne Utilities and the Aragona Utilities, private utility companies, pointed out that private utilities had been forbidden to expand because the city was considering buying them out. Private companies own two-thirds of the sewer lines in the city.

The city has to consider the problem of pollution, he added. Virginia Beach is being used by the oysterman folk pollution in the Lynnhaven and the private utilities also were used, although their case was dismissed.

"We've got a problem, and to say the (Federal) government funds will take care of it is irresponsible."

Sky diver drops in

During Sunday's services at Bay-side's Emmanuel Baptist Church, the sermon literally came from the heavens.

Because of the circumstances, the Sunday morning and afternoon services were moved to the ball field at Bay-side High School. There was a good reason.

Just before the beginning of each service, a red, white and blue parachute winged from the sky. The words "Jesus saves, yes even you" were emblazoned across the parachute.

It was the arrival of Fred Heyen-bruch, a national champion sky diver from Milwaukee, a special guest of Emmanuel Baptist Church. Mr. Heyenbruch free fell some 5,000 feet at 175 mph, opened his chute and landed on the ball field. All the time he talked to the gathered church crowd using a two-way radio and a P.A. system. After each landing Heyenbruch gave his testimony for Christ at the church's services.

Heyenbruch has appeared on national television and at several exhibitions across the country, each time with the same parachute. He travels every weekend coast to coast donating his time and free-falling exhibitions to fundamental Christian churches.

Van club sponsors Beach car wash, poker rally arrivals

A car wash and a poker rally for vans, motorcycles and cars are the two big events sponsored by the Four City Van Club to raise funds to give a needy family a merry Christmas.

Four City Van Club will hold their car/van wash this Saturday, Dec. 11, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Walt's London Bridge Smooch Station on Virginia Beach Boulevard. Because it's for a good cause, prices for a wash will be one dollar for cars and $2 for vans, 50 cents for interior cleaning.

The Poker Rally will be held Dec. 19, with starting point at King's parking lot in the London Bridge Shopping Center. A somewhat unusual type of rally, the "poker" part comes from each vehicle receiving a secret check-marks during the course of the rally. Trophies will go to three vehicles with the best poker hands and to one vehicle with the lowest poker hand.

Registration for the rally, which is open to vans, cars and motorcycles, is set for 11:30 a.m. at the shopping center. The first vehicle starts the rally at 12:30 p.m., with others leaving at two-minute intervals.

Proceeds from both events will go towards purchasing food, clothing and Christmas presents for a needy family which Four City Van is helping.

Four City Vans was formed four years ago, but became somewhat inactive. Last spring interest started growing again in the club, and in August members participated in a van show at Chincoteague, Va., which club president Bob Wilkinson said really got the club pulling together as a team. More rallies and shows are planned.

At their November meeting, Four City elected a new slate of officers. They are: Bob Wilkinson, president; Arlene Steina, secretary; Kay Wilkinson, treasurer; Dave Mallory, sergeant at arms; and Bonnie Barber, public relations.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Edward Gordon, daughter; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Edward Bowery, son; Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Edmond Cravener, son.

The second half, of a lighter nature, will include: "It's the Most Wonderful Time of the Year," "The Virgin Mary Had a Baby Boy," "December Child," "The Twelve Days After Christmas," "We Need a Little Christmas" and "Sing We Now of Christmas."

The latter, by Harry Simenone, is a colorful holiday program, consisting of carols, hymns, and secular songs of the season. Soloists for this work will be Joan Brechtelbauer and Ed Clarke, sopranos. Tickets are available in advance, from any of the chorus members, or at the door on the days of the performances. Prices are $2.50 for adults and $1.00 for students.

Holiday theme for civic chorus

The Virginia Beach Civic Chorus, under the direction of Walter Noona, will present its annual Christmas concert on Sunday, Dec. 12, at 2 p.m., on Monday, Dec. 13 at 8 p.m., at Plaza Junior High School, 3080 S. Lynnhaven Rd.

The concert this year is titled "Winter Celebration" and will again feature numbers of a festive nature as well as those of a more serious nature.

The first half of the program will include numbers by Latham, Randi, Pratorino, Vance and Frackencopol. Frackencopol's work, titled "Winter Celebrations," is cast in a number of movements which include the following elements: Secular celebrations, Hanukkah, Christmas, New Years and a plea for common faith for all men.

Scarves offered

The southeastern region of the Virginia Lung Association is offering for sale scarves repeating the design of the 1976 Christmas Seal.

"Christmas Seal Memories," theme of this year's seals, depict scenes of rural holiday observances since 1907 when the first seal was issued in the United States.

Emily Bissell, public health worker in Delaware, designed and had printed the first Christmas Seal in an effort to raise $300 to save a small tuberculosis sanatorium on the Brandywine River. The seals were enthusiastically used by the public, resulting in contributions of $3,000 and saving the TB hospital. Since then, Christmas Seals have been a holiday tradition.

Scarves may be purchased for $5 at the VLA southeastern regional office at 5349 E. Princess Anne Road in Norfolk, Va. 23502. For further information, telephone 855-3059.

In Chelsea

'76 home tour a success for Cape womans club

It was Christmas in the Country Dec. 1 and the setting was straight from colonial days.

The Cape Henry Women's Club of Virginia Beach held its 14th annual Christmas in the Country House Tour, and the house was the elegant home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Summa, 1809 Green Hill Rd., in the Chelsea section off Great Neck Road.

More than 750 people toured through the Summa's home, an exact but smaller replica of Gunston Hall in Fairfax, which is listed in Old Virginia Mansions. The Summa's home is furnished mostly with antiques and reproductions done by Princess Anne Antiques, plus family treasures and personal keepsakes.

The tour opened at 10 a.m. and closed at 5 p.m., with a candlelight tour that evening from 7 to 9 p.m.

Club members attired in handmade colonial costumes met guests and escorted them through the entry hall, parlor, library, dining room, kitchen and upstairs bedrooms and baths. Adorning the entry hall was a Christmas tree decorated with colonial Christmas decorations handmade by the women's club members.

As an added attraction, club members created Mrs. Summa's Kitchen with home baked Christmas goodies for sale, and a country store which sold Christmas wreaths, all occasion gifts and crafts and white elephants.

The Georgian style house was designed by Mr. Summa, including wide pine and octagonal brick floors, blown glass window panes and a cedar paneled sun room overlooking the water-front and swimming pool.

Mrs. Elbert B. Cox, president of the Cape Henry Women's Club, said this was the 14th year their club has sponsored a Christmas in the Country house tour, and they were very fortunate in being allowed to show the Summa's house for this year's tour.

Over conference center

Series of mistakes leads to Navy-city dispute

By LEE CARILL
SUN Public Affairs Writer

A mixup in maps-- a printer's error -- seems to be the culprit behind the recent controversy over the location of the Arts and Conference Center.

City Manager George L. Hanbury took some time at an informal session of Council Monday afternoon to set the record straight.

He had not tried to conceal any information at the special meeting last week when Council set the date for the $14 million bond sale, he said. Included among the capital improvements projects to be funded by the bonds is the Arts and Conference Center.

The Center is still a compatible use for the site, Hanbury said, so long as provision was made for sound attention devices. This is being done, but Capt. McCanna, who succeeded the former commander, Capt. W. D. Knutson, a few months ago, did not know this.

He also didn't know the city was using the wrong set of maps.

Hanbury said "Capt. McCanna was right and I was right, and I don't know that anybody was trying to mislead this Council. It was my feeling the map was correct."

It wasn't until Nov. 19 that Planning Director Robert J. Scott was informed of discrepancies in the maps by Cdr. William Chin, Oceana public works officer. But there were no details on what the discrepancies were. For the remainder of the week, the issue was aired by the press before Hanbury had time to meet with McCanna.

Not until Monday morning was Scott aware of how the Navy arrived at establishing the crash zone area. This is the area within 11,000 feet of the runways.

McCanna regretted the error and said there appeared to be a complete lack of cooperation between Chin and Knutson. He said he brought the matter up because he is required to do so.

"Regrettably," he said, he had "no information as to the extent the architects have looked into compensating for the noise."

Councilman John Baum said he is concerned about the establishment of crash zones which "amounts to an extension of the Navy's boundaries into other people's real estate interests. He suggested the property owners be compensated in fees or easements.

"The publicity has put the city needlessly on the offensive."

Councilman Robert R. Cromwell said that "in my 10 years on the Council, we always enjoyed excellent relations with the Navy. I can't believe there's this lack of cooperation."

McCanna said he didn't know about the sound devices until last Friday. Mayor Clarence Holland said that the Arts and Conference Center had been discussed in all public meetings, and Capt. Knutson had served on the Virginia Beach Tomorrow Committee where the Center was discussed, and "nothing of this nature was ever brought to light."

Capt. McCanna said that Capt. Knutson "flatly stated" that he was unaware of the recent controversy site was that far along.

In other actions, Council:

- Called a special meeting for Dec. 9 to receive bids on the $1 million general obligation bonds.
- Denied the petition of Joseph J. Lawler, co-executor of the Estate of Beatrice Hawkins for a zoning change from Residential to Community Business on 8.5 acres located near the intersection of Newtown Road and Haywood Road. Also denied a petition for a Conditional Use Permit for a mini-warehouse to be constructed on the property.

Adjoining property owners objected and maintained that single-family homes should be built on the property to conform with the neighborhood. The petitioners had requested referral to the Planning Commission for rezoning to R-3 for townhouses.

-Deferred action on returning to Mr. and Mrs. Jack H. Harris property which they had dedicated to the property to the Planning Commission for rezoning to R-3 for townhouses.

-Deferred action on returning to Mr. and Mrs. Jack H. Harris property which they had dedicated to the property to the Planning Commission for rezoning to R-3 for townhouses.

Parents, Scouts, and the committee members were among those receiving lessons on milking the cow. The majority, did well, but when it came down to a real good sport, the award would have to go to Father Bob Newland, who stated that our cow was sure different from any that he had tried to milk before.

Father Newland, Pack 447 salutes you!

Other awards given after the contest were for the best den yell's Grand Elementary School to Pembroke Mall, which went to Den 2. Delicate jewelry, made from horse shoe nails was made and placed on display by Peter Powley.

Saturday, Nov. 20, the Webelos Dens combined and held from King's Grant Elementary School to Pembroke Mall, with steps along the way for nature studies and pictures. Accompanying the boys, were their leaders, Bill Galway and William Divivy.

Kristine Hohesimer, 1 1/2, lives in a world of drawing, music, cats, dogs and rabbits, and she loves to pretend. Right now, Kristine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hohesimer, considers herself to be Mrs. Gray, because last year she and her cat Little Gray were married in a proper ceremony, vied down to the runway made of toilet paper. This year she is telling pet rabbit that she and Little Gray are celebrating their first anniversary.

High back wooden booths afford privacy while dining

The best in food and ale found at the Rustic Nail

By DEBORAH LOLI
SUN Entertainment writer

Last week I made a startling discovery. To get an inexpensive steak (with the option of ordering any one of several delicious seafood delicacies), you don't have to visit those chain restaurants with their grating atmosphere and impersonality.

All you have to do is visit the Rustic Nail, where Tommy Pierce's dream of building a cozy restaurant--but completely out of natural woods--came true last March.

The custom built all wood interior is impressive, however it is not the initial attention-grabber. As the first-time guest enters the Rustic Nail, he is immediately aware that the carpet he is standing on is "sinkable" -- almost soft enough to swim in. This comes the visual stimulation of seeing an all-wood eatery in a dimly-lit setting. It's all very conducive to eating and drinking in manner of kings. There are private booths for those who prefer private dining alone, and trestle tables long enough to conjure up images of King Arthur for those who come with a group.

In addition to daily specials offered to the lunchtime crowd, the Rustic Nail offers a marinated hunk of steak served with French fries, salad, and roll for a ridiculously low $2.25. I have a personal attachment to the Rustic Burger, a fourth of a pound of lean ground beef, American cheese, breaded and rolled ham, Bermuda onion, and their own special sauce served on a Kaiser roll. You know you've eaten after putting -- away this man-size sandwich.

The setting, striking as it is, has to take a back seat (wooden, of course) to the food. "When you have a small menu, everything has to be just right," says Rustic Nail manager, "Beever." But that's just the case. There are only two steaks offered, but all that does is make a potentially difficult decision somewhat easier. The headliner is a 12-ounce New York strip, which should satisfy any connoisseur of tasty beef. The competition is an 8-ounce skirt steak bathed in Mr. Pierce's own special marinating sauce. It offers a unique taste that will undoubtedly bring you back for more.

That is, of course, if you didn't try any of the seafood delicacies that bring in people who favor fruit of the sea.

The Rustic Nail also offers mixed drinks at reasonable prices and has become an after-work lounge for those who wish to unwind with friends before heading home. I would be hard-pressed to name another pub with the same pleasant blend of warmth and congeniality. Rustic Nail II, offering more of the same good food, friendly service and cozy atmosphere, will be opening sometime in January. So keep an eye out for more of the same! You can't get too much of a good thing!

Little hope seen for Council's state requests

By LEE CHAMBLISS
SUN Public Affairs Writer

Virginia Beach representatives to the General Assembly will go to Richmond next month with little hope of accomplishing any legislative changes for the Beach which will cost the state money.

But Virginia Beach officials and administrators are leaving no stone unturned to make their needs and wishes known to the General Assembly. Last Tuesday City Council presented its list of 16 legislative proposals to some of the Beach representatives for preview of the city's possible track record.

State Sen. Stanley Walker, who represents Norfolk as well as a portion of Virginia Beach, said bluntly, "There's not a chance to have this recommendation passed," of the Beach proposal to have the state fund the standards of quality in education which it mandates.

"We're going into this session where we are going to make choices."

He added, however, that some effort might be made to change or cut back the standards of quality so that cities won't have to spend quite so much. Just coming up to the standards next year will cost the city $23,000, Dr. F. E. Brickell, superintendent of schools, said.

Neither the elected state legislators nor the elected local officials want to be placed in a position where they would have to risk the wrath of the electorate by increasing taxes.

The state has the advantage, however, because the General Assembly can prescribe standards of quality and leave it up to the localities to figure out ways to meet them.

City Manager George L. Hanbury said the state should provide for its mandated programs or at least lift the bonding restrictions localities face.

Del. Bernard Barrow pointed out that the tax money comes from the same source and that "shifting the burden doesn't address the problem of taxation."

Barrow said several approaches to the problem include new funding from the state, additional sources of revenue for the localities (such as the surtax), and a change in the standards of quality without minimizing them.

Virginia Beach would also like to see a surtax collected at the place of residence (a local income tax) but without the provision that the real estate tax rate should be at least one dollar per $100 evaluation. The Beach's is now 77 cents per $100 evaluation.

Barrow said this measure being seriously considered by the finance committee, but some "see it as a threat to state sources of revenue."

Of the city's proposals that the net sales tax revenue to operate free public schools be based in the average daily membership of the school divisions of each county and city, Del. Glenn McClanahan said, "This is one we'll support strongly."

Dr. Brickell said he is for spending money where the students are, "not for those standing on street corners." The tax is now distributed on the basis of the number of school-aged students who live in a locality according to the original school census. Brickell said he knows of one locality which is receiving funds for 20,000 more students than it has.

In another tax distribution matter, Virginia Beach wants the state to distribute the net profits from the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board to be based on the latest estimate of the population of each county, city and town (made by the Bureau of Population and Economic Research of the University of Virginia), rather than on the last United States census.

Hanbury said that the city's two million tourists should be considered as well.

Among other proposals discussed were the following:

--To grant the locality authority to require fees from land development activities for sites designated for the location of public facilities during the subdivision of or site plan review.

San Joseph Canada remarked, "We've been working on this for six years."

--To include public streets and highways under the authority to impose assessments for local improvements, Barrow said opposition comes from School Board $34,707 between June, 1975, and March, 1976.

Walker said similar legislation, with a $500 limit, was passed by the Senate and killed in the House two years ago. A similar bill might have a change next session, but he noted that $1,000 is "a little high."

rural areas where property owners fear they will be assessed for large areas.

--To allow localities to recover up to $1,000 from parents for school damage caused by minors. Currently schools can recover no more than $200, sort of legal action. Vandalism by minors cost the Virginia Beach

Beacher Johnny Viar

This artist's studio is a salon; his art, hair

By STEVE STONE
SUN News Editor

About four years ago Johnny Viar, then 22, embarked on an artistic career.

But his medium was not oils and canvases, clay nor music. He displayed his abilities with hair. "I love being creative and I love the make people happy because it makes me happy."

Sunspot

Some may not consider the work of a hair stylist to be worthy of the term "art." Granted, you'd never see someone's hair hanging beside the Mona Lisa, but then again, if Mona had an afro she would look a bit different!

Hair does change the way a person is viewed by those around him. Indeed, the way a person chooses to wear their hair can even change their attitude.

This places a burden on the hairstylist to know what the customer wants and/or needs. "It's really neat when a customer comes in thinking they know what they want," explains Viar, "but then after you talk about it, they find out that they don't really know after all. I especially like it when they put themselves in my hands."

Well known customers

Viar, considered by many to be one of the top hairstylists in the area, has impressed customers with his ability to give their hair the right, personal style. Some of his regular customers include Bill Deal of the Rhondels, Bruce Rader of WAVY-TV, The Vogues and numerous notables in modeling and other professions. Viar realized his talents early and so did his teachers. One teacher remarked on an official report, "He is the first of all my trainees to show such extreme enthusiasm, excitement and energy...he has all the qualifications for a trainer."

A trainer is one who helps other hairstylists better their techniques and keep up with new ideas. As a trainer, Viar would be on the road throughout the year, but he would still be in Virginia Beach at least 26 weeks total to take care of his many regular customers.

Now working with Glenby International at its Pembroke Mall-Sear's outlet, Viar does hope to begin work soon as a trainer. "I want to travel and teach for Glenby and some day open my own shop if I should leave Glenby."

In addition to knowing a great deal about hair and how to suit it to a person's personality, Viar has also found that he must be somewhat of an expert in many other fields. "You have to be a good listener and a marriage counselor," he says in explaining that his customers "tell everything" about their lives. "My chair becomes the great confessional!"

People tell all

"Mothers tell you about their sons first dates and all their problems, businessmen jabber about the deals they are making and everyone just talks freely. But it's all in confidence and I don't take notes!"

What does a hairstylist look for in the customer to tell the type of style best suited to them? Viar explains that being aware of the client is most important. You must recognize if the person is tall or small and realize their height and weight.

and the amount of time and effort that they will be able to put into keeping their hair up. You have to find out what they have in mind—likes and dislikes. Then you have to give them guidance. Can it really work? Why and why not?" explains Viar.

Comments on his work range from "good" to "the best." "He makes me comfortable and I don't worry like I used to about my hair looking good. I know that with Johnny doing it it will always come out right," explains one customer.

Knows what's right

"He has a sense for telling just what I need and what is right for me."

The hairstylist must also consider the reaction hair will have after days go by. "You want to give them something that will look good two weeks after they get it done."

And, says Viar, "You want other people asking them where they get their hair done."

Viar, who is single and has a backpackers apartment near the ocean front, enjoys the beach and tennis and he likes to go out on the town with a date whenever he can. But his greatest enjoyment is his work and his greatest compliment is that his customers always come back.

Some thoughts upon leaving

Perhaps the hardest thing to write in this business are stories involving friends or relatives and good-byes. This case is the latter and, it, is as difficult as the former.

I won't attempt to publicly thank everyone who has helped me in my duties as news editor of the SUN, there are just so many and someone would be accidentally left out. There are, of course, the few who stand out most who must have recognition here. Sam Clay in the city manager's office and all the great girls on the Hot Line. Also, Mayor Clarence Holland who always returned phone calls unlike many others, and who always gave straight answers, unlike many others.

Louise Kreslow at the Neptune Festival office who remained calm throughout my endless phone calls for information. Charles Forbes (King Neptune III) and the princesses who made the often grueling schedule of covering the festival more fun than work.

I have had the privilege of working with and sometimes against various members of the news community and especially enjoyed "The Great Place Affair" with Cindy at WAVY.

Then there are all the fine people that I have had the pleasure of working with at Byrly Publications, especially Blair Thurman with whom I worked the closest these past months. A fine upcoming journalist whom I respect and a friend more valued than be probably realized.

Finally, there are the readers and citizens of Virginia Beach. Maybe it sounds cliché to thank you, but if you didn't read the papers then I wouldn't have had a job.

This kind of article often would end with an examination of all that is wrong in the city. I would rather leave on a different note. There are things wrong, but the inquisitive news media will always report the wrongs and Heaven help the nation the day the press falls in that responsibility.

In closing, I would like to observe that Virginia Beach has come to mean more than just a place where I have lived and worked. Unlike any city or town that I have lived in since leaving little Jeffrey, New Hampshire, I have not felt closer to a community than I have in the Beach. With each week this large and growing city continued to take on a more defined and pleasing personality.

The friendly people, the beautiful ocean, the endless fields and farms all combining in this community, making life a pleasure.

Once you've been here you can never really leave. Best wishes to all for safe and happy lives.

Patriot Jon Magruder comes over the top of Steve Gordan

First Colonial starts off fast

By BLAIR THURMAN
SUN Sports Editor

The First Colonial Patriots' basketball squad has gotten off to a good start. Two victories over the weekend, one a district game, have done much to qualify the thought that the Pats are the team to beat in the Beach District. In their first game, they played at Cox, and quickly jumped to a lead that Cox could never surmount. John Magruder hit two medium-range jumpers to start the game, and Guy Morgan prevented the Falcons from scoring effectively underneath with his shot-blocking, and Cox, despite a gallant effort by Jim Goss, who nailed 20 points, Cox was never really in the game. The final score was 100-81.

David Moore, Keith Ford, Ron Zollinger who tallied 33 points, also had outstanding games for First Colonial. Despite the win, Patriot coach Alton Hill wasn't satisfied.

fied. "We looked rough out there tonight," he commented after the game. He wasn't particularly pleased with the performance of Morgan, his 6-7 wonder-boy. "Guy showed his potential tonight," Hill noted, "but he didn't play the way he can." Some of his potential was exposed by blocking six shots.

The next evening, playing a strong Hampton team at Hampton, First Colonial won a 68-57 cliff-hanger, and Morgan did not look rough. He scored 35 points, including the winning foul shot with eight seconds left, and hauled down 15 rebounds.

They are working the kinks out, and they have played under pressure. Look out for First Colonial.

VWC girls have little experience

There are rebuilding years and there are rebuilding years, but considering that last year's lady Blue Marlin basketball squad at Virginia Wesleyan was non-existent, one might justifiably assume that Howard Mast has his work cut out for him. "All the girls on the team but one withdrew from school last year," said Mast, coach of Blue Marlin for the past two years, "so this year we are starting almost from scratch."

VWC does not give athletic scholarships, hence the problem. "We actively recruit," said Mast, "but all the girls nowadays expect scholarships." As a result, half the girls haven't played basketball before, and Mast has to teach them the fundamentals. "I need girls ready to play," he said. One girl with experience is senior Debbie Williams, who underwent a knee operation last year, but according to Mast, is playing better than ever. "She's the team leader," said Mast.

Joanette Lowery, Melinda Davis, Gey Williams and Jody Wells round out the starting five. Joanne Grant is the backup point guard. The girls have been working hard, but Mast said that following Thanksgiving, they were dragging a little. "Too much good food," said a distressed Mast.

Last Thursday's 38-32 loss to Randolph-Macon College was the season opener for the lady Blues. Saturday night they lost a 61-30 decision to Christopher Newport College. Following an extended break for the Christmas holidays, they will meet the College of the Albemarle in an away contest on January 19.

Field hockey season closes

By BLAIR THURMAN
SUN Sports Editor

When the Beach District field hockey season began a few months ago, Morag Nocher, coach of the Bayside team, thought that her squad had the potential to become the first Beach team to win both the regular season championship and the city tournament. As it turned out, this year was no exception. Bayside won the tournament, but finished second to Princess Anne for the regular season crown.

"We were very disappointed we didn't win the regular season title," said Coach Nocher. "The girls wanted it badly."

The title was within their grasp entering the last game of the season, as they faced Princess Anne. Bayside needed a win, while P.A. only needed a tie. The end result was a 0-0 deadlock, and a Cavalier championship.

Bayside's 6-2-2 record and second place finish rewarded them with a first round bye. Then they beat Kellam on penetration time, and slipped by Cox in the finals, 1-0.

"Sue Jones was definitely our best player," said the coach. Also cited for excellence were Harriet Cook, JoAnn Lee, Allison Anderson and Janet Falter.

For Princess Anne, Doris French's girls had to be satisfied with the regular season title, falling to Cox 2-0 in the tournament. Nevertheless, it was a highly successful year, finishing at 7-2-1. "I thought before the season started we'd have a good year," said Coach French. "It's just that one night in the tournament we didn't score. We played well. Our penetration time was better than Cox's, but it wasn't enough."

Princess Anne was paced by Brenda Scholten, who scored 10 goals this year, and Carol Lester and Amber Merdy. The defensive standouts were Lisa Vowler, Laura Creamy, Mary Margaret Thompson and Sue Jarrett, who allowed only four goals during the regular season.

According to Cox coach Nancy Fowlkes, her girls were disappointed by their third place tie with Kellam. "We generally do better," said Coach Fowlkes. What helped end the season on an up-note, was their upset victory over Princess Anne before losing to Bayside in the final game. "That last game was a good one even though we lost. Both teams played well and penetration time was about the same."

Coach Fowlkes, who loses nine seniors this year, relied heavily on Jon Lee Gehrle, Hazel Conkright, Janet Resoch and Claire LeBlanc for their able play.

Kellam coach JoAnn Guthman said her 5-4-1 season, "I was expecting that but wanting more. I thought that we could beat about anyone on a given day." Kellam's third place finish in Coach Guthman's first year at the helm, pitted them against First Colonial in the tournament, and they won 1-0. Next they played Bayside, but lost on penetration time.

The top scorer for Kellam was the left wing, Barbara Hathaway. The front line of Susie Powell and Brenda Waterfield had great seasons, and Royce Buntun turned in excellent performance as a sweeper.

The main reason Kempville's 2-7-1 record didn't upset Coach Pat Morris is that she figures her team may well be on top next year. "This was a rebuilding year for us," noted Coach Morris. "I had 14 new girls on our squad out of 20 (nine sophomores and five juniors)." The good teams this year graduated a lot of girls.

The highlight of the season was 1-0 victory over tournament winner Bayside, during the regular season. In the tournament, Kempville lost 1-0 to Cox.

"The team was very spirited," said the coach, "and we provided good competition for the experienced teams."

Four starters that will be lost due to graduation are Marina Murphy, Treva Cooper, Millie Ward and Sharon Burnett. Also having good years were Kelly McCabe and Togi Hightower.

Watch out for Kempville next year.

First Colonial went 2-5 this year, but Coach Sharon Burkhardt said, "Any one of the eight losses we could have won. I think we improved more than any team at the Beach."

Though it wasn't a winning season, Coach Burkhardt wasn't disappointed. "The girls learned a lot," she explained. "Their sportsmanship was really great and they played together very well."

Link Sandy Berry, half-back Cynthia Parker and wing Lorraine Knapp played well all season for First Colonial.

Hunters, keep 3 C's in mind

James H. Kerrick, safety officer for the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries, has asked all sportsmen to keep THREE C's in mind when they go hunting. Keeping CAUTION, COMMON SENSE and COURTESY on their minds and letting the meaning behind these words govern their actions, hunters can help to prevent hunting accidents.

Kerrick stated that "since July, 1976, to date there have been 35 reported hunting accidents in the Commonwealth. Of this number, 6 resulted in fatalities. Two of the fatalities were as a result of the victim being mistaken for game, and one occurred when the victim moved into the line of fire. Of the remaining three fatal accidents, one was due to the accidental discharge of a gun which fell from an insecure rest, one happened when a victim was careless while removing the gun from a vehicle, and the cause of the sixth accident is under investigation."

The shotgun continues to be the gun most often involved in accidents. "Twenty-four of the thirty-six reported accidents involved the use of a shotgun," Kerrick said. He also pointed out that "use of 'BLAZE ORANGE' color is an important and successful tool in the prevention of accidents. Fifteen of the persons involved in accidents were not wearing any bright colors."

In summary, the Safety Officer "urged all sportsmen to take advantage of the hunter safety education program which is conducted throughout the year in the Commonwealth." Since the inception of the program in October of 1961, more than 170,000 persons have completed the course. Information about the Hunter Safety Training Program can be obtained by writing the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries, Box 11104, Richmond, VA 23200, or by contacting a Virginia Game Warden.

It was through no fault of James Goss that the Cox basketballers lost to First Colonial Friday night. Goss, a senior, scored 18 points in the contest, most of them from downtown while the Falcons were trying to stay in the game. Undoubtedly, his aggressive play will serve to spark the Falcons to many victories this year.

It was an exciting year for field hockey

Gessners score well

W.S. Gessner and Betty Gessner, of 4305 St. James Circle, Virginia Beach, scored well to rank among Master Point winners at the 1976 Fall North American Contract Bridge Championship of the American Contract Bridge League here November 15-21. They were leaders of one 60-player section in a special non-championship game at the Fall Bridge Championships.

"We played about 12 hours a day for 10 days," said Gessner. "You have to be a fanatic to submit yourself to that kind of torture."

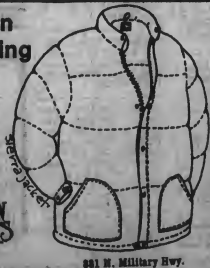

Gessner, a retired Navy man, said that playing bridge under those conditions is harder than work.

The event was among five

North American Championships and twelve lesser ranked championships which drew 5,000 players to ten days of competitions here. Bridge players of every class of skill compete during the meet, one of three major tournaments each year sponsored by the ACBL. Master Points awards are symbols of bridge victories. The ACBL is a non-profit organization of some 200,000 competitive players in the United States, Canada, Mexico and Bermuda. It conducts 150 tournaments a year and 5,000 clubs provide weekly games throughout the continent.

Beach photog wins first prize

John Fahey's photograph of the MacArthur Memorial won him a five-day vacation for two in Montreal, Canada. The award was given Fahey at a recent ceremony held at Chrysler Museum.

Fahey took the top honors in competition with more than 500 entries. Conducted by the City of Norfolk, contestants submitted photographs taken of Norfolk Tour attractions taken between July 1 and August 31.

Fahey's five-day vacation prize was sponsored by Amtrak, Yankee Holidays and the Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal.

Fahey has also received recognition for other photographs. In October one of his pics was awarded "pictorial excellence" honors in the Nikon response and recognition contest. Another Fahey entry won honorable mention in the Chesapeake "Day in the Park" art show.

Besides his interest in photography, Fahey is chairman of ODU's department of foreign languages and literature. He and his wife Barbara, a local artist, live in Brittain Estates, Virginia Beach.

Governor Godwin's plan

Budget axe would fall on funds for Beach too

Under the plan suggested by Governor Mills Godwin to reduce a state-wide $117.2 million budget deficit, the City of Virginia Beach stands to lose $4,194,000 in school aid funds and in sales tax funds over the next year and a half.

Governor Godwin's plan calls for across-the-board reductions in spending by state agencies, cut-backs in state aid to localities for public schools, and a reduction in sales tax funds.

The Governor emphasized that his plan is but one option that might be considered to reduce the fiscal 76-77 budget deficit. "I have no plans at this time to take any action until after the General Assembly meets in January," said Godwin. This delay will give that body an opportunity to help the Governor make a decision.

The Assembly's choices, he said, would be to close the entire $117.2 million gap by providing new revenue sources; to close the gap through a combination of new revenue sources and spending cuts; or to close the entire gap by reducing expenditures.

Under the latter plan, suggested by the governor, Virginia Beach state school aid for the 1977-78 fiscal year would be reduced from $20,827,814 down to $18,285,728, a 7.5 percent cut.

An additional reduction in sales tax funds returned to the localities to make up the balance of the shortage is estimated to cost Virginia Beach $587,421.

And the City's share in a 30 percent reduction of state sales tax returned to localities in 1977-78 would be $2,044,492.

All these reductions proposed by Godwin would mean the Beach would lose $4,193,999 in the 1976-77 fiscal biennium.

In addition to the cut in money sent to the localities, Godwin said state agencies would be directed to absorb an additional 2 1/2 per cent cut in expenditures, on top of the five per cent cut already in effect.

Godwin said while the additional reduction in expenditures by state agencies and institutions would be retroactive to last July 1 reductions in money returned to localities would not be effective until July 1, 1977, permitting local governments necessary time to make adjustments.

The Governor emphasized also that this reduction plan was only "one of the options that might be considered" and would go into effect only if no other equitable solution to the current budget deficit could be found.

Beach floats $16 million bond

Virginia Beach city manager George L. Hanbury has announced that Northern Trust Company and Associates of Chicago has submitted the lowest of four bids to finance $16 million in general obligation bonds.

Northern Trust's interest rate on the $16 million dollars it would loan the city would be 4.89472 per cent over a 30 year period.

Hanbury calls this an "exceptionally low rate." The most recent nationwide average listed by the publication Daily Bond Buyer was 6.03 percent. This translates to $8,179,000 saved by Virginia Beach taxpayers by getting the lower interest rate on the bond loan.

Results of the bidding for the GO Bonds were announced Thursday, Dec. 9.

The $16 million loan derived from the bonds will go towards 35 city improvement projects, including $4 for schools, $3,814,000 for engineering and highway projects, $5,916,000 for building projects, and $2,870,000 for parks and recreation.

The major projects in the above categories include $1,920,000 for initial construction costs of the Kempsville Indian Lakes Junior High School (total cost for the school is estimated at $4,768,000); $2,175,000 to rework and repave North Plaza Trail; $1,581,700 as a second payment on the construction of the arts and conference center; and $2,512,500 to add final touches to the Kempsville Recreation Center.

Santa's too fat, says dietician

"I wonder about Mrs. Santa Claus. I really do," says Helen K. Fleischer, Area Director of the Tidewater Area Diet Workshop.

"How can she permit that lovely old man to take those chances? Doesn't she realize that when a husband is over 40, a wife should watch over his diet carefully? On that sudden strenuous exercise for a brief period of time puts an undue strain on the heart?"

"Yet she allows year after year to pass without doing anything about this situation. She watches him sit at the tv bench, hardly stirring day after day. On a cold, windy Christmas Eve she stands by while he climbs into that open sleigh and takes off. She knows he'll be clambering up and down chimneys all night. How can she say she loves him?"

"It concerns me so that I have written a letter to her. I told her how to cut down on Santa's fat intake, how to cook his favorite foods without all the calories he is obviously eating, and how to establish a simple exercise program so that he will be in shape all year long. I also suggested that she alert the girls and boys of the world not to leave cookies and milk for Santa, and instead to suggest that they leave celery and carrot sticks for both Santa and the reindeer."

"Look at that," says Helen K. Fleischer brandishing a picture of Santa Claus enjoying a hot cup of something, "he's probably drinking either hot chocolate or coffee with heavy cream. Mrs. Claus is endangering Christmas. I hope," Helen concludes, "that if she does not change her cooking ways she gives the reindeer a course in C.P.N. One of these years they're going to head it!"

'Spot' sells in Sun

"We're purtier than a spotted pup" is high tribute coming from a country boy -- spotted pups rank near the top of the list in terms of lovability.

But when you're trying to sell those spotted pups -- like Whane Higginbotham of Peninsula Lane in Chesapeake -- those cuddly little critters can pose problems.

Higginbotham had a litter of single pups on his hands, and although the Christmas pup-giving season was fast approaching, he had sold only seven of his litter of 11.

After a month-and-a-half of advertising -- otherwise, Higginbotham plopped in his classified ad to the Chesapeake POST.

He sold every pup with the first publication of his ad!

"You can find whatever you want in the POST classifieds," Higginbotham said, explaining his success. He reported "a lot more calls" than with his other advertising.

Fact is, the results have proven time and again that a classified ad in your community weekly newspaper -- like the Virginia Beach SUN -- is the best buy for your dollar. That's because your message reaches the people you want to reach -- your friends and neighbors down the street.

Will dog-breeder Higginbotham try the POST again? "Just as soon as the dog has more puppies," the satisfied customer says.

You can sell your "spotted pups," or your old lawn mower or whatever with a Byerly Publications classified ad. And there's still time to earn a little extra Christmas cash by advertising and selling those unused items of yours.

Call right now -- 547-4571 -- and have a merrier Christmas!

No new Beach water lines, but rates to go up anyway

By LEE CARILL
SUN Public Affairs Writer

Reacting to overwhelming criticism of citizens, Virginia Beach has abandoned for the time being the idea of using revenue bonds to finance water and sewer construction over the next five years.

To help the city seek alternatives, Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon decided to create a committee of three councilmen and interested citizens representing various groups in the city.

Whatever the committee and the Council eventually decide, some increase in the water and sewer rates is the city is imminent.

City Manager George L. Hanbury said that even if the construction program were stopped completely, present water and sewer users would be required to pay higher rates just to sustain the existing system. Rates would still be lower than those needed to finance revenue bonds.

In the meantime City Council will try to get the General Assembly to grant the city a charter change raising the city's limitation for general obligation bonds.

The limitation placed on the city three years ago by the General Assembly is the lowest in the state, holding the city to a debt increase of 10 million a year.

If these bonds were used for water and sewer, Hanbury said, there would be nothing left to finance the city's other projects.

Other than a charter change, the city's only recourse is through a bond referendum which is outside the limitation.

But councilmen were gloomy about either prospect.

Councilman George R. Ferrell said "I don't think you're going to get your charter change this year," and Councilman John A. Beam added, "There's a lot of loose talk about referendums, but that's not a responsible way to face the problem."

Hanbury said that while the rate increase with general obligation bonds would not be as great as proposed with revenue bonds, the rate for water would be 90 cents per 1000 gallons compared to $1 for revenue bonds, and for sewer, $4 a month compared to $5 a month for revenue bonds.

The city currently has $1.4 million obligated for future projects. In January when the city will have additional bonding capacity, the Council may choose to pay for these existing contracts, Hanbury said. Beyond this recommendation, Hanbury suggested Council delay any action on the matter until the General Assembly considers the charter change next month.

Too long a delay, Hanbury added, "will place severe demands on the city's system," especially on water which has never been at par and especially in the summer months when the pressure has been low."

Last week Council heard a long line of citizens object to proposed sewer and water rate increases which would pave the way for selling revenue bonds. Increased rates are necessary, even with general obligation bonds, to assure Virginia Beach taxpayers that only those people who have utilities

New master street-highway plan looks to future Beach growth

By LEE CAHILL
SUN Public Affairs Writer

The problem was dear to her heart, she said. Something should be done to improve Haygood-Newtown Road between Baker Road and Independence Boulevard.

Mrs. Dorene Shubols presented a string of statistics to prove her point. What Mrs. Shubols didn't know was that her case had been won before she spoke.

"Every one of us wants to improve the road, Mayor Clarence Holland told her." In fact, the Council is interested in improving roads throughout the city and had earlier heard City Planner Robert L. Scott present an update on the city's master street and highway plan which was adopted by Council in December of 1974.

Scott told Council that it is important to determine exactly how wide a road is needed in the various sections so that the size parcels necessary to do the job. This is not only more fair to the property owners, he said, but as Vice Mayor Patrick L. Standing pointed out, land wouldn't be taken off the tax rolls unnecessarily.

Councilman George R. Ferrell said it was important to "know what we're going to do," so land owners could plan.

Scott said that he envisioned the proposed False Cape Parkway to be like Northampton Boulevard with limited or, at least, governed access. The major problem here is that the road is intended to provide access to False Cape Park, and the State hasn't determined where that access will be.

But aside from its connection with the park, the Parkway will be needed from General Booth Boulevard west and is, expected to carry 50,000 or more cars, Scott said, and False Cape Parkway with a 110-foot right of way should be considered separately for the area west of the General Booth Boulevard. Generating traffic for the road will be May housing now under construction and possible development of 850 acres remaining after Oceana West Industrial Park was planned. Information where the Parkway will intersect with Indian River and Kempville roads, grade separations or other alternatives will be needed, Scott said.

In determining the land needed for the roads, Scott used State Highway Department computerized projections. He said a 160 foot easement indicates a future need for eight lanes. Only Virginia Beach Boulevard and Shore Drive have 160 feet easements, and they are also the only east-west corridors in the city now.

The construction of Old Donation Road will provide another east-west corridor. Shore Drive, Scott pointed out, is a major access to the city for visitors from the north, but widening the road presents a problem with the Lester Bridge.

The 140-foot right-of-way for Laskin Road in the master plan, he said, is not realistic, as the road enters the Beach area. He would recommend it be reduced to 90 or 80 feet.

The first projects listed by Scott were Holland Road and General Booth Boulevard on the east side of Oceana. A 90-foot right-of-way is under construction now. The road should never be intended to carry more than 25,000 to 40,000 cars, Scott said.

Council vetoes request for Lynnhaven restaurant

By LEE CAHILL
SUN Public Affairs Writer

Plans to build a Hardy's Restaurant in Lynnhaven were halted when Virginia Beach City Council referred a zoning change request back to the Planning Commission.

Boddie-Noel Enterprises, Inc., had sought to rezone from residential to community-business 3,750 square feet at the northwest corner of Cape Henry Drive and Seashell Road, a parcel adjoining Boddie-Noel property on Shore Drive. The Shore Drive acreage is already zoned for community-business, and it is on this piece of land that the restaurant was to be located. Land backing up to Cape Henry Drive would serve as a parking area.

The Planning Commission recommended denial of the petition by a vote of 11-2.

Grover Wright, attorney for Boddie-Noel, Monday afternoon asked Council to refer the request back to the Planning Commission since there is a need for the area to be considered as a whole. He said lots on Shore Drive had been reduced by land dedications for Shore Drive until the lots are difficult to develop, although they were zoned for business. Lots behind the Shore Drive property are zoned residential and are located on Cape Henry Drive opposite residential property. Residents in the area are against a zoning change in any event.

Robert Garnett, who lives on Cape Henry Drive, said the rezoning would cause an increase in "noise, traffic and trash on my property." In addition, he said, drainage is insufficient. His neighbor Roy Allen agreed and pleaded that the Council keep business "out of our backyard."

Vice Mayor Patrick L. Standing, in relation to noise made by a dumpster during the night referred to by Garnett, said the city should do something about dumpsters operating in residential neighborhoods during the night. He also said drainage problems in the area should be studied regardless of any zoning action.

Council denied a petition of Corporate Designs, Ltd., to rezone from residential to office district a 18,750 sq. ft. parcel at the northwest corner of 36th Street and Pacific Avenue, Virginia Beach Borough.

David Adams represented the 1,200 members of the First Presbyterian Church opposing the change. Thomas Broyles, attorney for Corporate Designs, said the firm, which was located in a single-family home on the property, designs office layouts and would neither sell furniture or display furniture for sale. He charged that a member of the Planning Commission, who is also a member of the church, had influenced the church to oppose the petition which, he said, "is entirely improper."

The church had wanted to buy the property for church expansion and had offered $115,000 for the property, he said.

Adams agreed that the church had wanted the property but that he knew of no member of the Planning Commission who had influenced the church.

In other zoning matters, Council: --Granted C. S. Yoder & Co. a rezoning request residential to commercial on a 9,008 sq. ft. parcel located on the north side of Ninth Street, west of Mediterranean Avenue, Shadowlawn Heights Area. The existing zoning allows a duplex, while the proposed zoning would allow a variety of business establishments, apartment units, or hotel/motel units.

--Approved Residential - 3 zoning for 3.6 acres located at the intersection of North Great Neck Road and Thomas Bishop Lane, in the John B. Day Elementary School Area, Lynnhaven Borough.

E. Kenneth Day and John Wallace Summa had originally sought to rezone the property from Residential - 3 to Residential - 4 Townhouse District which would allow 32 townhouse units. Residents objected to the townhouse zoning which developers said would offset the cost of putting in utilities required by the city.

The developers and the residents reached a compromise in R-3 zoning which will permit the development of not more than seven single-family sites.

--Approved a petition of Pine Acre, Inc., for a change of zoning from A-1 Apartment to A-2 Apartment District on three parcels and from Apartment to Community-Business District on three parcels in the Thalia Village-Southern Pines Area, Kempville Borough.

The parcels contain a total of 12.03 acres. Existing zoning would allow 318 apartment units, while the proposed zoning allows 281 apartment units and a variety of business establishments. In relation to the same development Council approved the closure of portions of West Virginia Avenue, Virginia service are paying for the facilities, Hanbury said.

City water is currently being used by 59 per cent of the 77,188 dwelling units in the city. Another 38 per cent are using well water and private systems serve the remaining 3 per cent.

Fifty per cent of the household have their own septic tanks, while the remaining homes are served about equally by public sewers and private utilities. Councilwoman Meyers Oberdorff suggested a public information campaign, an evening session of Council which will permit the "working people" to express their views, and a study into the discrepancies in proposed rates charged by some individuals.

In other actions, Council: --Approved an ordinance amendment which excepts dogs used for hunting in agricultural zones or competing in field trials from the ordinance pertaining to animals running at large and being kept under the control of a responsible person. The dogs, however, will be required to wear a collar with a name plate identifying the owner and a city license tag affixed.

--Approved tax refunds of $1,410.21.

--Approved the standard sewer agreement of William R. and Evelyn Rita Walker for property presently described at Lot 11, Lone Bridge Gardens and Parcel 1, Resubdivision of Lot 12, and subdivision of Lot 13, Lynnhaven Borough.

These musicians, who should be primarily high school students, should apply for Dec. 17 auditions for the spring semester of the preparatory music program at Virginia Wesleyan College.

Dr. David Clayton, assistant professor of music and director of the program, said "This program will provide the proper atmosphere where talent can flourish and the desire for self-improvement will constantly be encouraged."

We are willing to accept younger students if they exhibit talent, and could find this type of experience valuable." Conducting classes in the program will be a faculty that Clayton describes as "a group of the finest musicians and performers in the Tidewater area." Included will be Dora Short, violin; Ronald Marshall, viola; Janet Krimer, cello; Mary Ann Coe, flute; F. Gerard Errante, clarinet; Sandra Barnes, horn; Cliff Rice, trom-

F&M drops free checking

First and Merchants Bank has announced it is dropping its free checking service to its checking account customers.

First and Merchants said that starting Jan. 1 a charge of $1 will be made on any checking account in which the balance falls below $50 at any time during the month's statement period.

F & M said the move was necessary because of constantly increasing costs of processing checks and expenses for postage, paper and maintenance of accounts. The bank said these initial service charges, if applicable, will be made and will appear on checking account statements sent after Feb. 1.

To avoid this service charge, F & M suggests customers keep their checking account balance above $50. The bank said it will continue its free checking account service to customers age 65 and over.

Johnson holds two master's degrees, one in theater arts and one in English. She has studied in London and Heidelberg, and speaks French, German and Italian.

Being a FATHER

... my son and me. Here is a man guiding the steps of a young life. This boy is seeing the world through the eyes of a man-his father. They play together, walk together, talk together, and go to church together. Through these activities, the father communicates his values to his son. To be a father is about the highest privilege that ever comes to any man. What a tragedy if we fail to introduce our children to God and overlook the importance of fellowship with them. As a father the future is in your hands.

Munden Point park funds allocated

Almost half a million dollars has been allocated to the Virginia Beach parks and recreation department to assist in its development of a park and picnic area at Munden Point.

The money, $496,000, was allocated by the Virginia Commission of Outdoor Recreation and is part of a $1.2 million package going to state and local agencies to help them with their recreational offerings.

Virginia Beach will use its funds to acquire and develop about 100 acres of land at Munden Point, just south of Creeds near the N. C. border. The land is on the inland coastal waterway, and developments planned will include a picnic area, an active recreation area with tennis courts and multi-purpose courts, plus two double-lane boat ramps and various support items.

The existing barn and stables on the Munden Point property will be refurbished and will be used for a visitor/maintenance/picnic area.

Total cost of the Munden Point development project is estimated to be $992,000.

You can bank at Farm Fresh

Farm Fresh is the first supermarket in Virginia to install a 24-hour electronic banking machine for the convenience of customers. The automated teller is in the new Farm Fresh 24-hour store located at 841 Lynnhaven Parkway in Virginia Beach.

According to Farm Fresh President, Gene Walters, "our new store provides the ultimate in customer convenience—we call it our 'super' supermarket." Walters noted that Virginia National Bank's "Cash Flow" teller at Farm Fresh "gives the consumer one stop shopping and banking, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week." David O'Connor, VNB senior vice president said "Our 'Cash Flow' tellers are the only automated tellers in the state placed in non-traditional locations. This enables us to bring banking to people where they shop, work and live."

The Teller handles 85% of a consumer's normal banking needs. Customers can get cash, make deposits, transfer money between accounts, make bill payments and even get their current account balance at "Cash Flow" tellers.

Navy ships home from Med

Banners waved, the crowd of wives and children gathered, a band played, and a small plane flew about towing a "Welcome Home" sign, all to greet the return to home port of the Navy's Mediterranean Amphibious Ready Group, back from a six-month deployment in the Mediterranean.

Arriving at the Norfolk Naval Base last Friday morning were the amphibious assault ship USS Tima and the amphibious transport dock USS Ponce. Later that morning the amphibious transport dock Coronado and dock landing ship USS Portland arrived at the Quaywall at Little Creek Amphibious Base.

The tank landing ship USS Newport also arrived at Pier 57, Little Creek. To welcome the ships back, the wives club of two of the ships arranged for the Kempsville High School band to herald their arrival, and also for the airplane to tow the welcome home banner.

Bids opened today

Board to select builder for Green Run school

We'll know today (Dec. 15) at 3 p.m. who the low bidder will be to construct the new 2,000-student Green Run high school.

Bids will be opened this afternoon in the board room of the school administration building, and the opening is open to the public.

The low bid contractor is expected to begin work shortly thereafter on what is probably to be one of the unique schools in the Tidewater area, scheduled for fall classes in 1979. The school, to be located on an extension of Dahlia Drive in Green Run, will be the largest in the city.

Construction of Green Run is coming at a very necessary time. Kempville High is now operating at about 700 students above its normal capacity, accommodating most of the overflow in mobile classrooms. Kellam High is about 500 students over capacity. Green Run is expected to draw students from both these schools, as well as from the new Navy housing area to be constructed at Gallops Corner (near the intersection of Salem and Princess Anne roads).

School officials say it is too early to determine the exact population boundaries from which Green Run will draw its students. However, they are studying population trends, such as the growth corridor along Kempsville Road.

Designed by Williams and Tazewell & Associates Inc., Green Run high school will actually be eight separate buildings joined into one. The school will have separate blocks of space for instruction in the humanities, science and math, industrial arts and home economics, fine arts, business and physical education.

The facility will have 75 classrooms and labs, eight industrial shops, an auditorium, a gymnasium, a library, a cafeteria and an administrative office area.

There will be fully-equipped labs for biology, chemistry and physics, and the humanities area will contain its own sound studio with audio and video taping equipment.

The school's facilities will be used extensively by the public as well as students and is designed specifically to accommodate this extra non-school hour use. Both the auditorium and the gymnasium will be located at the front of the school to ease public access. The auditorium will seat 800, with a sunken orchestra pit and a 42-ft. wide proscenium. The gym can be divided into two smaller gyms to allow maximum usage.

Because the gym will be large enough to seat 2,000 people, school officials plan for it to become the primary gym in the city for events such as high school basketball tournaments.

Outside facilities on the 50.2 acre campus will include a football field and track, a baseball diamond, two softball diamonds, fields for soccer and field hockey, and a driver training range.

Parking areas will accommodate 500 student and 135 faculty vehicles, as well as visitors.

Seimers is Oceana Dec. sailor of month

'Tis the season to be jolly, especially for Yeoman second class (YN2) Dennis C. Seimers who was selected Naval Air Station Oceana's Sailor of the Month for December.

YN2 Seimers was cited for his outstanding performance as senior yeoman in the Aircraft Intermediate Maintenance Department (AIMD). His thorough recognition of administrative procedures has eliminated, refined and successfully reduced the workload of the department. He was also cited for his potential, maturity and dedication to duty.

Seimers is also chairman of the youth involvement council for the NAS Oceana Federal Credit Union and is on the board of the youth involvement council for the Virginia Credit Union League. His goal is to try to educate younger people about the banking system. There has already been a distribution of money management kits to local junior and senior high schools.

This past summer has been extremely busy for Seimers. He sang second tenor for the Billy Graham Crusade Choir in Williamsburg. At Cub Scout Pack #406 in Virginia Beach Seimers was their assistant leader. Seimers and high school sweetheart Nancy were married in August. PO and Mrs. Seimers are from Aitkin, Minn.

Petty Officer Seimers originally entered the Navy to try to further his education. While he was stationed in Texas, he attended Beville Community College. In January Denny plans to enter Tidewater Community College to earn his BA in Business administration and someday to receive his masters in the same field. He is also eligible to take the test for petty officer first class in February.

Cavaliers' holiday music delights eyes and ears

By BUD LOWE

Christmas: a time for joy and happiness.

A time for families to get together.

A time for giving and sharing.

A time for Christmas carols and joyful music.

And a time for our local junior and senior high schools to present their annual Christmas concerts.

Princess Anne High School was no exception, and a performance fit for a king was put on by the Cavaliers from P.A. There was a performance by both "A" band and "B" band, with the color guard doing their thing between bands.

"B" band was first and they played "Holiday for Christmas," "Let It Snow," "Carols for Christmas," "Carolines at Christmastide," and "Christmas Music for Winds." "A" band played "Sleigh Ride," "Themes from the Nutcracker Suite," "Twas the Night Before Christmas," and "Adeste Fideles."

Both bands were outstanding in both sound and style. They gave the audience a night full of good music. The longer they played the better they sounded. One could all listen to them play all night long. As usual, the Cavaliers never fail to put on a crowd pleasing show for their audience.

While the bands were changing, the color guard took over and came in under the sound of roaring drums. They marched down the aisles and rimmed the front of the stage. At this point their captain—Gina Cook—put the girls through some simple routines. The snap and accuracy of their performance was truly unbelievable.

Then the drill team lead the audience in some Christmas carol singing. And Karen Mendoza, rifle and feature twirler for the Cavaliers, played the piano. She was equally as effective with the piano as she is with her rifle or her baton. Karen is rated as one of the best feature twirlers here at the Beach. This is just one example of the talent that runs so deep among the Cavaliers at Princess Anne.

While the band played "Twas the Night Before Christmas," Lee Lively read the story of the carol to Heather Collins, Ronald Collins Jr., Sonny James, and Sean Wirt. Not to mention any names but one or two of the kids stole the show from Lee this year. P.A. ask Lee to come over for this scene each year, and if you have never seen it you have surely missed a good show. Another highlight for the night was the announcement by Sam Reynolds, director of the Color Guard, that Ron Collins, band director for Princess Anne, had been recently elected into the American School Band Directors Association, truly an honor that could not have gone to a more deserving person. We here at the SUN would like to take this opportunity to congratulate Ronald J. Collins on being selected into this elite group of band directors. The ushers for the evening were supplied by the Color Guard.

This week we have Cox High and Virginia Beach Junior High on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m., Princess Anne Junior High on Thursday at 7:30 p.m., Kempville Junior High on Friday at 7 p.m., Bayside Junior High on Sunday at 2 p.m., Bayside High on Sunday at 4 p.m., and Plaza Junior High on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Remember if you have not bought your Christmas tree yet, Princess Anne's Marching Cavaliers are selling them in front of their high school. They have one of the finest collections of trees in the area this year. Stop by and take a look, it doesn't cost anything to check out what they have on sale.

New officers for Kellam DECA

The Distributive Education club at Kellam High School initiated new members and established new officers for the 1976-77 school year at a breakfast last month.

The DECA members held the initiation breakfast at the New Cavalier Motel, and about 100 DE students and their guests enjoyed grits, sausage, bacon, eggs and Danish pastries.

New officers sworn in at the breakfast were president

Billy Combs, vice president Terry Campo, treasurer Dana Beasley, reporter-historian Sherry Keech, secretary Annette Walsh, chaplain Lou Brickhouse, and parliamentarian Dottie Tatem.

"Twas the Night Before Christmas" Sean Wirt. The reading, to the music of the Princess Anne High School band, was part of the band's annual Christmas concert last week. (See photo by Bud Lowe)

There are plenty of gimmicks to be used when trying to rent or sell a home and half the effort is simply to get attention. Well, Wes Gardner, 20, of 1522 Indiana Ave., may not have the most accepted method, but he sure got attention last weekend. He waved his banner and shook his sign at 27th and Arctic Avenue, all afternoon, helping out some friends. And if it doesn't work we always suggest SUN classifieds! (SUN photo by Steve Stone)

Last chance for '76 Va. medal

As Christmas and the end of 1976 draws near, Virginia Beachers have their last chance to purchase one of the official state of Virginia bi-centennial medals.

The face of the medal features profiles of the eight United States presidents born in Virginia, in the sequence in which they were elected, and the colonial capital at Williamsburg. It also bears the inscription, "Virginia... Cradle of Liberty... Mother of Presidents."

Virginia has accounted for 22 per cent of all United States presidents, more than any other state in the Union.

The eight presidents were Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, William Henry Harrison, Taylor, Tyler, and Wilson.

Figures from the state seal and the inscription, "Virginia Independence Bicentennial, 1776 - 1976," are on the reverse.

Medall Art Company, the oldest private mint in the United States, and producers of the Congressional Medal of Honor and many official presidential inaugural medals is the producer of the State of Virginia.

The medals are available in gold, silver, and bronze, and may be purchased individually, in necklaces, or in paperweights. They make excellent Christmas gifts as a lasting piece of memorabilia.

For additional information contact your local bank or savings and loan, or write to Official Bicentennial Medal Program, P.O. Box 1332, Atlanta, Ga. 30301.

It's worth a trip to Pungo to eat seafood at Blue Pete's

By DEBORAH IOLI
SUN Entertainment Writer

Not being originally from this area, the first time I heard Pungo mentioned among locals in connection with a favorite seafood restaurant — called Blue Pete's — I thought it was somewhere out of a make-believe world... or at best another new chewing gum promoting the punch of peppermint in every chew.

I wasn't very far off the mark with the make-believe world, as Pungo turns out to have its own resident "Witch of Pungo," a legend in her own right. Blue Pete's is a legend, too, and deserves all the praise lavished upon it.

Located in rural Virginia Beach at the end of a pleasant drive down winding, tree-lined roads, Blue Pete's sits nestled in the backwoods of Pungo, right on the Back Bay. Its decor is rustic, the atmosphere warm and friendly. And the only things that beat the great seafood prepared by owner Pat Hicks are the reasonable prices.

Ethics important to Jim Rogers

Sunspot

"Personally and professionally, I do not like lying. I believe that my reputation and my company's reputation is important."

That statement, in essence, spells out the code of conduct and business ethics of James S. Rogers, president and general manager of Independence Personnel Service Inc.

IPS, located in Roger Center, was started by Rogers six months ago and right away was faced the general stigma associated with employment agencies—that of credibility and potential unethical conduct. But Rogers and his trainees of over 100 counselors fought that image with his beliefs: honesty, being up-front, believing in good business ethics, and professionalism. Plus a lot of hard work.

Rogers left the Navy last year after nearly 14 years. His last tour of duty was as security officer for the Norfolk Naval Base. He settled into the Beach life first in Windsor Woods and then in Chesapeake House on the Bay, an apartment condominium in Lynnhaven.

"I could have gone into a civil service job or a security officer somewhere. But I like a job that is different and interesting every day," Rogers said.

"I found out about the employment agency business from Universal Management Service Corporation in Virginia Beach. They just happened to be one of the top ten employment service agencies in the country. What I saw impressed me."

Rogers went on to Universal to take their counseling and management instruction courses. And then he set up his own business, Independence Personnel. Each one of the seven employment counselors now working for Rogers underwent a week of intensive training and learning at Universal's school.

The first thing Rogers hung on his office wall was his own credo, his "declaration of independence." It reads, in part:

"I will serve our clients, both prospective employee and employer, with diligence and courtesy, providing professional counseling towards obtaining full-time employment for the public we serve."

The key word in that statement, says Rogers, is "professional."

Add to that: ethics. "By law, IPS is an employment agency," but technically we are an employment service. The difference is professionalism and ethics, at all times, with both clients and employers."

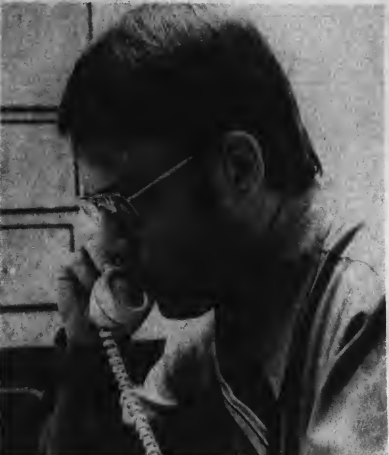

Rogers intensely believes in business ethics. He says he has ceased doing business with employers because of their unethical conduct. He has turned away clients (potential money in his pocket) for unethical conduct towards him and his company. "I have even fired some counselors for their ethics in seeking employment for clients. Even though what they might have done was not against the law, it was against our standards," emphasized Rogers.

Aware of the delicate situation he and his company can sometimes be in, Rogers said he often does not leave the question of ethics to his own judgment. "Anytime I have a situation in which there is a question of ethics, I'll get advice from both the state department of labor and industry and the Federal Bureau of Investigation."

Rogers' number one assistant is Kathy V. Evans, a young, attractive woman just out of college. Kathy said she had hoped to go into teaching and went to other employment agencies for job placement. "Just about all they would get for me was secretarial jobs or as an administrative assistant, and I didn't want that. I wanted to work with people," she said, "make money and get into management." I can do that here at IPS.

Rogers says his company does not just put people into a job, it points them toward a career job, one with a future, one that fits the client's abilities and experience.

"We thoroughly screen all applicants for a potential job and only send qualified persons to the employer," emphasized Rogers. "We can eliminate obstacles on both sides. For the client, the hassle of pounding the pavement and seeking open doors. For the employer, the cost of advertising and the time involved in screening applicants. For both of them, time is money."

"Yes, we often hear 'but that's a lot of money to pay you', but it really isn't for a career job. It really isn't, compared to the cost of an individual looking for the right job on his own."

Rogers' ethics and professionalism are evidently paying off. His office now ranks fifth among Universal Management affiliates across the country. And he says, "While we're not making a lot of money, neither are we in the red."

But Rogers' IPS company is gaining a solid credibility, both with businesses seeking employees and with clients seeking employment. That's a long way to go since June 21, and Rogers believes he and his company can go a lot further.

SECTION B

Whitehurst to introduce zero-based budget bill

Second District Republican congressman William Whitehurst reports will join with two other colleagues in the House of Representatives to introduce legislation in the new Congress that will revise every government spending program.

The bill, often referred to as the "zero-based budgeting act," is designed to eliminate waste and duplication in federal government programs. Whitehurst co-sponsored a similar measure in the just-concluded 94th Congress.

Under current operation a program is not reviewed by Congress unless there is a substantive legislative change. This can result in continued spending for a program that no longer effectively meets needs due to changing conditions and the establishment of another program to meet the supposedly "new" problem.

"Overlapping several programs and agencies are thus created," Whitehurst says. "It is inefficient management and wasteful expenditure of tax dollars. One of the reasons the old programs are not discontinued is the support they receive from special interest groups who are often wholly dependent on the continued existence of the programs. This constituency has proven to be very effective over the years at persuading Congress for the program's untouched continuance, no matter how unjustified or inefficient the program may be."

"But now the burden has become too great on taxpayers for Congress to allow this situation to continue, and is reflected in the growth of government. In 1900, taxes were 4% of personal income and the government labor force was 4% of the total labor population. By 1974, taxes were 35% of income and the government labor force was 15% of the total labor force, and both taxes and number of government personnel were growing.

Last year's catalog of federal domestic assistance lists over 1,000 federal spending programs in just this one area of federal activity -- including 228 health programs, 156 social service and income security programs, and 83 housing programs.

"The burden of the spending reform act will now be on the members of Congress. Nothing will more readily negate the effects of zero-based review than partisan and political factors as the Members scrutinize and decide the future of these programs. The bill is essential the Congress take an objective, analytical stand on these programs and place the goal of efficient, responsive, competent government above a narrowly defined special interest," said Whitehurst.

Whitehurst is cosponsoring the bill with Rep. James J. Blanchard (D-MI) and Norman Y. Mineta (D-CA). Whitehurst sponsored or cosponsored 14 pieces of legislation in the 94th Congress relating to Congressional review of regulatory agencies. He says he expects to again take an active role in the new Congress to help obtain legislative approval of improving the control and efficiency of federal programs and agencies.

Mrs. Meyera E. Oberndorf is a face familiar to most SUN readers and to those familiar to the operation of this sprawling resort city. Elected this year, she is the first woman to serve on the Virginia Beach City Council, and she has made her voice and opinions heard through her actions on the council. Though she takes her position as councilwoman seriously, at the same time she seems to enjoy herself and life tremendously.

Kellam trying to turn about

By BLAIR THURMAN
SUN Sports Editor

Despite being soundly trounced last week by Maury, Johnny Morris, Kellam's basketball coach, had cause for optimism. In the first half, the Knights were sluggish and ineffective against the hustling Commodores. But in the second half, they came alive, and although they never were in the game, Morris was inspired enough to see better days ahead.

"We outscored Maury in the second half," said Morris, "we were just too far behind to catch up."

The reason for the reversal? "We started hustling," explained Morris. "We were able to break their press, and we started pressing well ourselves. I like the way they came back, and see improvement for the rest of the season."

Morris got superior play from his bench in the form of Bobby Corpew, a forward, and Prince Conely, a guard. Their performance earned them starting roles against Friday night's contest with Cox, replacing Jimmy Butta and Ricky Lewis, who have not been playing up to Morris' expectations. Corpew responded by leading Kellam with 24 points, but the Knights still lost to the Falcons, 93-77. The loss dropped Kellam to 0-3.

As the Knights gain experience though, they should compete well in the Beach District.

Golden Pin "best ever"

By BUD LOWE
Special to the SUN

Ten Pin bowling for the young. Yes, that is what the Golden Pin Tournament is all about. Every year in November, Century Spillway holds the annual Golden Pin Tournament for the American Junior Bowling Congress (AJBC). This was the fourth year it has run. "This has been the biggest and best tournament we have had yet," said Roger Miller, President of the Tidewater Chapter of the AJBC and Assistant Manager for Century.

Roger estimates that approximately 400 entries were entered in the tournament this year. Every house in the Tidewater area was well represented.

A tournament this size takes weeks of planning and Century Spillway has been the guest house ever since its existence. The key members of this event are Roger Miller and his girl Friday—Carolyn Dopler. Carolyn was the first champion in the girls division and has been second in her division each year thereafter. Roger feels that she would have finished higher in the standings three last three years if she had not spent so much of her time helping to make the Golden Pin success it is today. This was her last year of eligibility to bowl in the tournament. The tournament will make the same without her, but we hope she will continue to help with the tournament even though she will not be bowling.

Beachers brave cold

What do a lawyer, nurse, recreation supervisor, student, two cheerleaders and head football coach all have in common?

They all enjoy making the trip to Norfolk from the Beach in order to watch the Old Dominion Monarchs play basketball.

They enjoy it so much in fact, that they braved sordid temperatures and snowy roads in order to watch ODU demolish the Maroons of Roanoke College last Wednesday night, 113-68.

The lawyer, Deas Collas, 35, lives in the Stratford Chase section of Virginia Beach, and has been supporting the Monarchs for years. Because of the team's depth, Collas predicts 20 wins for the ODU basketballers.

Delores Hare, 32, is the nurse and hails from Kempville. She takes night courses at ODU, but this was her first game. Though the game appears to have changed since she last watched, she enjoyed the fast pace and thought they looked impressive.

"They've got a smoker this year," said Tommy Patterson, 50, the recreation supervisor. Patterson particularly enjoys watching Ronnie Valentine, ODU's super freshman from Granby, "who fits right into the Monarch's style of play-fast." Patterson, who lives in Lake Edward, thinks Coach Hank Webb has a good recruiting program.

A sophomore at ODU, Terri Anderson, 19, enjoys the Monarchs enough that she intends on attending some away games. Terri, who lives in Cape Henry Shores, sees ODU as a basketball power who has gone from the role of David to that of Goliath. The two cheerleaders are Terrie Upshur, 18, and Robin Meredith, 19. They used to cheer at Kempville High and Cox High respectively, but now do the rah-rah routine for ODU. Terrie, from Kempville loves the crowds and is looking forward to traveling with the team. Robin, from Baylake Pines, feels that the Monarchs need improvement if they are to go all the way.

Kempsville looking to upend Cox-again

By BLAIR THURMAN
SUN Sports Editor

Well, Cox High has the best wrestling program around, and will undoubtedly go undefeated at the Beach and do everything possible to dominate the sport and all Falcon coach Bill Gutermuth has to do is unleash his wrestlers a couple times a week and that's that.

Hmmm. Keith Lowrance, who coaches the Kempsville grapplers does not look favorably on statements like that. "My boys don't think that's true," said Lowrance, "but I'm not going to make any predictions. The only way to resolve who is best is to meet head-on."

No controversy there, but it's true. Last year, Kempsville ended Cox's seemingly endless dual meet streak. So who's the best? "Last year's victory over Cox has nothing to do with this year," Lowrance said. "I lost some good wrestlers and have a lot of new personnel." However, the Cox win paved the way to a 13-0 dual meet record for the Chiefs, which certainly sounds good, but

left Lowrance unsatisfied. "13-0 is all right," Lowrance understated, "but the tournaments are what you aim for, and we didn't do as well then. That's what counts, and that's where the competition is the keenest." Of course district and regional tournament victories are what send wrestlers to the state competition.

The Kempsville-Cox showdown is dramatically set for the last meet of the regular season, on Feb. 5 at Kempsville. Until then, both squads wrestle tough competition that should hone their skills and prepare them for their head-on meet and the post-season tournaments.

Next week, both Kempsville and Cox will take on last year's Northwestern and Northern Region winners, Garfield and Falls Church respectively.

Lowrance, a Big Ten champion while at Michigan State University, and twice a third place finisher in the NCAA (1969, '70) will be relying on his experienced boys to carry the burden early in the season. "I have several boys who will be in the thick of it all year," he said, "and some who will have to prove themselves if we are to have a good year."

One of the boys who figures to be in the thick of it is Pete Kitchen, who wrestles at 145. Kitchen is only a junior, and according to his coach, is just starting to come into his own. Nevertheless, Kitchen is considered to be one of the best in his weight in Tidewater. "Pete believes in himself," said Lowrance, "but he knows he has a lot to learn as a wrestler." He has great ability and should have a good year.

In the lower weights are Wayne Martin and Scott Meyers, both at 112 and 119, who both finished fifth in the Region last year. According to Lowrance, Meyers is the most improved of last year's lettermen.

At 126 will be Tony Tala. "A tough one, real skillful," according to Lowrance.

At 132 are two boys up from the jayvee, Alonzo Bullock and Mike Arnold. "They are talented, but unproven," Lowrance said. Another inexperienced wrestler Lowrance is depending on is Tom Parker at 138, also up from the jayvee squad. "He's pretty good, but it's hard to tell how he will do in varsity matches."

"Extremely unorthodox," is how Lowrance describes John Slover's wrestling technique, "unorthodox but effective." Slover, a 155 pound transfer student from Tennessee, does not have good style, but gets the job done. "He has such good balance, he can get away with things most boys couldn't," said his coach. It's just natural for him. I'm not sure what he is doing most of the time, and I couldn't teach his moves to anyone else."

There is a fight going on for the 167 position, between Frank Elkins, unbeaten in jayvee last year, and Dave Lansford, a returning letterman. "It's nip 'n' tuck," said Lowrance.

Don Rogers was the junior high heavyweight champion last year, but needs seasoning on the varsity before he realizes his full potential. "He's constantly improving though," noted Lowrance.

William Gay at 98 pounds and Mike Sage at 185 round out the squad, and give Lowrance a strong team to work with.

Tidewater is the powerhouse wrestling area in the state, and Lowrance epitomizes the type of young aggressive coach that perpetuates quality area wrestling. "Coaches around here know their wrestling," said Lowrance. "I've traveled all over the country and wrestling here is at least as good as anywhere else. The wrestlers improve and the competition gets better."

Kempsville now has a good program, and has given the Beach wrestling faithful someone to watch other than Cox. Just wait for Feb. 5.

Volleyball begins at Beach

By SHANNON COX
Park and Recreation

Volleyball in Virginia Beach, begins Jan. 5 when the Mixed Adult Volleyball League takes to the courts of Bay-side Junior High School. The program directed by Mr. R. C. Lebo, consists of 11 teams, with 18 players per team, six men and six women.

A team must always have three women and three men on the court at all times and no two men may volley the ball consecutively. A woman must volley the ball between two men, or she may volley the ball from another woman. The purpose being, to eliminate male dominance in the game.

Games have a one hour time limit with a 10-minute running clock. Six consecutive games are played. A team which scores 15 points and is at least two points ahead will be declared the winner. They must play all six games because it is the over-all win-loss record that will decide the champion.

The following teams and coaches have entered the League: Fidelity American Bank "Bumpers" (Sue Browder); "Key-dets" (Raymond Norman); Womble (Phillip Morgan); Virginia Beach "Spikers" (Talmage Dunn); Sir Galahad's "Bustlers" (Alton Hill); "Cats" (Joe Russell); "Panthers" (Thomas Gregory); Intensive Care Unit (Roger Allen); Nationwide (John Wakefield); Pequot (Bill Hart); Bayside Seaford (Emmett Sanford).

Of course, the adults are not the only "kids" playing volleyball. The city also has three girls basketball leagues. Pre-Teen (10-12), Junior (13 and 14) and Teen (15 - 18). Games begin Saturday, Jan. 8 at Bayside Junior. They play three consecutive games. The team which scores 15 points and is at least two points ahead is declared the winner. They must play all three games because the overall win-loss record decides the division championship.

The teams that make up the Pre-Teen League are as follows: Thalia Mallas "Thunderbolts" (Susan Whisman); Aragon's "Pembroke" "Spikers" (Judy Pearty); Arrowhead "Aces" (Lynn Clark); Green Run "Bobby Sox" (Butch Pettigrew); Plaza "Americans" (Diana Lacerda); Plaza "Patriots" (Larry Riggs); Plaza "Pilots" (Elsaine Belanger); Plaza "Wipeouts" (Frank White); D. S. Darlings (Sheri Groves); D. S. Spikettes I (Rick Pasco).

The teams that make up the Junior Girls League are as follows: D. S. Spikettes II (Reno Carter); D. S. Ding-A-Lings (Ray Revel); Thalia "Trenchers" (Ed English); Aragon's "Pembroke" "Balders" (Gerald Ryals); Arrowhead "Fire Fall" (Wayne Hatcher); Green Run Roadrunners (Anna Galbarth); Plaza Americans (John Craver); Plaza Patriots (Larry Riggs); Plaza Pilots (Larry Wilson); Plaza Wipeouts (Chester Sehnemans).

The teams that comprise the Teen Girls League are the following: Plaza Pacers (Bob Dickerson); Bayside Blasters (Betty Beasley); Thalia Cavalettes (Ron Wasson); Plaza Patriots (John Craver); Thalia Hustlers (Doris Whisman); Aragon's "Pembroke" Challengers (Ed Rucka); Arrowhead Aces (John Sweeney); Arrowhead Spikers (Lorraine McCabe); Kemps Blasters (Don Clark); Green Run Boomers (Kaye Hesley); Diamond Springs Spikettes III (Talmage Dunn).

If you would like additional information on volleyball or any other sport, you may call the Recreation Office at 497-5448.

7 played hockey

Bayside girls short in practice

Those who follow Bayside High's girls' sports, are apt to notice that to a large extent, many of the participants are the same girls going from sport to sport, as the season dictates.

A case in point is the fact that seven of coach Pat Griffin's basketballers played field hockey in the fall. "It puts us a little behind as far as practice is concerned," alleged coach Griffin.

Fortunately for the Lady Marlies, four of five starters from last year's 6-4 team returned, so experience is not a problem. However, against Beach teams, they went 1-4, and according to coach Griffin, "The whole Beach District has improved."

Starting for Bayside this year is last year's high scorer, Sue Jones at guard, Sylvia Eldson, also at guard, Bernadette Mosley at center, and forwards Cayli Carmack and Sandy Klingmeyer, last year's high rebounder. Debbie Webb is seeing a lot of action as sixth player.

PA garden club plans events

The Princess Anne Plaza Garden Club held its Nov. 17th meeting at the Plaza United Methodist Church at 7:30 p.m. and heard a program on "Flower Shows", "Christmas Mantels and Decorations of Doors", given by Mrs. Malcolm H. Todd Jr.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Jean Dunn and Mrs. Vi Barnes.

Club president, Mrs. Rae Retz, announced that the Christmas party would be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cayen on Garrison Place on December 18.

Mrs. Kathie Smith also announced that club members would be decorating a Christmas tree at the Medic Home health center and would be taking presents and favors to the patients as part of the club's garden therapy program for the aged. Mrs. Sally Copenhaver is co-chairman of the Garden Therapy Project.

The Garden Club will also be assisting the plaza civic league in providing food and gifts for a needy family this Christmas.

On Nov. 17 club members took food for a covered dish luncheon at the Medic Home Center and entertained 12 of the patients. This is a monthly project of the club to entertain patients at the home with either a birthday party or luncheon.

As a gift of appreciation to the Plaza United Methodist for providing the meeting place for the club, members are presenting two dried floral arrangements to go in the church sanctuary.

Anyone who is a resident of Princess Anne Plaza is welcomed to attend club meetings held on the 4th Wednesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. at the church. For further information call Mrs. Rae Retz at 486-7895 or Mrs. Dolores Moody, membership and attendance chairman, at 486-3879.

The Yard of the Month contest, sponsored by the club, was won by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fagan of 664 Carriage Hill Road, Carriage Hill. A certificate of merit will be presented to the Fagans, and the Yard of the Month sign will be displayed in their yard.

All the residents in the area are urged to spruce up their yards since judging is done monthly by club members, and all homes in the Plaza area are considered.

Hold your club meet at Jaycees building

If you're looking for a place for your club or organization to meet, or would like a place to hold a reception or party, why not look into the Jaycee Building?

The Virginia Beach Jaycees have now leased the former Pembroke Manor Community Center at 4452 Hindsdale St., Pembroke Manor, and have made many improvements, both major structural and cosmetic. This includes the installation of new carpet and vinyl throughout.

The Jaycees said the building now offers many attractive features, including a meeting room (tables and chairs available) for 100 seated persons, a large dance floor, kitchen facilities, restrooms and a coatroom. The building is centrally heated and air conditioned and has fluorescent lighting with dimmers.

Jaycees administrative vice president William E. Richeson said, "We are very proud of the Jaycee Building, and we take pleasure in making such a fine meeting/social facility available to our community." Richeson also said the Jaycees, to offset overhead costs, charge a small rental fee for groups using the facility.

All rental inquiries should be directed to Kevin Murphy at 490-0177 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday thru Friday.

Virginia Beach pork producer W. R. (Billy) Malbon (second from right) and three other Virginia pork men were recognized by the state's pork industry for their contributions. Others of Emporia, Malbon, and James G. recognized were (l to r) Ernest H. Parks of New Canos.

Billy Malbon cited as top pork man

A leading Virginia Beach pork producer and three other Virginia citizens were honored for their contribution to the state's pork industry during the 10th annual Virginia Pork Industry conference in Richmond Dec. 8.

W. R. (Billy) Malbon Jr. of Malbon Brothers Farm, Virginia Beach was cited for his work in rebuilding Malbon Farms from a production of 10,000 hogs in 1970 to 200,000 today.

For his efforts Malbon received the state pork industry's "Top Producer over age 40" award Malbon operates the state's largest pork finishing facility with his four brothers and two sons. The farm finishes 300,000 hogs annually; the state's production is about 800,000.

Malbon is a member of the Virginia Pork Industry Commission, on the founding board of directors of Bank of Virginia Beach, a member of the Oceana Lions Club and also the Tidewater Pork Producers Association.

He was selected at Virginia Beach's farmer of the year in 1966.

Council delays action

Study group gets $50m water problem

Virginia Beach City Council has turned its water and sewer financing problem over to a six-man study group, for the time being at least.

The committee appointed Monday has been assigned to consider various ways the city can raise money to complete $50 million worth of sewer and water projects over the next five years. Even before the committee was formed, one alternative seems unlikely to get anywhere. Four Virginia Beach legislators have indicated they will not introduce a charter change in the General Assembly during the 1977 session which would give the city greater bonding capacity. This means that the city will continue to be limited to a $10 million a year indebtedness in general obligation bonds, which, City Manager George L. Hanbury said, is the lowest in the state.

Under its present bonding capacity, Hanbury has said, the city will be unable to finance its utilities projects as well as its capital improvements projects with general obligation bonds. For this reason, Hanbury had suggested revenue bonds for the water and sewer projects. Revenue bonds would pay for themselves -- that is, from fees charged for water and sewer services. They are also more expensive and require an increase in water and sewer rates at the Beach. Citizens overwhelmingly objected to the increased rates and the higher cost of revenue bonds. These objections led to the formation of the committee to study the problem. Serving on the committee are two council members, Vice Mayor Patrick L. Standing and John A. Baum, Charles D. Meachum, G.L. Isdell, former council and immediate past president of the Council of Civic Organizations, A. J. Chewning II, retired civil engineer, and C.G. Harris, a developer and apartment owner and vice president of the Tidewater Builders Association.

Jordan low bidder for Green Run high

The W.M. Jordan construction company of Newport News was the low bidder and apparent winner of the contract to construct Virginia Beach's newest high school at Green Run.

Eight bids from area contractors were opened in the School Board room last Wednesday, and Jordan's bid of $7,870,000 was $40,000 less than the next closest bidder, J.F. O'Neally construction company.

Third lowest bidder was the J.W. Crouch construction company with $7,995,000.

The Virginia Beach School Board was to have met last night (Dec. 21) to give the contract bid its approval. School superintendent, Dr. E. E. Brickell, said in most cases, the lowest bidder was usually approved.

Green Run High School will have a capacity of 2,000 students and is slated for opening in the fall of 1979. The new high school is expected to relieve overcrowding in other city high schools, including Green Run and Kellam High.

The bid by Jordan was also approved by the architectural firm of William and Tanswell & Associates, designers of Green Run.

Bids are opened to see who will construct Virginia Beach's newest school, Green Run High School, last Wednesday. The low bidder was W.M. Jordan, Jr., managing partner for the Virginia Beach office of Green Run High School. (SUN photo by Gary Fullerton).

It becomes official Jan. 1, even though you might have been doing it on the Q-T and hoping the white Knight didn't see you.

On Jan. 1 a new law goes into effect in which motorists will be permitted to make right turns on red lights unless a special sign prohibits the turn. The law applies to state highways.

For the past eight months, engineers for the Virginia Department of Highways and Transportation have conducted studies of every intersection with traffic signals on state-maintained highways.

The engineers determined that in about 20 per cent of these intersections the situation would be too hazardous to permit a right turn on the red light, and therefore the special signs have been erected.

The signs, which were standardized by the federal highway administration, are oblong in shape and have black lettering on a white background. The lettering states: "No Turn On Red."

The engineers took many factors into consideration in determining which intersections should have the signs and those which didn't need them. Right distance, intersection design, sight design and pedestrian traffic were all weighed heavily in evaluating the safety of such a move.

The new law, which is expected to save millions of gallons of gasoline each year and relieve many traffic tie-ups, requires that the motorist come to a complete stop before making a right turn. Remember though, pedestrians and vehicles traveling with the green light still have the right of way.

He's making his list and checking it twice...

Canada suggests Virginia debates

Virginia Beach congressman A. Joe Canada Jr. has requested the Virginia League of Women Voters to conduct a series of debates between candidates seeking election next year to be Virginia governor, lieutenant governor and attorney general, similar to the presidential debates the organization conducted this year.

In a letter to Mrs. Earl Mense, president of the Virginia League of Women Voters, state senator Canada suggested two debates be held in the gubernatorial campaign next fall, and one debate for the candidates seeking the offices of lieutenant governor and attorney general.

Canada said the Commonwealth will be the scene of a vigorous campaign next year and that the League would be of tremendous service to the people of Virginia if such debates were to be held.

Public meeting

On Thursday, January 9, 1977 members of the General Assembly who represent Virginia Beach will hold a public meeting with citizens. The purpose of the meeting is to enable Virginia Beach residents to express their concerns about the upcoming General Assembly session convening January 12, 1977.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chambers, Administration Building, Princess Anne Municipal Center.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

This is a legal turn after Jan. 1. State highway engineers have been erecting signs at most intersections with a light in preparation for the

Jan. 1 law. (SUN photo by Gary Fullerton).

Council trips Great Neck rezoning move

Established residents of the Great Neck area got their way as Virginia Beach City Council turned down a rezoning request which would have allowed more apartments in the community.

But not because Council found all the reasons for the opposition well-founded.

Wilfred A. and Elsie R. Sechrist asked for a change of zoning from residential to apartment district on 8.03 acres located at the northeast corner of Wildwood Drive on Eastern Shore Road in Lynnhaven Borough.

The property adjoins two parcels which are already zoned for apartments. This zoning was acquired, however, when the owners planned to construct a nursing home on the property. When this plan fell through, owners decided to build up to 87 townhouses for sale on one tract and 103 apartments for rent on the other. These are under construction, according to Donald Rhodes, attorney for the Sechrist and for the owners of the other parcels.

City statistics show that the schools in the area are inadequate, but that traffic patterns were adequate. The Planning Commission recommended a denial of the petition because of the speculative nature of the zoning.

Grady Cobb claimed that apartments were not needed in the area and that the area was not a transient one and should not be a "commercial" one either. Charles E. Lee who lives in nearby

Camden estates did not think anything should be built on the land and charged that he had learned from a "reliable source in the city administration that most of the requests for utilities come from 'large developers and not individual citizens, but we're expected to bear the cost'."

Bill Drinkwater wanted Council to change the A-1 zoning on the other two parcels back to residential homes.

Councilman John R. Griffin said that since A-1 zoning was acquired through an error under original plans for a nursing home, the error shouldn't be compounded by rezoning the remaining parcel. He recommended denial which was passed unanimously by Council.

Vice Mayor Patrick L. Standing remarked, however, that the reasoning of the opposition was "not too good." The terms used by the residents "seems to exclude apartment dwellers as citizens of Virginia Beach."

Councilman Robert B. Cromwell Jr. referred to the statement made by Lee on utilities. "If they (city employees) are going to leak out information they should at least leak accurate information," he said.

City Manager George L. Hanbury explained that the $50 million water and sewer program was for existing neighborhoods for all of the sewer work and the majority of the water work.

Report due in 45 days

Mayor Clarence A. Holland met Friday with State Sen. Joe Canada Jr. and Glenn B. McClain, Owen B. Hickett and Bernard C. Barrow. None of these legislators was interested in introducing a charter change to increase the city's bonding limitations, he told Council Monday. He said the legislators were "sympathetic to the problem, but will not make any kind of change."

Councilman John A. Baum remarked that there seemed to be a breakdown in communications between the Council and the city's state legislators. "Sometimes the legislature is better at biting a marshall than in biting a bullet," he said.

Councilwoman Meyers Oberndorf, who with other council members had not been informed of the meeting of Holland and the legislators, remarked that maybe it was a case of bad communications between the Council members.

In addition to the revenue bonds and the general obligation bond financing, the first of which seems to be objectionable to the people and the second not possible under the present city charter, the City has only two other alternatives--

-To do nothing, which will leave virtually one-fourth of the population in established neighborhoods without water and sewage facilities.

-To take the problem directly to the people with a bond referendum. If the people approve, the city will be empowered to sell general obligation bonds for the projects outside of the limitations of the city's charter. But whether such a referendum would succeed is debatable. Even with general obligation bond financing, water and sewer users would face a rate increase. While the increase would not be quite as great as that to make residents, who are already being served by utilities and others who would not be included in the $50 million worth of projects, defeat the referendum.

The committee will have 30 to 45 days to come up with an answer. Members are being asked to study the report of the consultant on recommended water and sewer rates, but not to make specific recommendations on rates for specific groups.

In other action, Council:

Allowed withdrawal of a petition from the Bayshore Development Corporation to rezone from residential to community-business 43.5 acres located on the north side of Princess Anne Road, east of Oceana Boulevard; from agricultural to community-business 2.4 acres located east of the intersection of Oceana Boulevard and London Bridge Road; from R-3 Residential to R-3 Residential 4.5 acres on the east side of Oceana Boulevard, north of Princess Anne Road.

Approved the application of the Moose Lodge #1999 for a conditional use permit for a lodge to be built on 4.1 acres on Prosperity Road, east of General Booth Boulevard (KOA Campgrounds Area, Princess Anne Borough).

Approved an application of the Norfolk District of the Diocese of St. Luke's United Methodist Church for a conditional use permit for a church on five acres of property at the northeast corner of Holland Road and Stone Shore Road, Princess Anne Borough.

Approved a petition of Hudgins and Associates, Inc. for a conditional use permit for a duplex on the north side of 12th Street, east of Cypress Avenue, Virginia Beach Borough.

Authorized the city manager to accept a grant award of $11,110 from the Division of Justice and Crime Prevention for the training of regional juvenile corrections personnel. The grant includes a local match of $555, which will be provided by the Southeastern Virginia Planning District Commission.

Approved tax refunds of $613.61. Passed an ordinance closing, vacating and discontinuing a portion of Sand Trap Lane, Kempsville Borough, requested by Thomas J. Harlan Jr., and others. The action will result in the closing of a 577.5 foot section.

Authorized the city manager to convey .693 acre of land back to Mr. and Mrs. Jack H. Harris. The parcel in Princess Anne County was originally decided to be the site of the Harris' for a sewage and litter treatment plant which is no longer needed.

Sorry, city employees!

Councilman R. L. "Buddy" Riggs made his last ditch try to get city employees an extra half-day holiday for Christmas and lost for the third time.

Ordinarily, employees would have a day off on Christmas and the afternoon off on Christmas Eve. This year, however, Christmas comes on a Saturday so employees have Friday off but no half day as they would have if Christmas happened to be on a weekday.

Riggs, who has been radiating the holiday spirit for weeks and will freely admit, "I believe," reintroduced the subject Monday afternoon in light of the fact that state and federal employees will get Thursday afternoon off. Norfolk, also, has reversed itself and will give city employees Thursday afternoon off.

Councilman George R. Ferrell asked what effect the extra holiday would have on city operations.

City Manager George L. Hanbury remarked that employees would welcome the holiday, but for some city employees it would mean mostly holiday pay. The city has to maintain essential services and skeleton crews would have to be on hand.

Vice Mayor Patrick L. Standing, who remarked that the State "must not be in as bad shape as they let on to be," if they could have an extra holiday, said that he couldn't afford it in his business.

Mayor Clarence A. Holland said that he didn't think it was an economic way to run a business and Standing noted that public employees work for the public and when the public has to work, they won't understand why their employees are not working.

The Riggs motion lost by a vote of eight to two and one abstention. Council John R. Griffin voted with Riggs and Councilwoman Meyers Oberndorf abstained.

Anglin tops in class

James P. Anglin, 17, of Virginia Beach has been elected president of his 11th grade class at Milton Hershey School, a private school in Hershey, Pa.

Anglin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Anglin of 1275 Baker Rd., Virginia Beach.

Trip to Moscow

For two weeks in January the streets of Moscow and Leningrad will be the classroom for four Virginia Beach students of Virginia Wesleyan College.

The students will be studying Russia and Russian lifestyles during the college's annual January short course. The Beach students making the "mission to Moscow" are Maria Hudome, daughter of Mrs. Mary F. Hudome; Richard Maddox, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Maddox; Nancy E. Thrasher; and Evella Walton, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Charles E. Walton. According to Dr. Daniel Graf, Wesleyan's associate history professor, the students will have a week of preparatory discussions about life in contemporary Russia and then fly to Moscow to begin their "on-the-street" class.

ODU dorm rates go up next year

If you live in Virginia Beach and plan to attend Old Dominion University and rent one of the dormitory units on the Norfolk campus, be aware that those dormitory rates are going up next year.

For the 1977-78 year, the dormitory rates for Rogers-Gresham Halls will increase $100 from $1,350 to $1,450. The rents for the Powhatan dormitories now under construction will be $950 for the academic year and $1,250 for a full 12 months.

Larry T. Burroughs, university director of auxiliary enterprises, said the dormitory rate increase was caused by rising costs of services and staff.

Burroughs said the costs of running the dormitories has increased by eight percent and the salaries of employees have increased by 10 percent in each of the past two years. "Not to mention the steadily increasing costs of contractual services. These costs increase requests for an increase in revenues," said Burroughs.

Virginia Beach students might well compare the cost of renting dormitory space against the cost of commuting to and from ODU.

It's a folk art Christmas tree.

Jynise Ward (left) and Heather Wilson show their folk art decorations on the Christmas tree at Hermitage School. The tree was decorated with colonial times ornaments handmade by grades 1 through 4. The ornaments were designed after ideas taken from the book "Christmas Decorations from Williamsburg's Folk Art Collection." The children were taught how to make the ornaments by Hermitage's art teacher, Mrs. Carolyn Manning Setton. Among the handcrafted ornaments are soldier's hats, toy soldiers, burlap animals, baling twine wreaths, clove's bags, and wood shaving chains. (SUN photo by Gary Fallertion).

Christmas message from Mormon leader

President Spencer W. Kimball, world leader of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (the Mormons), has issued the following Christmas message:

"When I think of Christmas and what it means to me, I think of the question I have often been asked: 'How can I find meaning in the celebration of Christmas?' In attempting to answer this question, I seem always to revert to the same formula.

"First, get to know Jesus Christ... really know Him. To do this, it is appropriate that we celebrate His birth, but also our thoughts must turn to His life.

"Learn everything you can about Him.

"Pray.

"Conform your life to His teachings.

"Invite His spirit into your home: 'Ask for His companionship.

Above the bustle and bustle of shoppers at Montgomery Ward's department store at Jant Shopping Center, young ladies from Virginia Beach and Norfolk are learning to be models.

They're attending the "Wendy Ward" beauty and charm school, which features six weeks of instruction in advertising modeling, a course in self-improvement and even a course in commercial photography. The charm school is run by a charming young lady, Darlene Stevenson of Virginia Beach.

Darlene, whose poise, talent and experience bespeaks her young age of 20, says each course is open to anyone who wants to register. Each costs $20 for a six week period, and the class is held in the evenings or on a Saturday morning.

Ms. Stevenson says the Wendy Ward courses are not just for girls who want to become models. They're also for those who just want to improve themselves in carriage and grooming.

There's even a "Sugar and Spice" course for girls ages 4 to 8, which teaches etiquette, table manners, how to make introductions, posture, grooming and poise. This course is only $15 per week.

For the pre-teen, Wendy Ward features a "Crossroads to Charm" course which emphasizes grooming, skin and hair care, table manners, posture, wardrobe and manicure.

Darlene, 20 has the background and experience for instructing the modeling courses. She's a graduate of Charm Associates modeling school in Norfolk, and currently she's studying elementary education at the Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College. She also participated in the 1976 Miss Virginia Beach pageant.

Free lectures and fashion shows are also featured by the Wendy Ward school. They're available to schools and other organizations. For information on the courses or lectures/fashion shows, call Ms. Stevenson at Montgomery Wards, 461-4561.

Poise and practice go hand in hand, as Patty Kohler finds out.

"Be graceful" demonstrates Darlene to Kerry Dingwall, 1395 Little Neck Rd.

Cox Christmas concert 'magnificent,' first class

By BUD LOWE
SUN Band Reporter

Christmas is closer than you think! Everywhere you look there are crowds getting that last minute shopping out of the way. Traffic jams at all the shopping centers. Little men in red suits and long white beards are everywhere.

There is a different Christmas concert every night. To try and go to them all would be impossible. There have been as many as three in one night and all three at the same time. Talking to people that have been to many and going to some myself, I have discovered that all of them are about the same: excellent.

Betty F. Williams intermediate school was where one could have gone to see where it all gets started. These little ones played their hearts out and did a better than fair job. Their "A" band was superb. This was the group that will be going on to junior high next year, and Mrs. Sperry over at Bayside Junior is going to receive some talent that is sure to give her band a boost.

At the end, there was that familiar figure—the old guy with the white beard, Santa Claus. And as usual the kids thought he was just great, except for one little girl. Weeta Bell, band director at Betty F. Williams, can be justly proud of the show her group put on that night.

Then it was time for the high school concert at Cox high school, with Billy Cooper and his Troopers. This group was a definitely going first class all the way. But when it comes to Cox High School's band, there is no other way. There were truly magnificent in their performance. The high spot for the concert was the pair of outstanding trumpets that did the duet—Carl Peake and John Greenberg.

Ten selections were played—"Carols at Christmas Tide," "Carol for Another Christmas," "The Christmas Song," "Sleigh Ride," "Three Christmas Miniatures," and "Three Songs for Christmas."

A great selection of tunes for a Christmas concert. And everyone played to perfection. Cox High has one of the area best marching units, and from the sounds coming off the stage they do a good job at concert as well.

During a break in the action, Gary Hudson, director of the color guard at Cox, announced that Billy T. Cooper, band director for Cox High School, had been recently elected into the American School Band Directors Association. This is quite an honor and we here at the SUN would like to take this opportunity to congratulate Billy T. Cooper on being selected into the elite group of band directors.

There is still time left to go over to Princess Anne High School and see if that special tree you have been looking for is out there. They still have plenty of trees, and they do look good. So stop by and see if there isn't something of interest out there for you and your family. The

Christmas at the Beach: Mt. Trashmore tree lit

About 75 Beachers braved the cold wind and spitting rain atop Mt. Trashmore last Wednesday evening to witness the lighting of the 1976 Christmas tree.

Co-sponsored by the Cape Henry Women's Club and the Beach Parks and Recreation Department, the ceremony also included the singing of Christmas carols by children of the Prince of Peace Lutheran Day School and a performance of "Babes in Toyland", a youth activities program.

Appropriately, the children—ages three to five—began their caroling with "Go Tell It on the Mountain." Afterward, Christie Bentley, Barry Frankentfield and Jim Pence performed a short version of their "Babies in Toyland" Christmas routine which they have been presenting to school children K-2nd through the city.

Then City Manager George Basbury threw the switch, lighting the 15-foot tree atop Mt. Trashmore. The tree, with red lights, can be seen by motorists along the nearby Beach tollroad.

The difference is hitting the boards

By BLAIR THURMAN
SUN Sports Editor

Cruising along last week with a 3-0 record, Bayside High's basketball team was looking almost invincible, when back-to-back losses to Maury and Lake Taylor took a little of the glitter off their fast start.

It looked as if the losing streak would continue to three, and more importantly, include a district game, when on Friday night, the Marlins trailed Cox by six points at the half, and 10 after three quarters, on the Falcons' home court. Coach Johnny Dollar's squad regrouped, however, and outscored Cox 28-12 in the final frame to win 71-65. Bayside is rich in talent, and the two and three-quarter game lapse was somewhat surprising. Dollar attributes it to a lack of aggressiveness.

"We just weren't doing anything," noted the Marlins mentor. "In the first half against Cox, we didn't get a single offensive rebound."

Halfway through the third period, Dollar talked to his boys, and told them that standing around just wasn't going to cut it, and they wound up with 10 rebounds coming from the offensive end of the court. The front court men, Norman Billups, Paul Tyner and Wilbert Whaff, started doing what they are supposed to, crashing the boards. That made the difference. "We have got some real good shooters," said Dollar, "but you just have to get more than one shot."

Dollar also attributed the Marlins' ability to withstand the Falcons press as a vital key to their victory. Whaff led the Marlins with 23 points, and was "just tremendous," according to Dollar, while guard Kenny Cornick paced the Falcons with 15 points.

The win raised Bayside's overall record to 4-2 and 3-0 in the district. Cox dropped to 2-4.

Volleyball tourney exciting

Ricky Harper's squad won the volleyball tournament championship at Malibu Elementary School recently. The first game matched Jef Ford's squad against Harper's squad. Ford's team jumped out to an early four-nothing lead but Harper's squad came back and scored 15 points in a row to easily defeat Ford's squad 15-5.

The second game was no contest as John McHugh's squad rolled over Tom Theroux's by a score of 15-0.

The championship game was hardly a contest at all though there were a few good volleys as Ricky Harper's squad jumped on John McHugh's squad 15-2 in a beautiful show of serving skill by Harper's squad.

The members of the championship squad are: Ricky Harper-Captain, Jimmy Moore, Kevin Kelly, Martin Womack, Shawn Holley,

Gutermuth wins 100th

Cox and Kempville, probably the Beach's top wrestling contenders, each defeated Falls Church and Carfield, the Northern and Northwestern Region defending champions, over the weekend.

For coach Bill Gutermuth, the Friday and Saturday night victories represented his 99th and 100th wins, which when matched against his only four defeats and one tie, show just what he has done with the Cox wrestling program.

Kempville too beat the northern foes in the two-day doubleheader held in Kempville's gym. Chief coach Keith Lowrance said he was pleased with the wins, but that they can't be used as a true indicator of his talent. "There are still several boys who have to do the job consistently for us if we are to have a successful season," he said.

Year's end tennis tournament soon

The Hampton Roads Tennis Council's Christmas Indoor Tennis Tournament will be conducted on Dec. 29, 30 and 31 at two locations. The 12 and 14 boys and 18 boys and girls will play at the Centre Court in Newport News.

Dean Ives, a member of the Council's Tournament Committee and Manager of the Tidewater Tennis Center, is the Tournament Director for the 12 and 14 age group. Jack Armistead, Christopher Newport College Tennis coach, is Director for the 16 and 18 age group. Entry blanks have been distributed throughout Newport News, Hampton, Norfolk, Virginia Beach, Portsmouth, Suffolk and Richmond. Anyone that has not received an entry blank may obtain one from his local Tennis Patrons Association or from the tournament location on either side of Hampton Roads.

Anyone can participate in basketball leagues

By SHANNON COX,
Dept. of Parks and Recreation

Basketball is coming to many Virginia Beach schools Jan. 5, 1977, as the Recreation Department's basketball leagues get underway. The leagues include Midget, Intermediate, Junior and Senior for boys and Church, Duffer and Police and Fire for adults.

The Midget league is divided into eight divisions: Atlantic, Brookwood, Fairfield, Green Run, Kemp Landing, King's Grant, Pembroke Meadows and Point O'View. These boys play on Saturday mornings beginning at 9 a.m. and finishing about 1 p.m. They are between the ages of 10 and 12. Scores are usually low but the excitement is always high. They take the game very seriously and try to play like pros, but quite often end up tripping over their own shoelaces and falling on their faces.

The Intermediate leagues are divided into five divisions: Center for Effective Learning, Independence Junior, Lynhaven Junior, Plaza Junior and Newtown Elementary. These boys also play on Saturday mornings and finish about 1:30 p.m. Scoring is more prolific and the boys, ages 13 and 14, are more coordinated and have a better knowledge of the game. A lot of people show up for these games to watch youngsters improving on the overall fundamentals of shooting, passing and dribbling. Anyone who comes to watch these games will not be disappointed.

The Junior league for boys, ages 15 through 17, is faster and more intense than our two younger groups. This league demonstrates outstanding defense and tremendous show of offensive fire power. Most of these games are played at Cox High, Kempville Junior and Princess Anne Junior and have accommodations for many spectators. If you want to see a great game of basketball, these boys are the up and coming college superstars.

Last, but not least, we have a Senior league to offer. This league is made up of 16 teams with 15 young men on each squad. They play at Kemp Landing, Center for Effective Learning and Lynhaven Junior, and offer basketball at its best. This league includes outstanding players who have graduated from high school and those who still like the game and are not playing on any college teams. These boys are the best our city has to offer, so don't miss them.

Of course, if you are 20 years of age or older and are a member or active participant in the Church, Duffer, Police or Fire leagues, you can play in the Senior League. This is a slow-break league, but exciting. There are 14 teams with many outstanding players who have high school and college experience, and some that are just out there for the exercise. But they do take the game seriously and build up some fierce competition and rivalry. Maybe we should change the league's name from Church to that of the N.B.A.

On the same scale as our Church league for men and women 30 years of age or older. This is also a slow-break league and involves 11 teams. The ingredients of this league are experience, desire, past memories, beer and a long time love of the game. The games are terrific and even comical at times. Most of these games are played at the Center for Effective Learning and Kemps Landing.

Finally, the city has a Police and Fire/Rescue league. This is basically a private league for the Police and Fire Departments and has 11 teams entered. This league also includes two City Hall groups. They have altered their rules by allowing a fast break, contrary to our Church and Duffer rules, and the competition between these teams is not as intense or vigorous. If you are an outstanding player then you will look like "Dr. J" here. They play each Sunday, including Super Bowl Sunday, at Kellam High School. Hopefully this year, there will be no fire or rescue alarms to interfere with play.

If you wish more information on our community or adult leagues, you may call us (449-1115 or 497-5448) or come into our office at 4700 Recreation Drive, Virginia Beach, Va. 23456.

Fifty years ago when J. Causey Davis opened the Pine Tree Inn, it was little more than a roadside stand located midpoint between Norfolk and Virginia Beach. Weekend voyagers would stop to eat all the fresh clams and oysters they could for $1.

Today the dirt road has since changed into busy Virginia Beach Boulevard, but the visitor who steps inside the Pine Tree Inn today still knows the same quality food, impeccable service and leisurely colonial atmosphere that has been bringing back people for close to half a century.

Traditions, both old and new, are much of the charm of the inn. The inn's sticky buns that patrons have religiously purchased over the counter are the same as those sold day one and are as much a part of the Pine Tree Inn as Butters, who has been serving patrons in the same congenial, attentive manner for the past 25 years.

The menu offers traditional early American recipes brought back from Colonial Williamsburg, together with specialties of the inn like Beef Wellington. That's made from a classic recipe of choice beef tenderloin topped with liver pate and mushrooms and baked pastry shell.

Homemade oxtail soup made, as the name implies from tail of ox, is a dish I consider unusual on most menus today. "Surely other parts of the ox have more meat than the tail!"

Mr. McMannara explained that while the tail doesn't offer much meat, the tail-like neck of a chicken offers the tastiest meat on the animal.

Patrons enjoy breakfast in the Jefferson Room

Angela, master pie maker at the inn, made and sold over 500 other pecan, pumpkin, apple and lemon pies over Thanksgiving, so Colonial breakfast served Sundays between 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m.

In addition to a plentiful platter of ham, sausage, eggs, pan-browned potatoes and blueberry muffins served after juice and hot cinnamon buns, the breakfast includes a cup of their famous fish chowder which is itself a drawing card.

Then, if you haven't eaten enough, homemade apple delight topped with ice cream is served to wrap up the whole experience.

Upon completion, you've eaten enough rituals to hold you till at least the second quarter of the third football game. Everything great.

The inn, a landmark itself needs no further praise than to say that if you're doing something for 50 years you must be doing something right: at the Pine Tree Inn, they do it all right.

Persian kitties purr-ty pleased

Who says people don't know a real value when they see one?

Somebody did—and they got a dandy Christmas present because of it!

Even people in the newspaper business need a reminder from time to time about how effective classified advertising can be—and we got a "refresher course" in that last week.

A Norfolk woman had some cream-colored Persian papers and all-origami away! She phoned the SUN offices to place a Free Bee ad. And thereby hangs the tale (a kitten's tale, if you'll pardon the pun).

Somewhere between that phone call to the classified ad-visor and the typesetting room something happened, and a "name" in the caller's phone number metamorphosed into a six.

We found out about it the next day when a hatted housewife called us to say she was being defensed by "catcalls"—dozens of people wanted those Persians, and she didn't have 'em! To make matters worse, the person whose phone number appeared in the ad really doesn't care for cats—and we thought for a while a printer was at work...

The unsuspecting "cat agent" graciously took the phone numbers of callers though, as we did at the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN, and we set about tracking down the real number.

We got it—but not before we had at least 25 callers who wanted the Persians. That was after a day or two of that ads' first. We stopped keeping count after that.

Mrs. Sheila Powell, who owned the Persians, said she found fine homes for the animals.

She also said the house she got, she said, "We had loads and loads of call." (One even came from Knotts Island!)

Would Mrs. Powell repeat the ad? Not your boots, she said. Even if a mixed-up phone number, the SUN ad drew a tremendous response.

An ad we said in the beginning, we've heard it all before... you can capitalize on the popularity of the Free Bees and the other classified finds in Every Publication Community newspapers.

Find a home for an old refrigerator, a pet mouse or whatever—or turn some of your attic treasures into pocket money. Call 547-4571, and we'll tell you how to do it! (We'll even type your phone number right)

Modern Scrooge to bust Santa

Watch out, St. Nick.

A local police officer is hot on your tail with enough tickets and citations to insulate your toy shop at the North Pole. Our sources have not been able to confirm just who this stickler for the law is, but it is known that if you come over Virginia Beach this Christmas Eve, you could end up with eight tiny reindeer behind bars.

It seems that the warrants read in part:

St. Claus, also known as Santa or St. Nicholas, is hereby cited for:

--Accepting free labor from North Pole elves who are not covered by Workmen's Compensation, disability insurance, or social security.

--Failing to install an emission control device on his sleigh.

--Refusing to file a flight plan.

--Neglecting to use proper hand signals when stopping his vehicle.

--Forgetting to mount current license plates.

--Violating front and back light requirements, though the highway patrol suggests that the reindeer's tail lights do provide some illumination.

--Declining to register said vehicle with the Civil Aeronautics Board.

--Feeding at least one of his reindeer, known as Rudolph, an illegal ingredient to light up his nose.

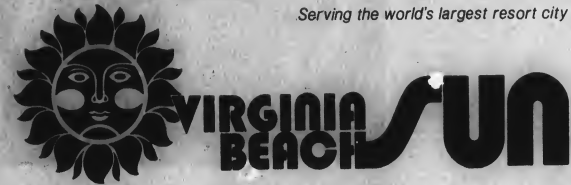

Officer "Scrooge" (as we call the anonymous lawman) called us recently and said, "Santa Claus has broken the law—in fact, many laws—and this citation is meant to put an end to his ho-ho-ho bumbum."

The officer has said that he will nab Santa "for these and many other violations... whether he be on roof or in flight."

Keep on truckin', Santa! —

'Chief, this is your daughter...'

Airman recruit Bonita Collis is following in her father's footsteps.

Not only did she join the Navy like her father, Chief Petty Officer Eugene Collis, but she received orders to the same base, Oceana Naval Air Station.

Chief Collis and his daughter are happy and feel that more women should try for father-daughter duty.

"After all," Chief Collis said, "for many years people have been talking of the advantages of father-daughter duty. Why should we not have the same advantage?"

Bonita feels that being a Navy "brat" has been very helpful to her short Navy career. "I received a lot of good advice from my dad so 'bootcamp' was a real snap for me," she said. The Collis' getting together at Oceana wasn't the result of guaranteed orders. Bonita requested father-daughter duty during recruit training and hoped for the best. She was really shocked when she received orders here. "It's just great being with my dad," Bonita said.

The Chief feels the same. He commented, however, with a twinkle in his eyes, "She's already found a few things wrong with my uniform since reporting aboard."

Chief Collis is the BEQ manager for Barracks 431, and Bonita is assigned to the First Lieutenant's division. She hopes to become an aviation maintenance administrator. She's also thinking of making a career out of the Navy, just like her dad has.

asked how he feels about his daughter receiving father-daughter orders, he just smiles and says, "dreams and Christmas wishes do come true."

Child development classes in Virginia Beach

Parents learn more about parenthood

Many parents of pre-school age children in Chesapeake and Virginia Beach apparently want to learn more about how to better parent.

Their requests for child rearing advice and information from extension agents have led to classes on child rearing during the past two years.

The first series of four child development classes was started early in 1975 by agents and Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program (EFNEP) technicians.

Mrs. Betsy Schenck, Extension specialist in child development at Virginia State College, Petersburg, helped Extension agents, Mrs. Mildred A. Brady and Mrs. Vera B. Kueble to plan and teach these classes. A child development specialist at the Chesapeake Public Library also assisted in planning.

Mrs. Brady said that participants' response led to the series being offered twice last year and they plan to offer a similar program this spring.

"They were a highly motivated group. They came seeking information, asked many questions and wanted to discuss their child rearing practices," Mrs. Brady added.

Not only parents have benefitted from the classes, but children as well. While the parents were in child rearing sessions held at the library, their children participated in play and learning activities in another room. EFNEP technicians, the children's librarian and volunteers supervised the kids in nutrition nursery rhymes, coloring food pictures, story telling, active games, movies and snacks.

While class participants were mainly mothers, a few fathers and kindergarten teachers were also among the 50 or so persons at the first session, where Mrs. Schenck talked about the child's self-concept. The first four sessions had an average attendance of 38 parents and 44 children.

Participants came from the neighboring cities of Norfolk, Virginia Beach and Suffolk, as well as Chesapeake.

Mrs. Schenck also taught the sessions on effective parenting, discipline and self control. Mrs. Brady taught the final session on the feeding of young children.

New topics were covered in the 1976 sessions and the series was divided into six parts instead of four—communication with young children, understanding the pre-schooler, social and emotional development, school begins at home, moral development—building the child's conscience, and guidelines for teaching self-control. The first topic was taught by Mrs. Schenck, and the two Extension agents alternated teaching the others.

Interest and demand were still high in the second year. Space limited the class size to 25 mothers, and the ones who participated in the previous series had requested more information were given priority. Average attendance was 17 mothers and 15 children, and the series was repeated during the summer for low income families.

In the evaluations, the parents reported liking the small classes and the informal atmosphere. Learning from each other was as important and helpful as information learned from the teachers, they said. After the first session, many described the material as new to them and interesting, and said they intended to return to later sessions.

One mother who thought she knew how to feed children, later commented, "I learned a lot of nutrition today... I didn't realize there was so much to know."

The evaluation showed 36 positive behavior changes in relation to methods of discipline, communication between parents and children, expression of understandable feelings, monitoring television content for children and the time they spend watching television.

The parents said they tried out their newly learned skills of stating instructions to the child in a positive manner, using methods of punishment other than spanking, praising the child for acceptable behavior more often, and discussing with the child the need to vent anger and more acceptable ways to do this.

The parents also suggested several topics for future programs and generated more interest in the classes by taking tape recordings home to share with husbands and friends. The agents suggested that the parents also take the reading list home and use it as a guide for a study group in the neighborhood.

"We found from the evaluations that newspapers were the most effective means of publicizing the classes, but we also used the Extension newsletter and posted announcements in the libraries," Mrs. Brady said.

Owens named to VPI council

William L. Owens, president of Virginia Beach Federal Savings and Loan Association, had been named to the College of Business Advisory Council of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

Established in 1970, the advisory council serves as a bridge between the academic and the business environment. Owens and other members of the council are charged with providing counsel to the dean and faculty on new business developments and with acting as a sounding board for present and proposed activities of the College of Business.

Owens will join 23 other members of the advisory council which included such prominent business leaders as Samuel E. Bonseck, president, Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Companies; Charles G. Thalhimer, president, Thalhimer; William R. Battie, president, Shenandoah Life Insurance Company; and Senator William E. Brock of Tennessee.

A 1960 graduate of VPI, Owens also received his MBA there in 1961.

Earning extra money for the holidays was easy for Scott Morris, 8. The youngster collected aluminum beverage cans all year and recycled them for cash at the Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Company's recycling center. Scott got 15 cents a pound for his efforts in recycling cans and other clean household aluminum. Reynolds operates 73 permanent facilities and 150 mobile recycling units at almost 800 collection points in 45 states. The Virginia Beach recycling service center is located at 1435 Air Rail Avenue and is open Tuesday through Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. (Photo by Reynolds Metal Co.).

IC-HI looks to future

A meeting of the "I Can't Help It" (IC-HI) club will be held at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 13, at the Emmanuel Lutheran Church, 301 Lynn Shore Drive. The purpose of the meeting is to plan recreational activities for the coming year, sign up new members, and fill vacant committee positions for the Virginia Beach Chapter of the "I Can't Help It" club.

The club is attempting to organize meaningful recreational activities for handicapped persons. December's activity was a Christmas dance attended by approximately 60-75 club members.

January's event will be a fun-filled afternoon of games - bingo, bean-bag toss, and other competitive games - with prizes awarded to the winners. These are some of the kinds of activities the club hopes to organize in the future, and their success depends upon your interest, support and participation.

All parents and families of handicapped persons in the Virginia Beach area are urged to attend this meeting. Other persons interested in helping handicapped people and wanting to volunteer their time or services are also invited.

Contact Harry E. Baird Jr., 486-3110, if further information is desired.

Social security

Residents can collect at 62

Most Virginia Beach men and women who reach 62 in 1977 can collect monthly social security checks if they've worked as little as 6 1/2 years in jobs covered by social security.

Residents earn retirement benefits by credit for work covered by social security done in or after 1937, the year social security started. The work credit is measured in calendar quarters: January-March, April-June, July-September, or October-December.

Most employees get credit for a quarter of work if they've paid $50 or more, in that quarter, for work covered by social security. Most self-employed residents get social security credit for four quarters in any year their annual self-employment net income is $400 or more. Most job and self-employment are covered by social security.

To be eligible for social-security retirement benefits, you need at a minimum quarters of work equal to the number of years between 1950 and the year you reach 62. So, if you reach 62 in 1977, you need 26 quarters--or 6 1/2 years--of work credit.

Eligible workers can start collecting their full social security retirement benefits at 65 or reduced benefits at 62. Dependents can also get payments based on the worker's earnings record.

Quarters of work credit help determine eligibility for social security retirement benefits, but they don't affect the amount of your monthly check. Your monthly payment--or your family's payment--is based on your average earnings covered by social security over a set period of time.

Social security now pays over $4.1 billion a month in retirement benefits to over 20 million people--16.7 million retired workers and their families. The average monthly payment to a retired worker with no dependents is $317. The Norfolk social security office is at 3661 E. Virginia Beach Blvd.

Outspoken critic of schools offers thoughts, proposals

By STEVE STONE
Special to the SUN

Brandon Brown never planned to become a Virginia Beach resident, "It was a serendipitous accident," he explains, "but I walked into a good job offer and couldn't say no."

At 26, Brown is a teacher in the Portsmouth Psychiatric Center where he is an education therapist working with several of the private school's students.

His pupils are officially called "emotionally disturbed" but Brown says, "There is no such thing as emotionally disturbed. They (the children) just can not handle their environment and are disturbing to others."

"They have called attention to themselves by being disturbing, not because they are disturbed."

He finds the work with his small class, about six students, rewarding. Each student is handled as an individual and Brown's chief effort is to find that within each student that can motivate them.

but there isn't much more the teacher can do with what they have. They are told what to teach, with what books, when to do it and where."

Brown, who has taught in the public school systems, feels that the system is self-defeating. He explains that not enough money is being spent, and that much of it that is expended goes into the wrong areas. For an example, he cites the fact that many school systems will purchase materials on a year-by-year basis rather than with an eye to the future. Thus the expenditure is eventually lost and wasted. He feels that teachers are working in spite of the system and not because of it. "If a student learns something its because of the teacher, not the school system."

"General Motors takes in an exorbitant sum of money and spends a great deal of money and they make a buck. The school systems generally take in large sums of money, spend it all and the students they turn out can not read or write."

Non-productive management is another problem Brown has seen in public education. He feels that administrators need to be more involved and need to demand more from their faculties, but first they must be sure to give the teachers plenty to work with and more reward for achievement. Greater emphasis on the teacher's role is needed.

In answer to the problems he sees with school systems, Brown feels that a greater attention needs to be paid to teaching those things that a child needs to know in order to survive. "Make sure they can read and write, fill out employment forms and tax forms. Teach them how to buy clothes and cook and find a job."

He also feels that while large amounts of tax dollars are going to education now, more must be spent to insure quality education. "If you want quality teachers, you are going to have to pay for them."

"As it stands now the average teacher only gets about $100 for a class of about 30 students to pay for supplies, eventually they must spend their own money just to help students have the bare necessities."

He also feels that greater emphasis needs to be placed on what the children do best. "Using their bodies and enthusiasm." But he has found that such efforts are often unappreciated in Public Schools. A case in point occurred while teaching students how to use tools and read blueprints in order to make bird houses. "They were learning and having fun, but all the school thought of was the noise and the scratches and cuts on the desks because we didn't have vices to us."

Brown, who holds a B.A. in psychology and is working towards his masters with part-time schooling at Old Dominion University, would eventually like to work in an "outward bound" type of program. "The students become more interested and enthusiastic when you are speaking of their survival." He wants students to be placed in a situation of making their shelter, fixing their own food, cleaning their clothes and learning to appreciate survival from the stand-point of taking pride in achievement.

Brown is an outspoken critic indeed of public education, but unlike many who speak badly of the system, he offers some ideas and proposals, and he has instituted many of them successfully with his classes at the Portsmouth center.

In a final thought, Brown expresses a fear for the days ahead in public education unless more is spent and properly managed and unless new philosophies of education are adopted. "Otherwise schools are closing and schools in West Virginia may close early because of no money. What are we going to do with closed schools and an uneducated generation?"

Brandon Brown

"You have to find something that they can do and succeed in," explains the Lynchburg State College graduate, "They just think that they are ugly and the world is great." For some it is working with machines, for others it is space related sciences and studies. "They don't always get it right, but they are trying."

Some of his methods and ways may seem strange to those more knowledgeable of the public school system which Brown sees as basically ineffective.

One such project involved the drawing of 2,000 circles on a large sheet of paper. This was then reproduced 900 times. "Once they had covered the boards, walls, and most of the ceilings they could begin to comprehend just how much a million is, and when I told them that only one page represented the number of years of man's civilization, they saw how short our stay here has been."

Another project will put Brown's ten-speed bike on the line. For a physical science study, Brown's students will disassemble his bike to locate all the individual machines in it. "They have to put it back together again right if they want a passing grade," he quips.

Still another project involved making bread with live yeast to experience yeast's function.

Brown likes to get his kids out of the classroom. He is in disagreement with traditional attitudes of sitting students down in an office like atmosphere and expecting them to learn. "Most students (in the public school system) realize in their second year that learning is something that will be forced to do, so they don't try unless made to." This attitude, Brown believes, also exists between teachers and administrators.

"When students are not learning their parents blame it all on the teacher,

Shad, herring study for Va, NC

The Virginia Institute of Marine Science (VIMS) and the North Carolina Department of Natural and Economic Resources has received a three-year contract to develop management alternatives for anadromous fish, including American shad and river herring.

The federal and state study will cost $366,930 and will encompass an area of the coastline, south from Cape May, N.J. south to Cape Lookout, N.C. including the Chesapeake Bay and Albemarle Sound.

The project is funded by the National Marine Fisheries Service, the Commonwealth of Virginia and the state of North Carolina.

According to VIMS' Dr. Joseph G. Loesch, the study will yield improved evaluations of shad and herring stocks available in the area. The data will be used in unified management programs under a state and federal cooperative agreement to avoid over-exploitation of these fishes.

Dr. Loesch said, "What we learn from this project can be applied to fish other than shad and herring."

This is the first time both states have made a joint application for federal assistance to deal with a mutual fisheries problem.

The study will run from last November through October 1979.

"Should Council approve dune bulkheads?"

Chesapeake Beach issue a sticky one

By LEE CAHILL
Sun Public Affairs Writer

Two individuals want the Virginia Beach City Council to give them a variance from existing city policy which would allow them to build homes on the Chesapeake Beach bay front.

After hearing from city administrators who are opposed to the development and from the prospective builders, Council decided to go look at the property before trying to determine what should be done.

The city has established a bulkhead line to go along the six foot high contour line of the beach. The problem is that the contour line is changeable and now occurs, in relation to the property in question, in such a way that the bulkhead would have to be placed through the lots leaving only 25 feet of useable property on what are 70-foot deep lots.

That is, only the property located behind the bulkhead would be useable. Involved are 20 25-foot wide lots which builders plan to combine into 10 50-foot building sites. Two of the lots are owned by Bruce Mills, an attorney who wants to build his home there, and all but one of the others are owned by Ike Hedgepeth who has given an option on the property to Jim Wood, a developer who wants to build his own home (as well as others for sale. Mills has owned his property since 1972. The lots are located between Baufort Avenue and the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel. City Engineer Oral Lambert said that to allow construction on the lots the city would compromise its six foot line bulkhead requirement. He added that there is no detailed study available for the south shore of the Chesapeake Bay, but that a 1970 report of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers states that the "stabilization, nourishment and preservation of the existing dune system is just as serious on the bay as it is on the ocean front." Man-made structures will lead to the same problems being experienced on the Atlantic. Lambert added that the study concludes that nothing less can be recommended for the Bayfront than for the oceanfront.

Lambert said the city has already allowed some compromises on the bay. Where the Corps has recommended the height of the bulkheads should be 15 feet, the city has allowed an elevation of 12 feet. Mills and Wood, he said, are asking to compromise even more.

The dune line, he said, occurs on Ocean View Avenue, an undeveloped street which would have to be paved to provide egress and an ingress to the property. This would risk the dunes, he said.

Mills said the dunes are practically non-existent on the street and that while the street is a 70-foot right of way, the developers are asking for only 20 feet. G. C. Freeman, of Freeman and Johnson, engineers, said there is only one large dune on the street.

Mills also said that if the developers were allowed to put the bulkhead in front of the property, the top elevation would be 12 feet but that the homes on pilings would be raised 15 to 20 feet.

Mills said that the homes would qualify for federal flood insurance because of the piling construction and elevation.

City Manager George L. Hanbury said that "we do not wish to deter anyone from building on his own property, but we do not want to allow the destruction of the dunes."

Vice Mayor Patrick L. Standing said that "he didn't know to what extent we're required to protect the public."

Hanbury said that under provisions of the federal government, Council passed a resolution to control the flood plains. "This is difficult where we don't own or control the property."

He also expressed concern that if homes were allowed to be constructed too close to the surf line there would be no beach left for the public. Although most of the beach is privately owned along the bay, he said, the public uses it and the city has been trying to retain beaches for the public.

Councilman Robert B. Cromwell Jr. said that he was interested in preserving some kind of beach and "if they're going to build down to the water line, I'm opposed."

Mills claims there would still be 70 feet in front of the proposed bulkhead while there is only 25 feet in front of the established homes.

Councilman A. B. Baum pointed out that in cases of disaster, people turn to the city for help.

Cromwell said there is still the question of the rights of the city on private property and suggested that the city find out how Norfolk, which

Artist's concept of new water slide to be at 30th Street and Holley Road
New Beach tourist attraction

Council thumbs up beachfront slide

Virginia Beach's first water slide is scheduled to go up -- and down -- on 2.4 acres at the southwest intersection of 30th Street extended and Holley Road in Lynnhaven Borough. City Council last week approved a conditional use permit for the slide requested by Richard M. Gusler and Noel Gusler Jr. During the same session, Council deferred for 60 days an application of the Gibson Equipment Co., Inc. for a conditional use permit for a water slide on 4.5 acres at the southeast intersection of the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway and Birdneck Road. The Gibson application was the second for the construction of a water slide in the vicinity of the site of the Arts and Conference Center, and both were opposed by the Planning Commission as unallowable use for the area.

Council turned down on Oct. 12 the issuance of a conditional use permit for the construction of a water slide on the clock bordered by 21st Street, Parks Avenue, 22nd Street and Cypress Avenue at the eastern terminus of the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway. At the same time, City Manager George L. Hanbury was directed to prepare a plan for development in the vicinity of the center so that development would conform with the aesthetics and uses of the center. Council was concerned with possibly jeopardizing the $16 million investment it will have in the center. Dec. 20 Hanbury said that the report on uses for the area should be ready after the first of the year and before the Gibson request will be considered again. The petition was deferred at the request of Jack Gibson, a principal of the firm.

The 4.5 acre parcel is part of the 53-acre parcel of land owned by Jack Gibson and his brothers C. Roger and Thomas Gibson which was zoned from B-2 to B-4 on Sept. 27 by City Council to facilitate the construction of the Arts and Conference Center. The Center will be located on approximately 28 acres of the land which is being donated to the city by the Gibsons in return for installation of utilities for a motel the Gibsons are planning to build on adjoining acreage.

Until Hanbury's study is available, Council is using special caution to control development in the area.

The slide, which is being located on a dump site, is a water flume which will carry riders up and down small hills at $2 a half hour. The flumes end in a swimming pool, and a similar recreational attraction in Ocean Park, Md., Richard Gusler said, carries an average of 1250 people a day.

The Guslers have agreed to put in a $50 sewer line to handle the extra flow which will be generated.

Right on red is right Jan. 1

Just a friendly reminder that Jan. 1 will bring a dramatic change in your driving habits around Virginia Beach and the rest of the state.

On that date, you can legally make a right turn on a red light after coming to a complete stop and yielding to all other cars and pedestrians.

The new law is expected to help motorists save time and gasoline (estimated at about three million gallons yearly) and to comply with the Uniform Vehicle Code. Most states, including neighboring North Carolina and West Virginia, now allow right turns on red.

The state highway safety division urges all drivers to take advantage of the new law. The following steps are recommended:

1. Come to a complete stop at the red light. When you are behind another turning vehicle, never proceed without first coming to a complete stop.
2. Make sure there is not a "No Turn on Red" sign posted at the intersection.
3. Check to see that no cars are coming from your left or from across the intersection from you.
4. Make sure there are no pedestrians crossing the intersection.
5. If there are no cars or pedestrians in the roadway, turn right and go on your way.

Special caution to pedestrians. Be alert to the new law and be watchful for cars turning the corner.

Happy driving!

McCoy wants curb on city spending

Councilman J. Henry McCoy Jr. suggested the city of Virginia Beach follow the lead of its neighbor, Portsmouth, and curtail spending for a while.

Virginia Beach City Council, however, decided last week to wait until the Jan. 3 meeting to give City Manager George L. Hanbury time to prepare a report on what curtailment will mean to the city.

The suggestion was made in light of the report of Gov. Mills E. Godwin Jr. that the state can expect a shortage of $117 million in revenue during the year which will mean a cut for localities. The Portsmouth Council called a six-month moratorium on spending last week, and McCoy suggested a four to six month halt for all but emergency items.

Councilmen seemed to agree generally, but Vice Mayor Patrick L. Standing pointed out that the situation was different between the two cities. "A lot is going on in Virginia Beach and not in Portsmouth."

Hanbury said the state's figures represent an overestimate of the income tax rather than a deficiency in the revenue.

Daniel says no to draft evaders

Fourth District congressman Bob Daniel has joined 105 of his colleagues in asking President-elect Jimmy Carter not to issue a pardon to Vietnam era draft evaders.

As members of the U.S. House of Representatives, the congressmen wrote in a December 17 letter, "we respectfully request that you reconsider your pledge to issue a pardon for all Vietnam era draft evaders upon taking office in January." The congressmen told the President elect that they felt "it is important for you to know there is a large body of bipartisan opposition to the pardon."

The letter noted that the signers have their "own individual reasons for opposing what amounts to a blanket pardon" but it added that the congressmen "are united in asking for your consideration of this decision."

An organ donation card

Something new (not money) for your wallet

Legislation effective Jan. 1 will mean three changes for Tidewater Virginians: a new look in driver's licenses, an additional 1 per cent sales tax on mobile homes, and special license plates with lower fees for certain farm vehicles, according to Vera Hill, commissioner, Division of Motor Vehicles.

The new driver's license will include a Uniform Donor Document, to be completed by people who want to donate their organs for transplants. It will be sandwiched between the license itself and the change of address card.

"This form is being made available as a public service," Hill said. "No one is required to participate in the program. In fact, no records are kept on potential donors." If an individual wishes to donate his organs, he completes the card and keeps it with his driver's license. If he later changes his mind, he simply destroys the card. People who do not want to make such a donation may leave the card blank or destroy it.

Also effective Jan. 1, the additional tax on the sale of mobile homes means that buyers must now pay a 3 per cent sales and use tax on mobile homes which will not be used for travel. Instead of the current two per cent. This revenue will be returned to the locality in which the mobile home is located.

Also effective Jan. 1, the Division of Motor Vehicles will begin issuing special farm vehicle license plates for two-wheeled vehicles of 1500 pounds gross weight or more. The fee for the special farm plates will be half the annual fee for regular private licenses, but not less than $15.

In addition to the weight and axle criteria for special farm vehicle plates, the vehicles must be used only to transport farm and forest products, equipment and materials; be restricted to specific personal-use farm uses such as taking the owner and immediate family to church, school, the doctor, etc.; be registered to the owner, operator or renter of a farm from which $50 or more of agricultural, horticultural, poultry or livestock products were sold during a year; or a farm containing 10 acres or more from which $50 or more of the above products were sold during a year; and the vehicle must not be used for hire.

The plates will carry the words "Farm Vehicle" at the bottom and will be issued in series beginning with the letter F followed by numerals.

Motor vehicles displaying the special licenses are subject to the same rules, regulations, insurance and safety requirements as all other vehicles licensed to operate in Virginia.

Carolynn Guthrie at Womens Aglow meet

Carolynn Guthrie, guest coordinator for the Christian Broadcasting Network's "700 Club," will be the guest speaker at the Jan. 2 luncheon meeting of the Virginia Beach Women's Aglow Fellowship at Lake Wright Motel.

Mrs. Guthrie will share her testimony about how God intervened in her physical life and how He met her in a remarkable spiritual "at home" conversion encounter.

The Women's Aglow Fellowship also invites you to spend a Valentine evening with CBN president Pat Robertson and his wife Deje at the Omni Hotel Feb. 11.

Reservations for the evening are a must because of the expected capacity crowd. Price will be $7.50 per person.

For both meetings, please contact Debit Underhill at 420-2659 for reservations.

Bulkhead Beach?

Wills and Wood claim they are only asking to build their bulkhead in line with bulkheads already in existence, and claim that the city has granted permits to build on the east side of the tunnel.

Students dress up doors, win Jr. Women's contest

The Cavalier Junior Women's Club held their third annual Christmas door, decorating contest Dec. 17 at Pembroke Elementary School.

Judging the many door entries in the various decorating themes were Mrs. Betsy Doxey, president of the Cavalier Jr., and Joan Ware, a member of the school's fine arts department.

Winners in their categories were:

Honorable mention, Mrs. Willis' 5th grade class. Her classroom door featured hand drawings of the many spirits of Christmas.

Special Education Class, first place, Mrs. Le Boeuf. Her door featured an original five-foot concept of Frosty the Snowman, done with individual cotton balls. Frosty covered the whole classroom door.

7th grade, first place, Mr. Anderson. His classroom door featured an excellent three-dimensional tree place, complete with knit stockings for the mantle, presents, cookies for Santa, a candle and Santa's feet bounding down the chimney.

Honorable mention, Mrs. Hunt's 6th grade class, whose door featured a large cut-out house with Santa putting his bag of presents down the chimney.

The Cavalier Jr. also provided gifts and a box of Christmas goodies for the Less-Secure Unit of the Tidewater Detention Home. One hundred tree ornaments, along with clothing and shoes for the boys and girls, were also donated.

The third Christmas project in which the Cavalier Jr. were involved was a Christmas party at the Southeastern Hospital in Chesapeake. The party and gifts were in conjunction with the group's mother club, the Kempsville Woman's Club, Mrs. Virginia Brown, president.

Bayside PTA to have panel discussion

The Bayside High School Parents Teachers Association meeting will be held Thursday, Jan. 6, in the school auditorium at 4960 Baywood Road, Virginia Beach. After a brief business meeting beginning at 7:30 p.m., a social school and youth panel discussion program will follow. Guest panelists will be The Honorable Vincent Thomas, mayor of the city of Norfolk and chairman of the State Board of Education; The Honorable Stanley C. Walker, senator of Virginia and chairman of the Virginia State Crime Commission; Dr. Marlow Kollar, clinical psychologist of Centurion Psychiatric, Virginia Beach; and Portsmouth, who works with the adolescent/parent unit; and J. Hugo Madison, prominent Tidewater attorney and a member of the Southern Regional Educational Board. Robert E. Edison, PTA president, invites all parents and interested friends to attend this informative meeting. Refreshments will be served.

College award to Jewell

Madison College Junior Michael B. Jewell of 924 General St., Virginia Beach, has received the grand master cash award from Kappa Sigma fraternity.

The award, recognizing scholarship and leadership, was presented at Kappa Sigma's National Founders Day banquet held in Washington, D. C., in early December.

Jewell is majoring in biology at Madison.

A New Year- A New Life!

We greet each New Year with brave resolutions. Yet as another year dawns we find a close we have to admit that we have failed to fulfill our expectations for ourselves. Why do we fail? What is wrong with our lives? We are all human, we are far from perfect, therefore, we need something greater than ourselves to help us to become the human beings that we are capable of being.

Make this New Year different. Include God in your life. Ask His help in fulfilling your resolutions. Remember with God all things are possible. Finish this New Year and a New Life!

Beach seniors Apply now to work in woods this summer

Virginia High School Seniors who plan to pursue careers in the natural resources field are eligible to apply for summer jobs with federal resource agencies, reports Game Commission Executive Director, Chester F. Phelps. Phelps is serving as chairman of the Virginia Selection Committee, which will determine which students will participate in the program, which is jointly sponsored by the Department of the Interior, the United States Forest Service, the National Marine Fisheries Service and the Izaak Walton League of America.

Those eligible to apply for the summer employment program must be high school seniors in the Virginia school system. Applicants must be 18 years of age by June 15, 1977 and must be willing to accept an assignment anywhere in the United States.

To apply, students should supply a completed U. S. Government Form #71, which is available at any Federal Job Information Center or by contacting the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries at Box 1104, Richmond VA 23230. The Federal Job Information Centers are listed in local phone directories and information may also be obtained by calling toll free to Area Code 800/582-4171. The applicants must also furnish a transcript of their high school record and a letter of recommendation from an adult (outside the family) who knows the qualifications of the student. Additionally, the student is asked to write a letter indicating plans for college or career plans, involvement in past or current extra curricular activities in high school and any conservation oriented work that has been performed. Reasons for seeking employment under the program should also be stressed.

Applications and supporting data must be mailed and postmarked not later than February 18, 1977 to the following address: IWLA Summer Employment Program, P.O. Box 1104, Richmond, Virginia 23230.

Competition is keen for the available positions and the young people selected will be placed in positions such as conservation aides, laborers, survey aides or topographic and hydro-graphic field assistants. Applications will not be considered from students seeking employment in a specific National Park or other specified locality. More than 600 high school seniors throughout the United States applied for the summer jobs in the 1976 program, which saw a total of 65 achieving the goal. Five of those selected were Virginia students.

You a struggling artist?

Virginia Beach artists, if you've been struggling along feeling very unrecognized and unappreciated and even feel like cutting off your ear to rain just a bit of recognition, here's your chance. Drop your palette and oils and immediately gather your material to register for the Undiscovered Artists show at the Virginia Beach Arts Center Jan. 9 thru 26.

The Center, located at 18th and Arctic Avenues, is launching the first of an annual series of Undiscovered Artists shows.

January's show will be juried by two distinguished judges: painter and teacher A.B. Jackson, and Chrysler Museum official Mario Amaya.

Jackson has been called Tidewater's leading painter, and Amaya has an international reputation as a critic, author and all-around art expert.

You (the unrecognized artist) can enter two of your works in three categories: painting, sculpture or graphics. Bring them to the Arts Center between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. from Jan. 4 to Jan. 6. There is a slight entry fee of $2 for each work.

Swann boosts chemistry

A Virginia Beach chemistry teacher is working with other Tidewater educators in helping to establish the Tidewater Association of Chemistry Teachers.

Robert Swann, a chemistry teacher at First Colonial High School, has been named president of the group.

The association was formed to help bridge the gap between high school and college chemistry programs. The group, which meets monthly at Virginia Wesleyan College, also hopes to develop a cooperative program between area colleges and high schools in Virginia Beach, Norfolk, Portsmouth, Hampton, Newport News, Chesapeake and Suffolk.

Assisting Swann in forming the association were Dr. Robert S. Hulstetter, professor of chemistry at Virginia Wesleyan, and Scott Evans, chemistry instructor at Lake Taylor High School in Norfolk.

Up the bay? Speak out at CG hearing

If you have a suggestion, comment or criticism on vessel traffic or services in and around the Chesapeake Bay and Hampton Roads and its tributaries, you're invited to attend a public hearing at Norfolk City Hall Jan. 27.

The hearing will be held by the Coast Guard which is reviewing the marine casualties that occur in the bay and its tributaries to see if any regulations or services could be changed or improved.

A second public hearing is also scheduled in Baltimore, Md., Feb. 1.

Fifth Coast Guard District commander, Rear Admiral J. E. Johansen, said the hearing is being held to seek proposals from the community which might help the Coast Guard in improving its various mariner services in the bay.

These services include aids to navigation (light stations, buoy and marker systems, fog signals, LORAN A/C, etc.), marine communications system, traffic separation schemes, regulated navigation areas, and the control and/or escort of large/ unusual/ dangerous cargo vessels.

The Norfolk hearing is scheduled for 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Norfolk City Council chambers, 11th floor, at the City Hall Building, corner of Waterfront Drive and St. Pauls Boulevard. Adm. Johansen said oral statements may be presented at the hearing, but those persons who desire to do so must make it known to Coast Guard headquarters in Portsmouth before 4 p.m. Jan. 12. Oral statements at the hearing will be limited to 10 minutes and may be supplemented by a written statement. Separate written statements will be considered at the hearing if submitted to the Coast Guard by Feb. 14.

Adm. Johansen said specific public comment is desired concerning:

- (a) the scope and degree of hazards related to vessel traffic on the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries,
- (b) vessel traffic characteristics including minimum interference with the flow of commercial traffic, traffic volume, the sizes and types of vessels, the usual nature of local cargoes and similar factors,
- (c) port and waterway configurations and different geographic, climatic and other conditions and circumstances,
- (d) environmental factors,
- (e) economic impact and effects,
- (f) adequacy of existing vessel traffic systems, services and schedules, and
- (g) local practices and customs.

For additional information on the hearing, contact the Commander (nps), Fifth Coast Guard District, Federal Building, 431 Crawford St., Portsmouth, Va. 23705.

Meet Jeff Partin, cartoonist - age 13!

Watch out, Charles Schultz, Hank Ketcham and Mort Walker. Here comes Jeff Partin.

Jeff is a blossoming young artist with a desire to become a cartoonist. And he's quite good, even though he's had no formal training.

Jeff, 13, lives on Regal Court in Kings Grant, and he's been interested in drawing since kindergarten. In fact, his mother, Mrs. Lenore Partin, said "Even before that he liked to draw. When he was four, he painted a picture of his father on the wall of his bedroom."

"I like to draw anything really, but I like to draw scenes of surfing and skateboarding best," said Jeff. His love of these two active sports brought forth the idea of "King Surfer." "King is a non-descript beach bum complete with long hair, shaggy cut-offs and an ever-present surf board. "I'd like to make a series of 'King Surfer' cartoons," said Jeff. That's how the SUN found out about Jeff and his natural talent.

Jeff, an 8th grade student at St. Gregory's school on Virginia Beach Boulevard, had already planned his high school education to include generous helpings of art. This summer he hopes to take a course at the Virginia Beach Arts Center.

Jeff's intensity for drawing sometimes has drawbacks. "I like to draw in class and then I get in trouble with my teachers," he said. That comment was echoed by Mrs. Partin.

Even a natural talent needs a little help. "I used to have trouble drawing people's lips until my cousin, an artist, showed me how to do it."

The presents Jeff gets each birthday and Christmas are a little different from what other kids get. You guessed it: easels, paints, artists' paper, speedball kits, etc.

We expect to hear quite a bit more about Jeff. At his young age, he knows what he wants to do and where he wants to go, and he's got the God-given talent to do it.

Recycle those cans

Virginia Beachers, you can add one more to the list of things you can recycle. New Year's Eve, and Reynolds Recycling Company will pay you to keep Reynolds pays 15 cents per pound for all-aluminum beverage containers and other clean household aluminum such as pie plates, aluminum foil and frozen dinner trays. In 1976 alone, Reynolds has paid out more than $13 million to recyclers across the nation. In recycling aluminum, remember that you'll be preserving one of our nation's greatest natural resources as well as helping to fight the litter problem. Recyclers also help to conserve our nation's energy resources, since it takes less than five per cent of the original energy needed to produce aluminum through the recycling process than from virgin ore.

Bring your aluminum to the following location: Olvic Center, 19th & Pacific Avenues, every Wednesday, Jan. 5, 12, 19, 26, from 1-3 p.m. Virginia Beach Recycling Center, 1435 Air Rail Avenue, Hours: Tuesday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

No guessing on what is handicapped parking

Virginia Beach City Council has taken the guessing out of the number of parking spaces which should be provided for handicapped persons.

Council last week passed an ordinance delineating the number of parking spaces based on the total number of parking spaces in a lot.

During a discussion of the ordinance, City Attorney Dale Binson said that persons who are not handicapped who park in a slot for the handicapped are guilty of a misdemeanor and can be fined.

Parking spaces for handicapped persons must have a minimum dimension of 12 by 20 feet and shall be clearly marked. "Handicapped Parking Only," according to the ordinance.

For a lot with up to 25 parking spaces, one handicapped space is required, and the requirements raise to 20 spaces plus one for each additional 100 for lots with over 1,000 spaces.

City Manager George L. Hanbury said that handicapped persons are encouraged to have some identification such as parking tags and Disabled American Veteran tags.

Want to travel and study? Apply to Earthwatch

Virginia Beach students ages 16 to 21 have until Feb. 14 to apply for the 1977 Earthwatch Scholarship Program.

The scholarship sponsors scientific and educational projects for people who want to learn while traveling and in-vestigate field research projects in the United States and foreign countries.

Applications for the Earthwatch scholarship program may be obtained from Mrs. Isabelle P. Rucker, director of special programs for the gifted in the Virginia state department of education. Her address is: State Department of Education, Ninth Street Office Building, Richmond, Va. 23216.

State scholarship winners will be announced in March and the national winners will be selected in April. Scholarship winners will be assigned a variety of scientific tasks, including an archaeological dig in the midwest, continuing study of the ecology of Pleasant Bay, Cape Cod, (which should be

1976 draws to a close; it's time to look back

By BLAIR THURMAN
SUN Sports Editor

As the year draws to a close, it is time to reflect on the sports stories that have taken place at the Beach the last 12 months. Virginia Beach appears to be in the midst of a sports revolution of sorts. A healthy one, and is, in that more and more people are participating in strenuous exercises and realizing what pleasure can be reaped from good hard competition and enjoying the fellowship of other sportsmen.

The Neptune Festival offered a chance for locals to test their skills in sports ranging from golf to skateboarding, which anyone with eyes can plainly see, has swept the Beach with fervor.

The Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation has done another outstanding job of giving boys and girls, men and women a chance to get off their duffs and work up a sweat.

The Virginia Beach High Schools complied with the often controversial Title IX legislation, and although some boys' jayvee programs went by the wayside, new sports, such as soccer and softball, are now being offered to the girls.

Another interesting development in the high school system, was the splitting of the old Eastern District into the Eastern and Beach Districts. The Beach now has its own athletic conference, and has already proven itself as strong as the neighboring conferences.

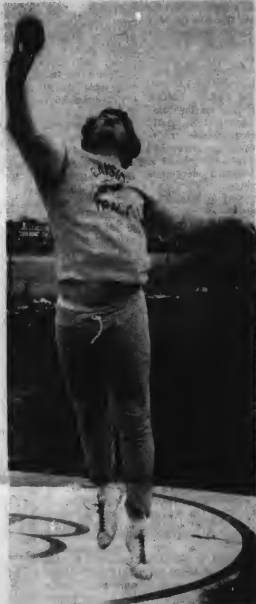

Let's hope that 1977 will bring new highs in the number people who participate, in the level of sportsmanship and in the love of sport.

Here are just a few of the leading stories of this past year.

Mark Inderlied

Mark Inderlied won the city, district and regional competitions in this year's punt, pass and kick contest. Partially due to a hairline fracture on a finger on his throwing hand, 16-year old Mark lost to another boy while on national television during halftime of a Washington Redskins football game.

Krueger practices

Mike Rhodes delivers a pitch to Donnie Jones

The Bayside Marlins overcame weak hitting during the playoffs with outstanding pitching, and captured the Virginia AAA baseball championship. Pitcher Mike Rhodes carried the Marlins throughout the season with amazing strike-out performances, and combined with catcher / pitcher Donnie Jones for the first championship no-hitter in Virginia history.

Coach Ed Booth

The Kempville Chiefs came from nowhere, and behind an extraordinary defense, captured the Beach District football crown before failing to Bethel in the first round of the regional competition.

McDaniels displays State award

Cox High cross-country runner Ray McDaniels set a new Eastern District record during the meet at the 3.1 mile Mt. Trashmore course. McDaniels finished in 15:37, 15 seconds off the old standard. He finished eighth in the State competition.

Kathy Lokie

14-year-old Kathy Lokie finished her community league basketball career as a Plaza Patriot, with 3,475 points and 3,946 rebounds in just three years, easily the most prolific female scorer in community league history.

Pitcher Rob Sessoms led his Little Creek American West All-Stars to the World Series of Bronco Baseball, held in Ohio. The team was forced to play after a grueling bus ride, and the weary boys lost their first two games the double elimination tournament.

Jimmy DiNardo

Princess Anne High's senior tailback Jessie Williams emerged as the Beach's premier running back, leading the Cars to a 9-2 record and a share of the Beach District title. Jimmy DiNardo made the transition from fullback to quarterback just a few days before the opening game of the season, and ran the offense with aplomb. He and Williams gave P.A. a devastating ground attack.

Nightclub owner Mike Worrell braved the high seas and sailed 1,000 miles in a Hobie Cat to capture the First Annual Coastwise Race, from Fort Lauderdale to Virginia Beach. Worrell and

New sport, old sport

As always, girl watching was a popular sport at the Beach, only this year there was a new twist. In that the girls being watched may have been playing Kadima, a game imported from Europe. It is played by hitting a resilient ball with hollow paddles.

Beach policemen are top grads

Two Virginia Beach police officials have completed extensive training at two specialized police training schools.

Evidence technician supervisor John D. Abshire Sr. graduated with the sixth class of the Virginia Academy of Forensic Science. Abshire was one of ten officers selected from the state to attend. He graduated first in his class.

Police sergeant Woodrow W. Baker Jr. has graduated from the administrative officers course at the University of Louisville's Southern Police Institute. Sgt. Baker was one of 50 law enforcement officers across the country graduating.

Abshire, 44, has 19 years in law enforcement experience, working first with the Norfolk police department and then with the Homestead, Fla. police department before coming to Virginia Beach in April 1969. He was promoted to the head of the evidence and identification section of the department Oct. 1, 1975.

While at the Academy, Abshire learned to properly recognize, collect and preserve for laboratory examination items of physical evidence found at crime scenes. During the 13 weeks of training, Abshire and his fellow police classmates made field trips to Chicago and Detroit.

Baker, 34, is a 13-year veteran of the Beach police department and now assigned with the special patrol operations and tactics bureau.

At his course, Baker underwent 390 hours of classroom instructions, including criminal justice communication, police administration, constitutional law and criminal justice behavior dynamics. He became the 12th Virginia Beach police officer to graduate from the school.

Three Beach firms have ,76 expansion

Three Virginia Beach manufacturing firms were among 113 companies across Virginia that announced expansion plans or plans to establish new manufacturing sites during 1976.

Milcom Systems Corporation an electronics systems company, and Teapac, Inc., a tea blending and packaging company, both announced it would establish new plants in Virginia Beach. When completed, Teapac expects to employ 40 percent of full operation, and Milcom expects to employ 40.

The Seven-Up Bottling Company announced during 1976 it would invest two million dollars in expanding its Virginia Beach plant but no additional persons were expected to be employed.

The state division of industrial development made the year-end announcement showing the industrial growth is the Old Dominion. The department said the 113 firms will have an anticipated employment of 10,670, a 46 per cent increase over 1975. The announcement said although the number of facilities for the state announced in 1976 was about the same as for 1975 and 1974, the substantial increase in projected employment indicates a relatively strong recovery from the recent recession. However, the employment has not reached the level of pre-recession years.

VA expects GI Bill study use to decline

GI Bill training will decline slightly during fiscal year 1977, the Veterans Administration forecasts, but enrollment is expected to remain above the two million mark for the fourth consecutive year.

According to VA regional office in Roanoke, 1.2 million students were using their GI Bill entitlement during October on a nationwide basis down slightly from the last year at the same time, but cumulative enrollment for the year is expected to again exceed two million.

The decline in October is attributed, primarily, to the expiration of entitlement for those veterans who were discharged from service more than 10 years ago, VA explained. Another factor, VA said, is that millions of veterans have used their full educational entitlement under the law or they have completed their educational entitlement under the law or they have completed their educational obligation.

More than 6.7 million persons have trained under the current GI Bill since it became available in 1966. Enrollment peaked last year with a record 2.6 million trainees, up 4.8 percent from fiscal year 1975.

Still eligible for educational assistance are veterans with other than dishonorable discharges who have been separated less than 10 years and persons who remain on active duty.

Legislation enacted in October denies entitlement under the current law to those who enter military service after Dec. 31, 1976, and sets Dec. 31, 1980, as the date by which all GI Bill training will terminate.

For thousands of GI Bill students, many of whom have already earned college degrees, the new law provides an additional nine month training entitlement. Those veterans who have not passed the 10-year delimiting date, the law extends entitlement from 36 to 45 months.

Those entering service after Dec. 31, 1976, will be encouraged to enroll in a voluntary contributory educational assistance program, administered jointly by the Department of Defense and the Veterans Administration.

The program offers 36 months educational assistance entitlement with a 10-year time limit. Participants may allocate $50 to $75 monthly from their salaries in 12-month segments, up to a maximum of $2,700.

When the participant leaves service, the contributions will be matched by the VA at the rate of $2 for every $1 allocated. Payments will be limited to the number of months the member contributed or 36 months, whichever is less.

Guichard, Hamilton

Kathleen Elizabeth Guichard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Guichard of La Ray Drive, became the wife of Arvid Glen Hamilton last Saturday in a ceremony at Bayside Hospital.

The ceremony was conducted at the hospital where the bride's father was a patient.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mullins of Indian River, Virginia Beach.

E.M. Thomson

The directors of Goodman Sugar Hogan, Inc. have announced the appointment of E. Montgomery Thomson of Virginia Beach to the firm's commercial sales department. Thomson will be handling commercial and industrial sales for the Norfolk-based retail firm.

Thomson attended Louisiana College and Old Dominion University. His prior experience was in branch management with United Virginia Bank. Thomson resides in Virginia Beach, and is married to the former Carol White. They have two children.

Romantic colonial fireside dining in yours when you visit 1800 Shore Dr. Virginia Beach. The same of this cozy gourmet restaurant is the Three Ships Inn.

Les Rickman opened Three Ships Inn little more than two years ago and has already cultivated a strong following of friends who come back time and again to enjoy the personal touch he lends to the Three Ships Inn. He selects all the produce and meats himself, insuring quality from the start in his dishes.

The menu reflects the region its cook originates from -- New Orleans -- especially in entree's like "Trot New Orleans," stuffed with backfin crabmeat baked to a golden brown, and the chef's special New Orleans French onion soup, a delicate blend of onions, herbs and wine topped with a crusty round of French bread and parmesan cheese. Onion soup at its best!

I noted the menu boasts that the New England Clam Chowder is scallioned even by New Englanders. This I had to taste for myself. It was as thick and clammy as the best bowl I've every had at the Cape, and that's high praise.

Some of the other dishes offered on Mr. Rickman's well-balanced menu are "Shrimp Florentine," "Chicken Kiev" (a Russian classic) made from two boneless chicken breasts and expertly stuffed with butter, garlic and tarragon.

I especially liked the duckling served with black cherry sauce. Most expect duck to be greasy. This inn's dish is prepared with such expertise that it's different from anything you've ever tasted, no "greasy" or "old" flavor whatever.

Our half succulent duck, roasted with fresh orange sauce and lemon slices and basted with brandy and orange curacao (served atop a bed of wild rice) is a dish worth recording on return visits to the Inn.

The fire generates a honey, warm atmosphere, but there's more: parties may all by the large picture windows viewing almost innumerable giant oaks situated outside the main dining room. They are said to be some of the oldest and largest oaks in the area.

"There are many places to eat in Virginia Beach, but few places to dine," expresses Les when asked what the Three Ships Inn has that other area restaurants don't.

"To dine" is defined as "that extra measure beyond mere eating," and dining is clearly defined by a trip to the Three Ships Inn.
